Power Hopes Sink

LONDON (UPI) — Britain neared a total industrial shutdown today. Twenty million jobs were threatened with further power cuts in store for British homes and industry.

The blockade of power stations by striking coal miners hit even harder and electricity authorities ordered power cuts for one-third of the country, with 15 per cent hit at any single time. Previously, only about 10 per cent had been affected at a time.

That meant most areas which before suffered only six hours of cuts a day now would be blacked out for nine hours.

The central electricity generating board, which operates Britain's state-run power industry, said cuts might hit as much as 20 per cent of the country at a time if generating resources continue to fall.

So far 10 of Britain's 148 power stations have been put out of action by strike pickets preventing coal or oil reaching them. At least a third are working at reduced capacity, the board said.

WORST YET

"It looks as if this is going to be the most drastic day so far. There is no doubt that power rationing is becoming more severe" a generating board spokesman said.

The nine-hour power cuts were split into three groups of three hours each.

For the seventh day tens of thousands of homes and offices were without heat for up to nine hours. Some areas also were hit by water shortages when electric water pumps failed.

At Bath, in the West England, water carts were stationed at strategic points throughout the city for families whose supplies had dried up.

The state-run British railroads slashed more than 1,000 trains from their services. Hundreds of commuter runs were cancelled and those trains running had fewer and unheated cars.

Officials said everything now depends on the recommendations of a three-man court of inquiry, headed by Lord Wilberforce, an appeals court judge. The panel began public hearings Tuesday.

The court has promised to announce its findings by the end of the week.

THE BRIDGE THAT WAS, on Richmond Road, intrigues youngsters on their way to school this morning, as they stand dangerously close to edge of sunken section. Rain-swollen Bowker Creek undermined bridge supports during the night. City engineers today began building a temporary bridge.

65-m.p.h. Winds Lash City

By PAUL MOSS, Times Staff

One of the worst storms of the winter hit Greater Victoria and Vancouver Island Tuesday night, causing a small city bridge to collapse, flooding scores of basements in Saanich and Oak Bay and leaving many residents without electricity.

Almost an inch of rain had fallen in the 24-hour period up to 4 a.m. today, but the flooding problems arose because half of that fell in a six-hour period starting at about 10 p.m.

A four-inch B.C. Hydro gas main was fractured as the whole bridge structure sagged, posing a threat to residents of the area. But a Hydro crew was on the scene by 5:30 a.m. and sealed off the break.

All traffic was diverted today as city engineers began the job of erecting a temporary girder bridge.

Children on their way to school this morning were still using the footpath over the bridge, which looked as if it could collapse entirely at any moment. Traffic detour signs were diverting traffic, but up to 9 o'clock no policemen were on duty to control pedestrians.

However, when city traffic engineer James Garnett arrived on the scene just before 9 he issued instructions that all pedestrian use of the bridge was to cease immediately.

Although the Victoria-Saanich boundary runs down the middle of Richmond, under an egreement between the municipalities the city has responsibility for the road.

Garnett explained that the rushing water scoured out the creek bed, undermining the old piers on both sides of the bridge. A huge chunk of masonry was swept several yards downstream.

No one knows what time the bridge actually gave way, but the discovery was made in a frightening manner by a young motorist whose car bumped and bounced over the sagged section.

Mrs. Margaret Beech, of 2616 Richmond, said her daughter opened the door at about 3:45 a.m. to the young man, who asked if he could phone the police.

"He looked very shaken up," she said.

Small Plane Flight Curbs At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)— The transport department has ordered restrictions on visual flight operations within a 10-mile radius of Vancouver International Airport as the airport's radar system broke down.

It was the first major reported breakdown of navigational equipment at the airport since maintenance technicians, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, went on strike last week.

The restrictions, in practice, affected only small charter and private aircraft which are not equipped with instrument landing systems, as are the major airlines and other, larger aircraft.

Air Canada cancelled more than half of its flights out of Toronto today and about two-thirds of its domestic flights from Montreal as the strike entered its 11th day.

Airlines urged passengers to take buses or trains as flight delays were reported. Some flights from Toronto were taking off six hours late.

Traffic in and out of other major airports was hectic Tuesday as air controllers resorted to visual procedures for commercial takeoffs and landings after delicate radar equipment broke down without maintenance.

Conditions today appeared about the same or slightly worse.

CANCEL 60 FLIGHTS

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline had to cancel 60 of 112 scheduled flights from Toronto. It got about two-thirds of its flights out Tuesday.

CP Air said its usual 20 flights would leave Toronto today but it couldn't guarantee when.

Air Canada said it was trying to maintain long-range flights while cancelling short runs. There were numerous consolidations—passengers on lightly loaded flights being put on other aircraft.

Extra buses and railway cars are running because of the strike.

CNR added three cars to each of Tuesday evening's Rapido trains from Montreal to Toronto and airport buses met them at the station. At least half the train passengers had to take buses to the airport just to pick up cars they had parked there.

U.S. 'ON BRINK' OVER PAKISTAN

NEW YORK (CP) — Columnist Jack Anderson, who has disclosed secret government documents on the India-Pakistan war, said Tuesday the United States was "on the brink of nuclear war" in that conflict.

The syndicated writer also charged at a news conference that President Nixon and aides tried to deceive the public about how much the nation was involved in the India-Pakistan war.

"Life and death decisions that brought us to the brink" were kept from the public, Anderson said, including the fact that American task forces sent to the Bay of Bengal were "alerted for hostile action" against the Soviets and Chinese.

Anderson called the news conference to announce the impending publication of a book, The Anderson Papers, expanding on the documents already published or excerpted in his column.

He said that while the administration was secretly pursuing a pro-Pakistan policy, Nixon told congressional leaders and Henry Kissinger his national security adviser told newsmen that U.S. policy was not anti-Indian and the United States was neutral.

"The president — and there is not a pretty word for it — lied to Congress. Henry Kissinger on the president's behalf, lied to the American people," Anderson declared.

He said he has hundreds of previously unpublished documents, but added: "No security matters are involved in anything we have, only embarrassments."

Times' Challenge Prompts Threat of B.C. Ad Cutoff

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday he will recommend the provincial government stop placing advertisements in the Victoria Times or any other newspaper which publishes tobacco ads.

Peterson said he will make the recommendation to cabinet because the Times published a tobacco advertisement Monday in apparent violation of provincial legislation banning these ads.

The attorney-general said the Times had behaved irresponsibly, and he said its action went against previous Times editorial policy favoring the banning of tobacco and alcohol advertisements.

A Times editorial, March 30, 1971, said that "in view of the medical and social trend of the times it is difficult to argue against the moral basis of a ban on published encouragement of smoking and drinking."

Commenting on Peterson's reference to the editorial, Times' publisher Stuart Underhill said that while approving steps to discourage smoking and drinking, the editorial also pointed out there would be "formidable problems." in implementing the new legislation.

Underhill declined to say what it would cost the Times in revenue if deprived of government advertising.

He said it was irrelevant to the point of principle at issue.

TEST CASE DUE

Peterson was accused of evading his responsibility as attorney-general by Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) in the legislature Tuesday evening.

"If they (Times) have broken the censorship law he piloted through the house, then I put it to him — the chief law officer doesn't talk about economic reprisals, he goes to court."

Peterson replied that a test case of the advertising ban was due in court next week.

Dowding said the economic reprisal threat was a clear evasion of the attorney-general's responsibility and a "ridiculous response."

Legislation prohibiting tobacco product advertising and extending the ban on alcohol advertising to newspapers was passed by the legislature in 1971.

Peterson said the B.C. Supreme Court is expected to rule Feb. 22 on the validity and interpretation of the provincial legislation.

"And now, one week before the time of this matter," said Peterson, "they commence advertising tobacco products.

"They're performing a great public disservice. I will recommend that no government advertising be placed in this newspaper.

"I'm sure that all the other papers are too responsible to do this. This kind of irresponsibility on the part of the Victoria Times should in no way

IRVING'S WIFE ARRESTED

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Edith Irving, wife of writer Clifford Irving, appeared in court today for an extradition hearing brought by the Swiss government.

Mrs. Irving was arrested and taken immediately before a U.S. magistrate.

Bomb Aboard Ferry

BELFAST (UPI) — Security forces today found and defused a 40-pound bomb planted on a ferry from England in what may have been a bid to blow up 300 British troops en route to Ulster.

An army spokesman said army explosives experts sped to the ferry, the Duke of Argyle, when it docked in Belfast from Heysham, England, just before 7 a.m. carrying about 300 British troops and a number of civilians.

The explosives experts defused the bomb after several hours work, the spokesman said.

"It may have been an attempt to injure troops as the device was fully primed, but somehow hadn't detonated," the spokesman said.

Disaster Seen If B.C. Wins

Times News Services

Provincial leaders across Canada — particularly in the "Have-not" Atlantic provinces — agreed today that an end to federal equalization payments would be a disaster for Confederation.

And most said they doubted if a proposed attack on the payments by the Social Credit government of B.C. had any basis in constitutional law.

B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday that the province would test the legality of the equalization payments — federal grants designed by Ottawa to reduce regional economic differences — in a court challenge. The move followed a remark Sunday by Prime Minister Trudau characterizing B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett as a "bigot" toward French-speaking Canadians.

In Ottawa Finance Minister John Turner intends to introduce a five-year extension to current federal-provincial equalization payments legislation in the new session of Parliament opening Thursday, regardless of British Columbia's objections to it.

The legislation will raise to $1.6 billion by 1976-77 the amount of federal tax money now used each year to subsidize the treasuries of the so-called seven "have-not" provinces — all but Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia. Equalization payments amount to $1.1 billion this year.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex Campbell said Prince Edward Island will meet any challenge to its right for equalization payments with all the abilities, arguments and finance it can put forth.

Campbell said he would have hoped "that the government of any Canadian province disenchated with equalization would have sought political solutions to a constitutional problem at the provincial or federal-provincial conferences."

Heath Threat

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has threatened to quit if Parliament refuses to ratify a treaty bringing Britain into the European Common Market, political sources said today.

The sources said Heath made the threat in an attempt to prevent a rebellion by members of his ruling Conservative Party opposed to the plan. The issue comes to a vote Thursday.

Heath said a defeat would lead not only to his resignation but his entire government would topple.

The House of Commons began a three-day debate Tuesday on the second of three scheduled parliamentary readings of a bill ratifying the treaty he signed in Brussels Jan. 22 taking Britain into the six-nation community on Jan. 1, 1973.

U.S. Dollar Under Pressure

Times News Services

LONDON — An early flurry of dollar selling drove the price of U.S. currency down to a new all-time low in West Germany today and forced it lower in Britain, France, Switzerland and Holland in early trading.

The record 1971 U.S. balance of payments deficit got the blame for the renewed selling pressure on the dollar, dealers said, although the huge deficit had long been predicted.

It was also widely known there had been no massive reflux of dollars to the United States after the flight from the dollar both before and after the August crisis.

Trading in London turned hectic. One dealer said "I've seen as much business in the first hour of trading as I sometimes see in a whole day."

In Washington, the commerce department said the "official settlements" deficit — measured in terms of official foreign holdings of dollars — was $29.6 million for the year, nearly $20 billion worse than the 1970 record deficit of $9.8 billion.

Stage Set for Opening Of New Ottawa Session

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Parliament, adjourned since Dec. 30, met briefly today to formally end the 28th Parliament and set the stage for the opening of the fourth session Thursday morning.

The opening in a pre-election atmosphere is expected to produce a throne speech that will give Canadians an encouraging view of the future of the country.

The speech will also outline some of the legislation scheduled to come before Parliament —some of it new, some of it in the form of left-overs —which the government feels will bring Canada closer toward a just society.

With the opposition scenting an election, it could be a stormy parliamentary period ahead. But the government is not expected to aggravate the situation by introducing unnecessarily contentious bills.

Some of the more controversial bills left over from last session, including Labor Code amendments and a measure to regulate business competition, are unlikely to return in their former state, and probably not before the expected election.

The throne speech, which traditionally outlines legislation to come before Parliament, is expected to concentrate more on the state of Canada and hopes for its future. Some cabinet ministers are known to be annoyed that some of their pet projects are not being included in the speech, to be read by Governor-General Roland Michener.

The speech has been prepared within Prime Minister Trudeau's office, and sources say there has been less cabinet participation than in previous years. Ministers were asked to submit legislative programs they had in mind.

Mr. Trudeau, following a tendency begun in 1970, favors using the speech as a vehicle for an over-all government view of Canada, its problems and its hopes. Bills which, in the government's view, will make Canada a better place will be outlined.

God Put Us in Charge—Phil

God made man to run the world, not worship it, Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi told the legislature Tuesday.

"Trees were never created by God to be worshipped as gods. They were made to be utilized. Minerals aren't to be worshipped, they're to be utilized. We were created to be in control," Gaglardi said.

Opposition members kidded Gaglardi, saying he must have been referring to the Socreds. The minister replied he was merely talking about man in general.

He said the government believes in anti-pollution efforts but suggested people should not over-emphasize protection of the environment.

He said Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan is "setting the pace" in Canada in the fight against pollution.

Gaglardi also praised his department's record in finding jobs. He claimed the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen found 30,000 new jobs in 1971 at an average rate of 114 jobs a day.

He said Ottawa has copied his on-the-job training program and praised vocational training programs sponsored by the rehabilitation department.

A front-page statement by Underhill in Tuesday's Times said the ad was being published because the paper believes "this legislation to be beyond the competence of a provincial legislature."

The Tobacco Advertising Restraint Act of 1971 contains no penalties for breaking it. It allows injunctions to be given to publications containing tobacco product advertisements.

The Times' action was a hot topic today on CJVI's Hotline show moderated by Joe Easingwood. A station spokesman reported that in the first two-and-a-half hours of the three-hour program there were 91 calls in favor of challenging the legislation and 36 against.

Vancouver businessman David Bader said today he will send a letter to Peterson demanding enforcement of the cigarette advertising ban.

"If he doesn't do it, I'll do it myself," said Bader, who has crusaded against the bans since last September. He said he would seek an injunction against the newspapers under the act.

FURTHER CHARGES

Bader also promised further charges under the liquor advertising ban following earlier efforts to confront it in the courts. New charges would be laid under anti-advertising provisions following failure in court of an action under the anti-distribution provision, he said.

Bader said he "applauded" the Victoria newspapers for challenging the "completely ludicrous" advertising bans.

Copies of the Victoria Times were pulled off newsstands on B.C. Ferries Tuesday but ferries system manager Monty Aldous replied "no comment" when asked why.

Asked if Time Magazine was sold on the newsstands, Aldous said: "I don't know."

"We have a standing arrangement that we will sell no publications with liquor or tobacco advertising," he said, but repeated that he didn't know if Time magazine was sold on the stands.

. . . PREMIERS

Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick said in Fredericton that he was "surprised and disappointed" by the B.C. threat.

Hatfield said Premier Bennett, a native of New Brunswick, "knows of our need for these equalization payments and the benefits they provide directly to the people of his native province."

NOT SERIOUS?

In Halifax, Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said "I doubt very much whether British Columbia is serious in this matter. British Columbia should realize that equalization payments are a necessary way of life if our country is to stay together and grow."

And at St. John's, Finance Minister John Crosbie said Newfoundland would have to "close up shop" if the payments were ended. Crosbie said Newfoundland receives more than $105 million annually from Ottawa. He said it was unlikely British Columbia would win such a case.

"OSTRICH HEAD"

That view was echoed by premiers of two prairie provinces and by Sen. Eugene Forsey, Canada's foremost constitutional expert, who commented in Ottawa Tuesday that Peterson has no grounds at all for such a lawsuit.

Any lawyer taking such a case "would need the skin of a rhinocerous and the head of an ostrich," Forsey said.

In Winnipeg, Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer said, "It strikes me that just about every developed federal state in the world has some form of equilization payments to offset at least in part the disparities in per-capita income."

Schreyer said he could see no conflict between the British North America Act and the payments.

NO BASIS

Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney also said he sees no basis in law for the B.C. challenge.

"They seem to be saying equalization payments are unconstitutional," Blakeney said "That is a rather remarkable statement that all provinces are not treated equally and if it's true it has taken a long time to find it out.

"In any case we feel it is inappropriate for any province to take the position B.C. apparently has . . . and the suggestion that other provinces have their noses in the public trough is somewhat inelegant and quite inappropriate."

House Entry Blocked

QUEBEC (CP) — Picketing supporters of striking Quebec peace officers blocked entrance routes to the provincial legislature buildings today and paraded for almost three hours to protest the use of supervisory personnel in place of off-duty prison guards, game wardens and autoroute police.

'Soviets Stronger'

LONDON (CP) — European countries need to assume more responsibility for their own security, the British government said today in a defence white paper tabled in Parliament.

The white paper noted that the power of the Warsaw pact countries headed by Russia continues to swell and that NATO efforts to relax tensions go on amid a Communist atmosphere of "massive and still growing military strength."

It added: "The Western alliance must therefore remain resolute in avoiding any premature lowering of its guard.

"It must also insist that the imbalances in the forces confronting each other in Europe, which favor the Warsaw pact, are taken fully into account in any negotiations on arms control or force reductions."

DOCKERS VOTE ON CONTRACT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The rank and file of the striking longshoremen's union begin voting today on whether to approve a 17-month contract recommended by local leaders following a four-day caucus.

Delegates from 24 ports in California, Washington and Oregon voted Tuesday night to recommend ratification of an agreement worked out with the Pacific Maritime Association for ending the 131-day walkout.

Storm Damages City Bridge

Another resident, Mrs. Helen MacPherson, of 2660 Richmond, said for some hours before her son was due home from night shift at about 3:30 a.m. she could hear banging sounds from the general area of the bridge.

"I guess it could have been the supports giving way," she said.

SPECULATION

Both women speculated that the bridge could have been weakened in recent months by trucks used on a condominium construction site on the east side of Richmond, a few yards from the bridge.

Garnett couldn't estimate how long the temporary bridge repair would take, but said permanent reconstruction would have to wait until summer.

In this year's provisional city budget there is a proposal to culvert a large section of the stream, he said.

TOO EARLY

The rains came two weeks too early for Oak Bay residents in the area of Windsor, St. David and Transit.

Early last week the municipality began replacing the old 12-inch pipes that have been clogged with tree roots with new 18-inch ones.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White said today, "We are laying in new pipes but have not got far enough yet to remedy the situation."

He estimated the work would take another two weeks.

Today, municipal crews were out, as they have been after previous storms this winter, manning pumps in people's basements.

White said another badly-affected area was Henderson, near the Uplands Golf Club.

MANY CALLS

A Saanich public works official reported a steady stream of calls from residents complaining of flooded basements and driveways, but said the general situation was "nowhere near as bad" as the Dec. 8 storm which produced 300 complaints.

Hydro information officer Dorothy Tupper said areas affected by power cuts Tuesday night and early today included the Mount Newton Cross Road district of Central Saanich, Sidney, Swartz Bay, Deep Cove, Sooke, Sassenos, Port Renfrew and Jordan River. A tree partially blocked the Sooke Highway early this morning.

High winds blowing trees onto Hydro and telephone lines also disrupted services in the Cowichan Valley. Rain caused the Koksilah River to back up and flood the Cowichan Bay Road.

Weatherman Allan McQuarrie said at the height of the storm, just before midnight, southwesterly winds were blowing at 45 m.p.h. with gusts up to 65.

Another storm system approaching from the west could bring a few showers by Thursday morning, he said, which could turn to snow in some areas as colder air moves in.

Tax Hike Won't Hit Tenants

The owner of a commercial property in Cadboro Bay told a Saanich court of revision Tuesday that he can't pass on tax increases to tenants of his property, which includes an "obsolete" service station and a little-used barber shop.

Louis Holker, appealing the assessment on his property at 3840 Cadboro Bay Road, said the service station is 24 years old and needs modernizing while the barber shop has "gone bad with the long hair."

The complex also includes a real estate office and a two-suite apartment. Questioned by municipal assessor William Craven, Holker said the income from rental totals about $10,500 a year.

"That's a pretty healthy income from land we say is valued at about $7,000," Craven commented.

The assessor told the panel his department had carried out a reassessment of all properties in the Cadboro Bay area.

In this case they had taken into account that it was a "rather crowded," unsuitable commercial development in some ways, and one which would not be allowed under present zoning restrictions.

The court confirmed the 1972 assessment on improvements at $16,368, an increase of $1,488 on the 1971 figure of $14,880.

'U.S. Can No Longer Afford Trade Deficit With Canada'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States can no longer afford a multi-billion-dollar trade deficit with Canada, a commerce department trade official said today.

Edward L. Allen, a deputy assistant secretary for international economic research and analysis, said the actual trade deficit with Canada in 1971 ranged from $1.2 billion, the Canadian estimate, to $2.4 billion, the American estimate.

"By any reckoning, it is very large, and represents a major balance-of-payments drain to the United States," Allen said in remarks prepared for a conference of business executives on U.S.-Canadian relations.

Allen said the U.S. efforts to correct balance-of-payments problems have been "of very real economic benefit to Canada."

He said Canada's international competitive position has been improved because of currency revaluation, and Canada's automobile exports to the United States have been stimulated because of the repeal of the seven-per-cent excise tax on automobiles, and extension of trade concessions won from Japan and the Common Market.

Allen said more than half the companies in Canada with assets greater than $25 million are foreign-owned, primarily by American companies. While information is not yet complete, he said, it appears that more than half of American imports from Canada are from U.S. manufacturing and mining affiliates.

Allan said the hopeful area for reducing the trade deficit with Canada as a result of currency revaluation "lies in prospects for increased imports of U.S. manufactured goods by Canada.

TAX TIPS FOR YOU

Q. My wife works part-time in my small gift shop. Can I claim wages for her in my return?

A. If your business is a sole proprietorship, you cannot claim wages paid to your wife as an expense.

Q. I have heard that I can deduct the fees my tax consultant charges for making out my income tax return. Is this correct?

A. There is no provision in the Income Tax Act which permits deduction of these charges. However, if you normally require accounting advice in connection with your business, the tax consultant charges may be deductible as a business expense.

Q. I have to travel 35 miles to get from my home to my place of employment. There is no bus service. Can I claim travelling expenses when filing my income tax return?

A. No. For the 1971 tax year, the expense of travelling to and from work is not deductible.

Q. My son is a university student and his income last year, after he had deducted $985.00. I understand that I apply what is called the notch provision by adding the difference between his net income and $950 to my income tax return. Do I add this sum of money on the detailed tax calculation?

A. Yes, it would be necessary for you to use the detailed tax calculation. You add the difference between $950 and your son's net income in the section B marked "tax adjustments," and specify that this is your son's income over and above the $950 allowance. Then on the front of the tax form in the section marked "tax adjustment' you again enter this same sum of money.

Q. My wife died a year ago and I have had to retain a housekeeper to care for the children and do domestic chores. Can I claim an income tax deduction or exemption for her?

A. You may not claim any deduction or exemption for your housekeeper, as such. However, because you are a widower and employ a housekeeper to care for your children, you are entitled to claim the $1,000 equivalent married exemption for one of your children, and also claim the usual $300 or $550 exemption for that same child.

Q. I am a veteran of the Second World War and am in receipt of a disability pension from the department of veterans' affairs and in addition am in receipt of salary and wages from pensionable employment. On what income do I have to contribute?

A. Only on the salary and wages.

First Step to Protect Sea

The Manchester Guardian

OSLO — The first major international agreement to prevent pollution of the sea by dumping from ships and aircraft was signed here Tuesday by Britain, the Scandinavian countries and eight other European governments.

The agreement, initiated by Norway, covers the northeast Atlantic and embraces a wide range of poisonous substances under a descriptive heading that is sufficiently general to extend to new chemical compounds as and when they appear.

The dumping of pesticides and of organo-silicone compounds is banned together with the metals, mercury and cadmium, plus all persistent plastic waste.

Dumping of other poisonous substances is to be allowed only by permission from an international commission established under the agreement for that purpose.

Speaking before the signing at the foreign ministry, Norwegian Foreign Minister Andreas Cappellen said that the danger of pollution was increasingly recognized and that this was a first step which could pave the way for world wide arrangements.

"Dumping into the sea of harmful waste constitutes a particular and well-defined problem, which lends itself to speedy international regulatory measures. Clearly it was unacceptable to our governments that the feedom of the high seas should be misused for the purpose of dumping substances which no one wished to have close to their own shores," he said.

The commission is specifically required under the agreement to keep marine conditions under constant review and to recommend amendments or extensions as these are required.

OTHER SOURCES

The extensions already in mind were foreshadowed by Cappellen who said that the governments involved should "as soon as possible" start discussions to control marine pollution from other sources — such as outfalls and pipelines — which come under national jurisdiction.

"The consideration of other measures may be initiated in the commission which we are setting up or even in the preparatory committee which will have its first meeting in March. We hope to reach early agreement on a pledge not to divert into the sea through pipelines any significant quantities of the harmful wastes which are banned under this agreement," he said.

Although Russia, Poland and East Germany were not signatories Tuesday, the Norwegian foreign ministry regards their absence as "technical," since all these countries are known to be sympathetic to the aims of the agreement.

It will remain open for signature until mid-August, by which time the absent countries may have joined.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1972

BRIAN TOBIN, Editor — STUART UNDERHILL, Publisher — GORDON BELL, Managing Editor

The Memorable Men

The fourth member of the local Social Credit quartet has now been heard from, with Public Works Minister Chant's reply in the House to Mayor Pollen's recent charge that the local MLAs have done nothing for their constituencies.

Mr. Chant is one of the two members for Victoria — for those who had forgotten about him in this role. His colleagues have already replied to the accusations — Mr. Tisdalle with the claim that he has done so many things for Saanich and the Islands that it would take a long time to list them; Mr. Bruch, in Esquimalt, and Mr. Skillings, in Victoria, with recollections of various events and constructions that have occurred during their tenure.

Mr. Chant has gone even further, with a long list of building projects in Victoria including reconstruction of the burnt-out Government House, erection of the Law Courts and the Provincial Museum, Point Ellice Bridge (the name of Mayor Percy Scurrah seems to be more prominently remembered in that connection), the Gordon Head Campus, good highways in general and the ferry service. (They all get aboard the ferry service).

It has been noticeable that in their hour of challenge each of the Social Credit members has trotted out the record of the government rather than his own. The provincial government rebuilt Government House — what special pleading did Mr. Chant do to get the job done, or to keep the residence from being transferred to some other constituency? The government planned and built the new Provincial Museum — as a centennial project — and not as the result of a courageous fight by Mr. Chant, Victoria's representative, to keep it from being built in Comox or Williams Lake. And where else but at Point Ellice would the Point Ellice bridge be built?

None of the MLAs under attack has come up with a personal achievement for his constituency — they merely name public works and necessary projects which would have come to fruition in any case. Many of the buildings cited had been promised for years anyway. What the public remembers most in connection with them was the delay, rather than the arrival.

But these were not the type of things Mayor Pollen had in mind in making his criticism. What he referred to mainly was the lack of representation for the local constituencies on a week-to-week basis, the help that an elected spokesman could give as a result of his position in the government — even in the cabinet — the recognition of a whole new breed of urban problems, and the contact with his electors that any product of the democratic process would normally be expected to foster. Instead, we have had nothing. Victoria might as well have had no representatives in the Legislature, for all the special benefit we have received from ours.

Perhaps only Oak Bay's elected Social Credit spokesman — not so far criticized — did his best for his constituents. Dr. Wallace, as we know, served them to the best of his ability by ceasing to be a Social Crediter. Funny that none of the others thought of that.

Edgar Snow

Almost on the eve of the biggest China story of the year, and perhaps of the decade, Edgar Snow, the man who made his reputation with his widely known writing on China, has died at his home near Lake Geneva, Switzerland.

In his early twenties Snow began writing as a correspondent for the Chicago Tribune, later for the New York Sun. In the 1930s he went to report on the Chinese Red Army and filed exclusive stories on its progress. Like Canada's Dr. Bethune, American correspondent Snow won the permanent affection of the Chinese and in the recent weeks of his illness Peking sent two Chinese doctors to Switzerland to help with his cancer treatments.

Snow travelled widely in various theatres in the Second World War. At the top of his writing form, the author of Red Star Over China became an associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

Last April, Life magazine carried an interview between Snow and his friend Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Mao said that President Nixon would be welcome to China either as a tourist or in his official capacity. What follows from that interview will be in the headlines next week.

Pursuing what he called the "fearless search for truth" Snow travelled the earth. In helping to open the door to American relations with China he performed a great service to the world.

In his efforts to advance the frontiers of political truth, readers and newsmen will remember him as a journalist who broke the news and comfortable prejudice with equal zest and skill.

Next Revolution

Pravda says that "television sets are considered 'articles of primary necessity'," and the Soviet Government has announced that the price of a 23-inch set has been dropped to the equivalent of 11 weeks' salary for the average working Russian. Color sets are roughly double the price.

If sufficient numbers of Russians are prepared to invest the equivalent of about a fifth of their yearly income in what North Americans frequently call "the boob tube," a cultural revolution could be in store for the USSR. Wait till those uplifting deodorant commercials hit them.

"... tell them I just smiled and smiled and smiled ..."

MAURICE WESTERN

Who Is Subsidized? Why?

OTTAWA — The inquiry into subsidies being conducted in the United States by a congressional committee under the chairmanship of Senator William Proxmire recalls the abortive investigation begun here about a decade ago by the committee on the public accounts at Ottawa.

In the United States billions of dollars in subsidies are provided annually through the federal budget. But according to Senator Proxmire, "Billions more never appear because they are hidden, difficult to calculate, represent taxes not paid or special privileges for which no one has yet placed a price tag."

A subsidy is a payment by the general community to a special group or region. It will always appear beneficial to the recipients. It may very well be in the national interest. It may, as in the case of the protective tariff, be controversial. But in most cases there will be in the beginning arguments in its favor respectable enough to enlist the support of persons other than the direct beneficiaries.

The problem is that a subsidy once in place and possibly useful at the outset is not easily disturbed. It exists, therefore it should be continued. If there were doubts originally they are soon forgotten. Governments nowadays are very large and none too well co-ordinated. Budgets are astronomical and the time of ministers is so greatly occupied with new programs and challenges that established programs tend largely to be taken for granted unless, as sometimes happens, they threaten to break out of control.

Diversions

Furthermore, large sums are diverted in routine fashion through tax exemptions, remissions, concealed subsidies and a great variety of more or less worthy causes which are seldom required to justify themselves.

In 1961 Harold Winch, an NDP member of rather independent mind, complained in public accounts committee that he could find no adequate breakdown of the hundreds of millions of dollars in subsidies provided for by legislation. The auditor-general thought the point well taken and the committee accordingly recommended that a proper table be complied. Nothing much happened for some years, the project not being one to appeal to treasury board. However, the matter was pressed with more success in 1964.

Information produced at that time gave totals of grants, subsidies and special payments in five categories: Payments to international organizations; to agriculture and industry; to universities for general purposes, research or for vocational training; to social and private organizations concerned with the arts, culture, citizenship, agriculture and so on; and to the provinces and territories (mostly shared-cost programs).

... billions never appear

From this it appeared that shared-cost programs accounted for something less than half of the identified payments amounting (in 1963-64) to $2.156 billions The effort thus started was, however, quickly abandoned. It was apparently considered too time-consuming by treasury board, and the public accounts committee, normally far behind in its work, passed on to matters considered more urgent.

But the federal subsidy bill has greatly increased since that time. One indication of its magnitude may be found in the 1970 report of the auditor-general which placed federal expenditures under shared-cost programs alone at $1.751 billion. This did not include tax abatements and equalization payments of $470,185,000 to Quebec (under the Established Programs Interim Arrangements Act) and similar payments to all provinces, relating to post-secondary education, of $336,517,000. If the ratio of shared-cost to total subsidy outlays has not changed — perhaps an unlikely assumption — this would indicate a federal subsidy bill of well over $5 billions.

Some very large subsidy programs have been developed during the present Parliament, the grants for regional expansion being an obvious example. In a few cases we may have one-year experiments, as with LIFT. Where a principle is adopted, however, the subsidy is likely to prove more permanent. Conceivably this may happen with two-price wheat. Occasionally a principle is elusive but the results are similar. It is perhaps of some significance that Opportunities for Youth have been slightly reshaped, but possibly of more significance that they have been enlarged as Mr. Pelletier moves confidently into the second year of his dazzling experiment.

Aged Infants

A persuasive case can be made that the government should subsidize change. It usually manages to do this, however, while at the same time it is subsidizing the status quo. Tariff protection was once the encouragement of infant industries. What are they now? Old-age industrial pensioners?

There is another difficulty. Governments are not very objective in appraising their own programs, and neither, one suspects, are the task forces, the survey firms and the outside consultants which they employ for this work. A program is launched. It becomes routine; so meritorious in the eyes of administrators that criticism seems almost indecent. But then it passes under objective scrutiny, as happened with family allowances. The Economic Council admonishes the government that a program already a quarter of a century old and costing hundreds of millions has no discernible economic purpose whatsoever.

JAMES H. GRAY

X-Raying the Ailing Chest

CALGARY — With the derogation of love, marriage, motherhood, thrift and hard work as eternal verities, the putting down of the Community Chest was bound to come eventually. It happened in Calgary last week.

The United Fund has been having heavy sledding here for some years and for the last three failed to meet its objective, but only slightly. So, in the fashion of the times, its sponsors decided to do a survey in depth to discover where its image had become dulled. After all, they told each other, this was THE ONE charity appeal to which everybody gave because everybody benefitted.

Not quite, as the survey discovered. Most people seemed to give because they were black-jacked into it by the internal pressure of the payroll deduction system. What was more — they regarded the whole business as a nuisance and would much prefer to have the governments take over the social services of United Funds and finance them out of taxes.

After Initial Shock

The shock of the survey left most of the community do-gooders speechless. Only when they took a close look at the causes now supported by the United Funds would they discover how far it has moved from the original concept of the Community Chest, and how many of the original services have in fact been taken over by the governments.

The inspiration of the Community Chest came 50 years ago when community leaders decided there had to be a better way to finance worthy charities than the endless begging for funds which each organization went through.

The Community Chests were born in the pre-welfare age, when the poor, the halt, the aged and the blind had to depend on private charity for sustenance. Into the Community Chest were gathered the drives for Old Folks Homes, Orphanages, Hospital Charity Wards, Children's Aid Societies, and a dozen other groups which provided a sheltering arm for the casualties of society.

All these causes have now fallen into the maw of the state appetite for welfaring. There isn't an orphan's home of the old type to be found anywhere in the west. The religious orders have given up their hospitals and Old Folks Homes. Now the orphans are maintained by the state in foster homes, the aged in cubby holes in therapeutic and sterile "Senior Citizen's Villas."

Yet the Community Chest, now renamed the United Fund to take advantage of United States-generated "hip" fund raising slogans and techniques, gets bigger and bigger. And the fund raising campaigns operating outside the fund likewise multiply.

Better than endless begging

The end result is that the original intent of the idea, getting rid of a multiplicity of appeals, has been frustrated. Over the years, the cities have tried to regulate the number of begging campaigns which can afflict a community. Various endorsement techniques have been devised, none with noticeable success.

Calgary has a Campaigns Approving Authority. Last year it had no less than 89 requests for endorsement and rejected only four. In addition to the begging organizations, many service clubs have still other hooks out for funds in the form of sweepstakes, bingos and promotions of entertainment.

Nor is this all. On top of everything else are the national drives. The Heart Fund, the Cancer Fund, the Salvation Army, the Mental Health drive, Unesco, etc. The fund raisers, faced with increasing resistance to their importuning may well wonder where our charitable instincts have all gone. They seem, from the results of the Calgary survey, to have fallen victim to the extension to absurdity of the definition of charity.

Spreading Disenchantment

As a one-time organizer of a United Fund payroll plan in a large organization, I could have told the surveyors that the disenchantment with the system was spreading more than a decade ago. The reception the canvassers got was all too frequently:

"Oh, that damn thing again." And before they signed their names they wanted to know what their fellow workers were giving, and what their bosses were giving. The first step in dragooning the staff into being acceptably charitable was to high-pressure the top echelon into a substantial contribution. The second step was to get the names of the best givers on the list first to impress the cheerless givers.

In some large corporations in the oil industry, consenting to a catch-all charitable deduction is a condition of employment. A certain small percentage is deducted from everybody's pay and the total divvied up among the "charities." This avoids all the loss of time and bother of sending lists around. It enables the United Fund to announce with a fanfare that this and that company have reported 100 per cent sign-ups of their staffs.

And now, as the Calgary survey showed, the seeds which will ultimately destroy these super-efficient fund raising drives are beginning to germinate.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Offer to Help

Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association is gratified by the large federal grant to the Government of British Columbia for the purchase of parkland. We note that a considerable portion of the grant has been ear-marked for acquisition of land near larger cities.

Accordingly, this Association urges the Provincial Government to authorize the Capital Regional Board to negotiate for the purchase of the watershed area north and west of Thetis Lake "Park." When agreement on a price has been reached, we urge the Provincial Government to advance the necessary funds to the Board. The Regional Board could undertake to repay, over a period of time, 50% of the loan.

This Association is prepared to donate for this purpose, as a memorial to the late Mrs. Kathie Porter, initially the sum of $8,000 (eight thousand dollars). We would also organize a public campaign to assist further loan repayment.

The private company which now owns the land will seek immediate action for development. Only purchase by a public body will prevent pollution of Thetis Lake that will be inevitable as a consequence of planned subdivision in this area. This is the conclusion of the Goldie Report, and is endorsed by our own studies.

Purchase now is urgent, with money made available to the Capital Regional Board. Purchase of these threatened acres would preserve the environmental quality of Thetis, would add unique habitats to Thetis "Park," and would compensate for vastly increased future use of the Park by a rapidly expanding population.

We ask concerned residents of British Columbia to write the Honorable Dan Campbell, Minister of Municipal Affairs, urging allocation of funds for the purchase of the threatened Thetis Lake Watershed. — L. J. Clark, for TPNSA.

Mute Swans

The statements of the Provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch are open to criticism.

Neither the Trumpeters nor the Whistling swans are "native to the area." It is doubtful if a nest of either has been found in British Columbia.

The Whistler migrates south. Rarely, a few will be seen in the late fall, but they are just passing through.

The idea of sterilizing the Mute swans, which are non-migratory, and replacing them with the wild swans could only have come from the provincial biologists. Some of their wild statements on this and other matters cannot be taken seriously.

The total of 122 Mute swans given by them is a bad guess. The number given in the Christmas Bird Count this year is 77, the highest ever recorded, and our local birders make genuine counts.—A. R. Davidson, 2144 Brighton Ave.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of Feb. 16, 1912:

Locked away in the strongroom aboard the R.M.S. Empress of India, Capt. Beetham, which arrived here this morning from Yokohoma, was one of the richest shipments of silk to find its way across the Pacific for some time. She had over 2,600 bales of raw silk and a number of packages of pongee and linen goods which are valued at $1,500,000. The big white liner remained here only about an hour, just sufficient time to permit the purser to clear the vessel and the Chinese disembarking here to land their baggage.

What the World Needs Now Is Sloth

By GERALD W. PAUL
United Church Observer

(Rev. Paul is director of studies at Iona College in Windsor, Ont.)

Middle-aged churchmen remember the Book of Proverbs for its emphasis on the evils of idleness. Sluggards (who are like vinegar to the teeth and smoke to the eyes) are instructed to model their lives after the hard-working ant. The fate of the idle is dire: a little sleep, a little folding of the hands to rest, and poverty will come upon you like a vagabond, and want like an armed man.

In our castigation of sloth, we often forget that the Old Testament is even harder on greed. The Ten Commandments forbid nothing that can be related to idleness. They come heavily down on the sins that stem from greed — stealing, covetousness, even adultery, murder and false witness.

The prophets bang away at the greedy rich; concerning idleness, they are mute. The Book of Proverbs tells us that the greedy man makes trouble for his family; he is likely to deny his Lord. Better a little wealth with justice than great wealth with injustice.

Jesus never tires of showing the sheer stupidity of men who greedily gather wealth and lose their souls. He specifically warns us of covetousness, and tells us to seek first the Kingdom of God.

Paul is as hard on the idle, in his letter to the Thessalonians, as any modern writer of letters to the editor: "If anyone will not work, let him not eat. For we hear that some of you are living in idleness, mere busybodies, not doing any work."

On the other hand, he writes to Timothy on greed: "The love of money is the root of all evil." In his catalogue of 19 sins in a second letter to Timothy, love of self and love of money head the list; sloth is not included.

The battle has been going on ever since, between the idle who ridicule the greedy, and see themselves as creative leisure lovers, and the greedy who castigate the idle, and describe themselves as ambitious workers. The early Church was hard on both of them. But by the time Pope Gregory got around to listing the seven deadly sins in the sixth century, avarice was near the top of the list, and sloth was not mentioned.

As commerce increased in the later Middle Ages, the Church spoke out still more strongly against greed. The anonymous author of Jacob's Well insists that "Avarice, like pride, is also the root of all sins." He compares the greedy man to an otter that kills more fish than it can eat. The 13th century scientist and philosopher Roger Bacon lists avarice at the head of the cardinal sins, and traces to it all other sins except anger.

By the time of the Puritans, the Church's emphasis had shifted. Shrewd commercialism and acquisitiveness, qualities earlier denounced as social vices, now seemed to be economic and moral virtues.

"Covetousness is a danger to the soul," says R. H. Tawney discribing the shift, "but not so grave a danger as sloth." As work and ever greater production were worshipped and blessed, idleness emerged as the worst vice. John Wesley inveighed increasingly against it: "An idle person is not suffered to remain in any of our societies; we drive him out as we would a thief or a murderer.'

"Among the more dedicated of Victorian capitalists," writes William May in Catalogue of Sins, "sloth was not simply one sin among others but the most dangerous of sins."

Like the Victorians, our society is hard on idleness and easy on greed. Vagrancy and loitering laws are rigidly enforced. We in the church are righteously indignant about those who see these sins the other way around.

Ministers of the Gospel, quoted in The Christian Century, call hippies parasites, non-contributors to society and religion, self-indulgence run wild, lazy, indifferent to the necessity of making something useful out of their lives, and irresponsible escapists lacking self-discipline.

The evil consequences of idleness should not be overlooked. Idleness leads to boredom, and boredom looks for kicks of the kind that require little effort.

Youth today have a very low threshold of boredom. With time on their hands and a little unearned money in their pockets, they try easy sex, easy drugs, easy university courses. The greater the boredom, the more the idle scrounge to find an instant interest which demands neither discipline nor excellence. So the kids have a Mosport or Woodstock, and pot smoke rises and the clothes come off.

There is some virtue, however, in discarding greed, which is the predominate vice of the hippies' parents. Idleness may be irritating, but greed threatens us with far more deplorable consequences.

Greed is responsible for graft, corruption, tax evasion, smuggling gambling, robbery, prostitution, swindling, fraud and murder. Greed-filled males marry their jobs and let the little woman bring up the children. And the youngsters grow up on the side of idleness because they can't stand the greedy, sticky fingers of their fathers.

Compared to the havoc created by elevating greed to a virtue, increasing idleness is good news. Violence, for example, is one of our biggest problems. What causes violence? Greed, not idleness; land hunger and trade disputes, not boredom and rock festivals. Try to imagine a hippie commune turning into a military regiment and singing "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition" as they go off to kill other human beings.

The devil finds work not for idle but for greedy hands. The idle won't work for either God or the devil. As for the greedy, they are adept at applying the work ethic as wholeheartedly in the direction of evil as in that of good.

With a second major problem, pollution, as with violence, the threat to society comes not from idleness but from greed. Greedy industry exploits our resources to make more money now.

Who polluted the Great Lakes with phosphates and mercury? The greedy. Who polluted the Atlantic coast with oil? The greedy. Who denuded the Sudbury basin with sulphur fumes and the Rocky Mountains with strip mining? Who polluted the streams of Northern Ontario with pulp effluents, and the prairies with potash dust? The greedy.

Who are the big consumers? The rich who have two or three cars, burn more gas, ride the planes, buy more junk. The idle can't afford it. They eat a little, smoke a pack of cigarettes, buy a few clothes at surplus stores. They may leave candy wrappers or pop bottles in the park, but the greedy ruin a thousand streams and kill Lake Erie.

"Most of the world's troubles seem to come from people who are too busy," Evelyn Waugh writes in The Seven Deadly Sins. "If only politicians and scientists were lazier, how much happier we should all be. The lazy man is preserved from the commission of almost all the nastier crimes."

Greed, not idleness, is the nastier crime in our society today. It's time to stop giving the idle a hard time, and to put the screws to the greedy. We have nothing to lose but our work ethic, our greed and much of the junk we've accumulated by the sweat of our brows.

Japan One Big Happy Family

By MARK FRANKLAND
The London Observer

TOKYO — Anyone who has lived abroad must have been to a party or a meal where other foreigners spent most of the time complaining about the peculiarities of their host country.

Conversations of this sort are a game and you do not have to be long in a country before you pick up the rules, which are nothing more than which are nothing more than a set of cliches about its inhabitants and their habits. Playing the game has its social uses of course: it takes little effort and can be indefinitely prolonged. Diplomatic dinner parties would be unbearable without it.

World's Richest

Some of the cliches have a good deal of truth in them, but that makes it all the more tempting for the newly-arrived foreigner to accept them as the whole truth without looking around for himself. Having just arrived in Japan and with little chance so far to learn the rules of the foreigner's Japan game I decided to put down my own first impressions of Tokyo, already the world's biggest and very likely soon to be the world's richest city.

Japanese look comfortable wearing their working dress or any sort of uniform, while the English often treat their working clothes as a sort of unwelcome fancy dress. In Tokyo the ticket collectors in the subway (they clip everyone's ticket even at rush hour, unlike those Ancient Mariners of London Underground) look like the ideal ticket collector. It is hard to imagine them having a life out of their uniform. Cooks, waiters and shop assistants are all the real thing, not just reluctant actors.

One reason may be that they get satisfaction out of their work. In the coffee shop of an ordinary Tokyo hotel the waiters move about with the purposefulness and speed that you find in only the best restaurants in London. In Japanese-style restaurants watching the food prepared and served is as much of a pleasure as eating it.

Liking work is probably not the only explanation. The Japanese also apparently like doing things together. Almost every night one or more of the eight television channels has a show in which performers and studio audiences sing songs and play games together. It is all very jolly and genuine, not at all like what usually passes for audience participation on Western television.

Liking being together is connected with being good at being together. I have never been anywhere where so many of the people seem to be constantly agreeing with each other.

Perhaps this knack of living together helps the Japanese to put up with the ugliness and discomfort of much of Tokyo life. Part of the trouble is that many Japanese seem not to realize that cities need not be like this. A Japanese woman said to me: "It was only when I went to Paris that I realized that cities could be beautiful and didn't have to look like Tokyo." Tokyo on a grey winter day and under a drizzle that is more like a poisonous polluted condensation than rain makes you wonder what has happened to Japan's celebrated aethetic sense.

Seductive Detail

It is still there, but in private and often small things. There are too few parks but the miniature gardens in front of buildings are superb. An ugly street can be a collection of seductive details, of small bars, cafes and shops where you are surrounded by politeness, warmth and pleasant things to see.

Obviously one of the first things to get straight about Japan is that the Japanese are a northern people. Westerners often think all Asians are the same, but the Japanese divide the world into north and south and it makes better sense.

Pink Cheeks

On winter mornings Japanese schoolchildren (in uniforms, of course) have pink cheeks. There is a type of Japanese face whose nose is almost aquiline. Japanese walk like northerners and get drunk like westerners. The jungles of South-East Asia are nearer the Japanese but not really any more familiar to them than they are to the British or the Dutch (which helps explain why such a fuss was made recently when a Japanese soldier returned to Tokyo after 27 years in the wilds of Guam).

It is hard to see how the Japanese could have taken so well to Western ways had they not been as much northerners as the Europeans and the Americans. Even so the peculiar fascination that Japan exerts rests on the balance between their Japaneseness and their "westernisation." The only Tokyo sight I have yet had time to see is the Meiji shrine, the monument to the emperor under whose rule 19th-century Japan decided to learn from the West.

The shrine has a treasure house in which clothes and objects used by the Emperor and Empress are displayed in a few simple glass showcases. Every Japanese object is matched by a Western one. Two pairs of the Emperor's Western military-style trousers, very large at the waist, are given as much importance as the imperial kimonos. The empress' many-layered Japanese court clothes are matched by two long European dresses, one pink and one blue. Delicate Japanese furniture is placed next to the heavy black European desk at which the Emperor worked.

Different Meanings

It is not so much a synthesis as an acceptance of two different things. What that means for the Japanese is hard to understand but one can start by imagining the effects of a Victoria and Albert memorial museum in London in which a mourning kimono hung beside one of the old queen's black dresses and Albert's military boots stood beside a pair of black, laquered Japanese shoes.

Slouching Toward a Dead Horse

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

There is something truly Canadian about the way our government has advanced half way toward membership in the Organization of American States just at a time when that organization is beginning to lose credibility among its Latin American and Caribbean members.

The OAS has decided, at Canada's request, to accord Canada permanent observer status. The External Affairs Department has announced that it will send a permanent observer mission to Washington, to be headed by a person of ambassadorial rank.

Canada has long resisted joining the OAS, largely because it was a United States-dominated organization in which Canada would either have to buckle under to U.S. decisions — such as the invasion of the Dominican Republic — and thereby be seen to be a flunky of our powerful neighbor, or be in constant and probably useless conflict with one of our closest allies and best customer.

During the past year the existing junior members of the OAS have been exhibiting increasing disillusionment with the association. An OAS study has informed the United States that it must be prepared to accept the movement toward socialism in some Latin-American countries, that it is "impossible and unsuitable to attempt to define a uniform strategy for all the countries of the region."

It found that despite the Alliance for Progress into which the United States has put an average of $353-million a year in development loans, agriculture had not significantly improved, housing was no better, unemployment worse.

There have been complaints of "economic aggression" by the United States, of U.S. protectionism which injured the trade of junior members. The three-year Secretary-General of the OAS said that Latin American countries "are becoming increasingly disillusioned in their relations with the wealthy industrial countries, and particularly with the United States."

So into this incipiently moribund organization, moves Canada, going in carefully by the back door so that it will not have to deal with the thorny issues that confront a genuine member. It is a stuffy, somewhat disgusting move, which will enlarge the External Affairs Department without increasing its usefulness.

Canada already has an ambassador in Washington. One is enough.

THE WINTER (BLUSH) THAT UNDID US

By JOHN NICHOL

The winter of 1971-72 has been a most embarrassing one for British Columbia. The land of milk and honey was frozen solid for two months.

Not only was it frozen but, worse than that, the rest of Canada knows all about it. The TV news has carried pictures of trapped railroad trains and snow blocked highways. Ice storms gut off hydro power. Wind storms toppled campers off the roads and entangled freighters in Vancouver Harbor.

On January 26th St. John's, Newfoundland, Halifax, Fredericton, Charlottetown, Ottawa and Montreal were all warmer than Vancouver! Victoria, the home of winter roses, was the same temperature as North Bay, Ontario! The whole image of the banana belt is being destroyed, and, as they say in Victoria, "It's just not flipping well good enough!"

There are further humiliations. Because major power transmission lines collapsed in the mountain valleys to the North and East of Vancouver, B.C. Hydro bought hydro power from the Yanks!! Here we are — Canadians — rich in natural resources, neighbors to the rapacious energy-short colossus to the south — actually buying power from America! It's hard to believe! Are British Columbians really ready to swallow their pride and go cap in hand to the U.S. power monopolies just for the sake of a little heat and light? You're damn right they are! But that's beside the point.

The real problem is that the freezing weather takes away the British Columbian's right to gloat. And a British Columbian who cannot gloat is like a sky diver without a 'chute. Depressed.

★ ★ ★

After all, why do people live in B.C.? There is no economic advantage. Everyone knows that Canada is run both from and for Toronto and Montreal. No, people live in B.C. for three reasons. First, because of the climate. Second, because of the scenery. And third, and most important, because they can boast to their fellow Canadians about the climate and the scenery.

But things are serious. The Tahitian music from the waterfront Polynesian restaurant drifts across the ice pack. The seagulls sit like frozen stockbrokers in a bear market. Nobody gloats.

It's too late to do anything about this winter but if it ever happens again, (this is a most unusual winter—everyone agrees) B.C. must be prepared. Several alternatives:

1. Preserve the right to gloat. Copy the world's great propaganda machines. Tell the rest of Canada only what it needs to hear. "There is no snow in the mountains. The trains are running. The daffodils are up. The crummy pinko liberal newscaster have been only running snow pictures to undermine the British Columbian's confidence in himself. They have been trying to destroy the tourist business and the B.C. way of life."

2. Start a "Snow is Beautiful" Campaign with slogans: "Take an Avalanche Victim to Lunch," "Snow is Never Having to Say You're Sorry."

Or 3. The federal government could start an Opportunities for Winter Travel Overseas Program — to be known, naturally, as OWTOP. For about $300,000,000 the entire population of B.C. could fly to Hawaii, sit on the beach, and initiate meaningful innovative programs in response to developing needs. (As they say in Ottawa.)

What do you say to your guests when your pie crust flops? "Pardon my pastry" or "I don't understand it, the crust just didn't turn out."

Now there's no need to apologize. You can have perfect pie crusts with our new two-pack of Gainsborough frozen pie shells. The pie shells come ready to use in their own individual pie plates.

All you do is take them from the freezer, fill them with apples or lemon filling or chiffon and bake them till they're golden. It's that easy. And you can dress them up with whipped cream or meringue. The result, scrumptious pies with light, flaky crusts. You can count on it.

Road Stripe Ads Win Wary Backing

Saanich aldermen favor a newspaper advertising campaign explaining the switch from white to yellow centrelines on streets and highways — but only if all other Greater Victoria municipalities share in the cost.

That was the view expressed at the public works committee Tuesday night, along with some reservations on the value of the exercise.

Similar opinions were expressed earlier in the day by Victoria city council's traffic committee.

The Saanich committee decided to recommend that council pay its $204 share of the cost of the ad in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, provided other municipalities do likewise.

But Ald. Edith Gunning said she couldn't see that one weekend's advertising was going to achieve very much by way of educating the motoring public.

And Ald. Frank Waring said flatly the advertising should have been tackled by the provincial government.

PAYMENTS 'BUILT ON SHIFTING SAND'

Alex Fraser (SC — Cariboo) accused Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick governments of deliberately having low minimum wage laws to depress the earning of their people.

Management of provincial resources contribute to high equalization payments to such provinces, Fraser said, stressing that B.C. isn't concerned only with Quebec but with wastage of money in the Maritimes as well.

He supported a guaranteed income plan to give money directly to poor people instead of governments.

Small Business Aids Suggested

Small businesses in British Columbia require incentives if they are to thrive, Don Marshall (SC — South Peace River) told the legislature Tuesday.

Marshall also proposed creation of a smal business research council to determine the needs of these businesses.

He noted manufacturing industries had developed in the Okanagan under the federal Area Development Incentive, Act, so there is precedent for incentives helping industry.

Officially, the provincial government opposes incentives to industry.

Marshall said he did not support creation of "hot house industries" without a valid economic base in B.C.

He also proposed creation of an office of a provincial marketing commissioner to increase domestic sales of B.C. agricultural products.

He said provisions of the Home Acquisition Act should be changed to eliminate the practice of placing encumbrances on property without the owner's knowledge.

MLA's Advice Free

The lawyer was Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) whom Mrs. Dawson had attacked in the legislature Friday for representing a group of hearing aid dealers challenging part of the new Hearing Aid Act requiring registration of dealers.

Dowding told Mrs. Dawson that if she had been his client he would have warned her "for her own protection" about saying outside the legislature anything that might be libelous.

The MLA said it was wrong for the minister to suggest he had "betrayed" anyone by representing the dealers in their attempt to avoid registration fees.

'JUDAS'

Mrs. Dawson said the MLA had been a "Judas" who betrayed "his friend and master" for "30 pieces of silver."

Dowding said Mrs. Dawson had sunk to a "degrading" level by criticizing him for doing his duty to a client as a lawyer. He also denied accepting any money from the dealers "for filling in their forms."

He suggested Mrs. Dawson had interfered without lawful authority in the affairs of the hearing aid board set up under the act.

Dowding said he had voted against the bill establishing the Hearing Aid law last year because he believes hearing aids should be provided free under the medicare plan.

Bea Wright Recipe

DELIGHTFUL CAKE DOUGHNUTS

4 eggs, beaten; ⅔ cup sugar, ½ cup milk, ⅓ cup shortening, melted; 3½ cups Woodward's sifted flour, 3 tsps. baking powder; 4 tsps. salt; 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. nutmeg.

Beat eggs and sugar until light; add milk and melted shortening. Sift together dry ingredients; add to first mixture and mix well. Chill dough thoroughly. On lightly floured surface, roll dough ⅜ inch thick. Cut with floured cutter; let stand 15 minutes. Fry in deep, hot fat, 375 deg., until brown, turning once. Drain on paper towels. While warm shake in sack containing ½ cup sugar and 1 to 2 tsps. cinnamon, if desired. Makes 1½ to 2 dozen.

TWISTS

Roll dough ⅛ inch thick. Cut strips ⅜ inch wide. Twist to form knots. Fry in deep, hot fat, 375 deg. Drain. Makes 30.

Alimony for Men Possible Under New B.C. Family Act

Men will have the same rights as women to seek maintenance payments from spouses under a new Family Relations Act introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.

The bill streamlines family court procedures, broadening powers of judges to make orders affecting family relations. It gives family courts jurisdiction in custody cases, currently limited to the B.C. Supreme Court.

Besides husbands getting the same rights as wives in seeking maintenance orders, common-law spouses and children are granted such rights for the first time.

Maintenance payments for common-law spouses, however, will be restricted to cases where there are children and maintenance will be payable only while children are under six years of age.

LIB CONCESSION

Peterson explained this limit by saying the intent of the new provision is that common-law spouses with children won't be forced to work while the children are of pre-school age.

The attorney-general jokingly described the equality of right for husbands to seek maintenance as a concession to women's liberationists, but hastened to explain he hadn't had any pressure from them.

Expanded powers for judges to make orders include orders that a husband or wife is no longer bound to live with a spouse; custody of a child to one spouse or the other; reasonable access of one parent to a child under conditions to be ordered; prevention of a spouse from entering the premises of an estranged spouse.

Peterson said enforcement of maintenance orders should be more effective in future because of simplified court procedures.

Maintenance of dependent parents will undergo a procedural change from a "quasi-criminal" process to an application process, Peterson said.

The maximum amount payable under the section will be raised from $20 to $40 a week.

The new bill reduces substantially the volume of legislation on the subject of family relations as well as codifying it, Peterson said.

The new bill will result in the repeal of the existing Divorce and Matrimonial Causes Act, the Parents' Maintenance Act, the Reciprocal Enforcement of Maintenance Orders Act and the Wives and Children's Maintenance Act.

Divorce provisions will be made to conform with recent changes in federal divorce laws, Peterson said.

NEW district commissioner of cubs and scouts in the Cedar Hill area is Gordon Boyd, who was installed at a district council meeting Tuesday night.

Day Care Facilities Rise Across Province

The number of day-care centres in British Columbia increased from 78 to 126 in 1971, Minister Without Portfolio Pat Jordan said Tuesday.

Days of care offered were 100,000, up 40 per cent over 1970, she told the legislature.

Mrs. Jordan indicated the provincial government will continue its inter-departmental approach to regulation and financial aid for day-care centres, but noted that the federal royal commission on the status of women had recommended a provincial child care board be set up.

Such a board will be established in future only if it will bring benefits to the children, Mrs. Jordan said, stressing that day-care centres should be primarily for benefit of children.

The minister also attacked federal government tax concessions on child-care expenses as "half-baked" because the allowable $500 child-care deduction is too small.

A widowed mother with two pre-school age children would pay $1,500 to $1,700 a year in child-care expenses, she said.

Mrs. Jordan said the $500 deduction appears to be aimed at "flushing out" a lot of part-time working mothers who haven't been reporting their earnings.

Poll Causes Jam

SYDNEY (Reuter) — City bound traffic was jammed up for miles in Sydney Tuesday— by officials stopping motorists to hand them questionnaires designed to speed traffic in the city.

Come Home, Joe

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 22-year-old Saanich man who stole from his employer, then turned himself into police, was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation in provincial court Tuesday.

Christopher Lorne Charles Albertson, of 352 Gorge Road East, also was ordered to repay within a year the $153.50 still owing his employer, Larry's Service Station, 2200 Quadra.

Police said Albertson used a key to enter the premises at 3 a.m. Feb. 2, then broke a window to make it appear that a burglary had occurred.

Credit cards, $185.05 in cash and $8 in cheques were stolen from a storeroom.

Fifteen minutes after the theft, Albertson called his employer to report it, then turned himself in to police half an hour later.

* * *

Lance Gooderham, 20, of 51 Boyd, was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation for attempted armed robbery.

Gooderham, who told police later he considered his crime "stupid and juvenile," was convicted of demanding money at knife-point from a juvenile in the yard of Sir James Douglas school on the evening of Feb. 2.

* * *

A 23-year-old American citizen was fined $750 or ordered to spend three months in jail for possession of a narcotic Feb. 4.

Walter Hofmann, who gave as his address a local hotel and who told police he was a laborer, was arrested in a bathroom with a female while in the process of injecting heroin.

Judge William Ostler said he knew the accused had the funds, so was giving him only one day to pay the $750.

* * *

Jose Carmona, 18, of 1728 Newton, was given a suspended sentence and placed on 18 months' probation on a charge of mischief.

Ostler said Carmona's presentence report contained a "hair-raising account of a bad trip" after the accused injected cocaine, and hoped Carmona would view the experience as a deterrent to further drug use.

* * *

George Hubacek, 26, of Port Alberni, was fined $250 when he was found guilty following trial on a charge of obstructing a police officer.

Police testified Hubacek and another passenger in a car stopped on Niagara Street Dec. 14 obstructed police efforts to take the driver to the police station on suspicion of impaired driving.

* * *

George Fisher, 36, of 664 Lamby, was fined $100 for assaulting the assistant manager of the Tudor House beer parlor Dec. 3 The victim suffered a broken nose in the fracas.

* * *

In traffic court, Judge E. F. N. Robinson fined Walter Price Scott $350 and imposed a four-month partial driving ban after the accused pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Police said Scott, 37, of 3334 Tennyson, was involved in a rear-end collision on Bay Street at 6:45 a.m. Dec. 4.

* * *

Mark Conrad McGilvery, 54, of 2523 Wark St., was sentenced to 14 days in jail and prohibited from driving for six months for impaired driving.

The accused was stopped for erratic driving on Gorge Road at 1:45 a.m. Jan. 21. A breath test showed a blood-alcohol reading of .23.

Ecuador President Ousted for Fourth Time; Exiled to Panama

QUITO (AP) — Ecuador's military chiefs ousted President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra Tuesday night for the fourth time in his career and sent him off to Panama. The purpose of the coup apparently was to prevent the election of a radical to the presidency.

Brig. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara, who was rewarded with command of the army after putting down an attempt to overthrow Velasco last April, declared himself president.

The presidential election is scheduled for June, and Velasco, now 78, had promised to hand over his office Aug. 31 to whoever was elected. The candidate of the radical Concentration of Popular Forces, Assad Bucaram, was believed certain to defeat the conservative candidate, Carlos Arizaga Vega.

Velasco learned that the bloodless coup was under way Tuesday night and flew to Guayaquil on the coast, where he tried to broadcast to the country. But navy officers arrested him before he could get to the microphone and held him incommunicado until they put him aboard a military plane for Panama.

In a 13-point announcement, the new president put the country under a state of siege and martial law, suspended the schools, banned demonstrations, imposed a 9 p.m.-4 a.m. curfew, forbade transmission of news "liable to disturb the public peace and the citizenry," and put all public services under military rule.

He said the coup was necessary because of "misgovernment and chaos" under Velasco, a five-time president.

Political instability is characteristic of Ecuador's history. In 115 years, the country has had 16 constitutions and in one recent 23-year period had 22 different presidents, dictators or ruling juntas.

Boycott Faces Mission

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's Labor party is considering boycotting a proposed all-party parliamentary delegation to Rhodesia because Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith objects to its nominees, informed sources said Tuesday.

Smith has informed the British government that he is unwilling to accept an all-party mission. Nominees include former defence minister and now Labor's chief spokesman on foreign affairs, Denis Healey; a left-wing Labor MP and member of the party's policy-making national executive committee, Joan Lestor; and a leading Liberal party MP, David Steel.

Britain's deputy foreign secretary, Joseph Godber, disclosed Smith's reaction to the Labor and Liberal nominees when questioned in Parliament.

The British government had consulted Smith about sending a delegation to Rhodesia to observe how a British-appointed commission was testing public reaction to independence settlement terms.

At a subsequent meeting, the Labor party's "shadow cabinet" rejected the idea that Smith should decide who would be represented on a British parliamentary delegation. They decided that, if they had interpreted Smith's attitude correctly, they should not co-operate in any way with the proposed mission.

School Budget: A Balancing Act

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

Budget, Budget, Budget.

The mere mention of the word these days within the boundaries of the Greater Victoria school district is enough to make school trustees wince.

It seems the longer the school board thinks about its troublesome 1972 budget, the more time and energy it puts into finding a way out of the financial maze, the more complicated and intricate the situation becomes — so much so that it sooner or later confounds even the best-acquainted.

Tuesday night was a perfect example. The school board has decided to publish an advertisement in the two local daily newspapers, which will supposedly explain the situation of the 1972 operating budget to Joe Taxpayer.

However, the situation is so confused now that in trying to get it straight for the newspaper ad, the board had difficulty getting its own figures straight in the minds of its own trustees.

REFERENDUM SET

In general terms, the situation is this...

On March 11, the owner-electors (Those people who own property in School District No. 61, Greater Victoria) will vote on a referendum which seeks $412,000, money the board needs to make up the difference between what it will be allowed to spend and what it is likely to get in funds.

If the referendum passes, there is no more problem. The board has already made substantial cuts in its budget, just to get spending down to the level previously allowed.

But if the referendum fails, look out. Board chairman Allan McKinnon has said he doesn't want to threaten voters with hints of a drastic cutback in services. So the board doesn't want to threaten, just set out the facts for all to see.

But one fact is that trustees still have not decided exactly what they propose to do away with if the owner-electors turn down their plea for the $412,000.

CHOPPING BLOCK

However, we are not completely in the dark. The district administration has prepared a list of the areas in which budget cuts are most likely and it is from this list that trustees will hack and cut and slice and end up with the magic figure of $412,000.

The list of possible cuts comes to more than $500,000. So next Monday night, the most likely candidates for the chopping block will be prepared, hopefully once and for all.

Some of the possible candidates: research projects, $4,000; reduce family life (sex education) program, $8,000; supervisory and office staff cuts, $24,000; reduce special counselling, $24,000; department head status, $34,000; 10 temporary teachers out as of April 1, $56,000; 23 teachers as of Sept. 1, $92,000; swim program, $8,000; computer math course. $3,000. The list goes on and on. In order for the board to come up with a cutback of $412,000 (presuming the refereundum fails) many of the above mentioned items will go.

To see how a sampling of the district's taxpayers feel about the situation, the school board carried out a survey. Of 512 persons contacted (each person an owner-elector) the response was a healthy 88 per cent.

SURVEY FINDINGS

The survey asked if owner-electors agree with the government's move to reduce educational spending by cutting down on the limit of allowable spending by school districts. Forty-six per cent said they did not agree, 38 per cent said they did and 16 per cent were undecided.

Should the board make up the difference between what it budgeted for and what it is allowed to spend? Thirty-five per cent said the board should makeup the difference (and remember that the owner-electors pay the shot), 55 per cent said it should not, and 10 per cent were undecided.

As far as owner-electors' opinions of spending levels are concerned, the survey indicated that 37 per cent of the people feel the school board is spending about the right amount of money, 25 per cent feel the level of spending is too high, 10 per cent feel it is too low and 28 per cent could not make up their minds.

Of the 97 owner-electors who indicated the specific area they feel should be cut if necessary, the most— 29 — felt it should come out of sports. Another 11 felt physical education could be cut back.

Other areas, with numbers of owner-elector preferences: construction costs, 17; administrative costs, 11; home economics; 11; teacher costs, 9; counselling services, 6; and sex education, 6.

PRINCIPALS POLLED

In a similar sampling of opinion, principals of the district's schools were asked to suggest ways to save money in school operation expenses.

The most expendable item, according to the 43 principals who replied (53 were contacted) was the swim program. It gathered 21 "votes." That is, 21 principals felt it should be reduced or eliminated.

Other major expendables listed were: supervisors of instruction (reduction), 16; special counsellors (reduction), 15; data processing in elementary schools (reduction), 13; band and string music programs in elementary schools (reduction), 12 each.

The next step in the complicated situation takes place tonight in the gymnasium of Mount Douglas high school. The occasion is an open meeting on educational spending, with guest speakers from the Social Credit and Conservative parties and board chairman McKinnon giving the board's viewpoint.

Many residents have indicated their displeasure with the way the budget situation has been handled, both by the school board and by the government. The meeting should be interesting. It starts at 8 p.m., 3970 Gordon Head Road.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Harassment Charged

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Auto Parts Manufacturers Association of Canada says member companies report increasing cases of apparent harassment by United States customs officials.

Several firms report the added attention to their auto-parts shipments appears to stem from regulations being enforced to the hilt during Canada-U.S. trade talks which include the auto pact.

Documentation accepted in the past now was being challenged.

Improvement Forecast

VANCOUVER (CP) — The vice-president and general manager of Canadian Acceptance Corp. Ltd., Frank Hall of Toronto, said he and his company believe 1972 will see improvement in the economy.

"Our optimism is based on factual consideration," Hall said in an interview. "People don't lease and don't borrow unless they can handle the obligation.

"Without going into details, I can say that we have had some exciting deals since the first of the year. We have been privileged to provide funds to businesses in large amounts. This suggests to us there is more confidence in the economy. Firms are making commitments."

Neptune Bid Rejected

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — City council turned down a request by Neptune Terminals Ltd. to resume bulk sulphur loading along the waterfront.

The company had asked for a two-month trial period of the loading to experiment with a new method of sulphur handling it said would cut down dust pollution.

Ald. S. A. Dean said the request could be "the thin edge of the wedge" if it were granted and added she wanted to see all bulk-loading eventually take place at Roberts Bank.

Skating Star Sells His Firm

OAKVILLE (CP) — Otto Jelínek, president of Canadian Skate Industries, says he has sold controlling interest in the business to Servotronics Inc. of Buffalo, N.Y. He said he had been unable to raise expansion capital in Canada.

The price was not disclosed.

The skate-manufacturing firm has 50 employees. Servotronics manufacturers components for the aircraft industry.

In 1962 Jelinek and his sister Maria, natives of Czechoslovakia, won the world figure-skating pairs championship for Canada.

Welders Go Free

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — As many as 100 prisoners of the Maryland House of Correction will soon have the chance to work their way out of prison with welding torches. The state parole board has agreed to free convicts within a year of scheduled release or parole hearing if they complete a 10-week welding course.

Andrews Firm Granted Injunction

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Andre Nadeau of the Quebec Superior Court granted a temporary injunction Tuesday preventing hearing of charges against the Montreal brokerage firm of Holland Andrews Perrier and Co. Ltd.

The charges were laid by the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges following an investigation launched by the exchanges and the Quebec government into the Quebec securities industry.

The injunction was granted just as the board of the two exchanges began a closed hearing on the charges against Holland Andrews.

Besides obtaining the injunction, the brokerage firm filed a damage action of $6.7 million against the exchanges and 24 individuals.

Lawyer Claude-Armand Sheppard, representing Holland Andrews, told a news conference the damage action results from a series of "technical charges" that had been made against his client by the exchanges and individuals connected with the exchanges.

Judge Nadeau granted the injunction for a 10-day period after which the court will hear arguments on the question of the issuance of a permanent injunction to prevent further hearings.

Mr. Sheppard said he expects the court proceedings to be of lengthy duration.

Aquitaine

Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd. reports net earnings of $17.56 million (85.2 cents a share) for the year ended Dec. 31, up from $16.9 million (82.1 cents) during the period in 1970.

Gross income for 1971 was $27 million compared with $26.68 million.

The company has started operating the first stage of its Ram River gas plant in central Alberta, where production will be increased gradually.

IAC

IAC Ltd., Canada's largest consumer and industrial finance company, has acquired a substantial equity interest in International Capital Corp. Ltd., established in 1968.

International Capital Corp. is a Montreal-based private company engaged in merchant banking and financial consulting services. Other shareholders are Royal Bank of Canada and United Corp. Ltd.

Cream

A new induced polarization survey shows an anomaly on the X claim group said to be an extension of Western Mines Ltd. price zone, reports Cream Silver Mines Ltd., which has central Vancouver Island property.

The zone will be drilled as soon as conditions permit, said Cream president Frank A. Lang, Vancouver.

Western is mining copper-zinc ore bodies in its area, which appears to strike southward to the Cream Silver property five miles away. Western is doing the exploration work by agreement with Cream.

Gr. Plains

Net earnings in 1971 of $4.3 million ($1.37 a share) compared with $4.2 million ($1.32) a year earlier is reported by Great Plains Development Co. of Canada Ltd.

Revenue of $11.6 million was up 9 per cent over the previous year.

Great Plains acquired an additional 3.5 million acres of exploratory permits in the Arctic islands during 1971, increasing the company's Arctic holdings to nearly five million acres.

IBM

IBM Canada Ltd. had increased earnings for 1971 amounting to $30.7 million, up from $21.9 million in 1970.

J. E. Brent, chairman of the board, noted that significant expansion and growth in sales in income were contributing factors.

Homestead

Canadian Homestead Oils Ltd. earned $134,000 (2.9 cents a share) during the six months ended Nov. 30 compared with $188,000 (four cents) during the period in 1970.

Gross income was $1.4 million, up from $1.26 million.

The company said decline in first-half cash flow and earnings was "largely attributable to higher interest charges resulting from the refinancing of the company's long-term debt last May."

Western R.

Continuation of its average 25 per cent annual growth rate is expected by Western Realty Projects Ltd., which is negotiating for considerable expansion in Metro Toronto area.

President Samuel Belzberg said the last three years has shown growth exceeding 25 per cent a year.

Operating net in 1971 was $2.56 million (39.8 cents a share) compared with $1.86 million (29 cents) before a special 1970 gain of $2.48 million (39 cents) on the sale of Western's pet food division.

Belzberg said the company is the fourth largest development firm in Canada in terms of earnings.

Gr. Northern

Great Northern Capital Corp. Ltd. in 1971 showed a revenue gain from $32.4 million to $35 million and net income of $5 million, up $1.77 million.

The company said share income rose from $1.39 to $2.14, a 53 per cent improvement from 1970.

Canbrew

Canadian Breweries Ltd. reports net earnings before extraordinary items for the six months ended Dec. 31, of $5 million (19.9 cents a share) compared with $5.3 million (19.4 cents) in 1970.

The company also had an extraordinary loss of $215,000 (one cent) resulting from the sale of its Cleveland plant.

Consolidated sales during the period totalled $210.29 million compared with $202.55 million a year earlier.

For the quarter ended Dec. 31, net earnings after the extraordinary loss were $2 million (7.3 cents) compared with $2.3 million.

Comaplex

Contract mineral exploration is expected to provide $800,000 revenue for Comaplex Resources International Ltd. in 1972, said president C. A. Chappel, of Calgary.

The company has its own plans for extensive hard rock exploration and petroleum work this year, for which $150,000 working capital is also available.

There are properties in northeastern and southeastern Saskatchewan, B.C.'s Highland Valley, central and southern Alberta and off the Atlantic coast. The La Ronge prospect is being drilled now at a cost of $180,000.

Anaconda

The Anaconda Co. reports a net loss of $8.75 million (40 cents a share) in 1971 before deducting an extraordinary net charge of $348.52 million ($15.92) related primarily to the expropriation of its copper mining investments in Chile.

The 1971 loss compared with 1970 earnings of $68 million ($3.11) excluding any extraordinary charges the 1971 loss was $357.27 million ($16.32) compared with 1970 net income of $63.78 million ($2.91).

The company said that in addition to the loss of Chilean income, 1971 earnings were adversely affected by lower average market prices for primary copper and by softness in the economy.

Goodyear

Consolidated earnings of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd. in 1971 more than doubled from $3.29 million to $7.75 million on sales of $185.4 million against $175.65.

The company said debt interest and depreciation were lower and deferred tax credit was higher, producing net earnings a share of $29.21 compared with $11.85.

Retained earnings rose from $49.26 million to $56 million.

Weldwood

Weldwood of Canada Ltd. reports net income for 1971 of $2.6 million, from a loss of $930,000 in 1970.

Earnings after preference share dividends were $1.98 million (56 cents a share). In 1970, the company reported a loss of $1.39 million (46 cents).

Sales reached a record $151.39 million, a rise of 26 per cent. Earnings fell far short of the record set in 1968 with $6.38 million ($2.10).

Mine Chief Blasts Land Use Critics

VANCOUVER (CP) — The mining industry's security of title to land is under attack by a "socialist-oriented bureaucracy that will not be satisfied until it has achieved absolute control of all resources and all resource development," the Mining Association of British Columbia was told.

Thomas H. McClelland, president of Placer Development Ltd., told delegates to the association's 51st annual meeting:

"These same bureaucrats, if allowed to implement their plans, will in the foreseeable future have eliminated title to mining land and to timber for mining use.

B.C. RESPONSE 'PETULANT'—NDP

The B.C. government will appear petulant and vindictive all across Canada as a result of its threat to challenge equalization payments in the courts, Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) charged Tuesday.

Dowding told the legislature that Attorney-General Leslie Peterson had retaliated as "a small Canadian" to Prime Minister Trudeau's description of Premier Bennett as "a bigot.'

Trudeau made the remark during a speech Saturday and Peterson, replying to it on Monday, announced that B.C. would challenge the federal government's equalization payment system in the courts.

Dowding said he was in favor of redistribution of tax revenue to help poorer areas of Canada.

Trudeau's "insult" should have been ignored, MLA said, describing Peterson's reaction as "a petulant, empty threat."

But all across Canada it willl appear that the threat was made just because Trudeau called Bennett a bigot, Dowding said, adding:

"You brought it entirely to the personal level of vindictiveness — it was a scurrilous response."

Saying he could find no legal grounds for a challenge of the federal government's right to make equalization payments, Dowding said:

"At least with the topless question there was something to see. There's nothing here to have a legal argument over."

He was referring to an earlier Peterson threat to crack down on topless female dancers in nightclubs.

'Will There Be Caboose Named Waldo?'

If the Pacific Great Eastern Railway becomes the British Columbia Railway, will its cabooses be named after Industrial Development Minister Waldo Skillings, Garde Gardom L — Vancouver - Point Grey) asked Tuesday.

The act will change the name of the PGE to the BCR. It received second reading on a voice vote.

Gardom asked the government whether after the PGE changes its name, the government would start naming various railway cars after cabinet ministers?

"And if so, will there be a caboose named Waldo?" he asked.

Earlier, Opposition Leader Dave Barrett opposed the name change because he said it would break a link with provincial history.

Barrett said the railway has been the object of much affection, sarcasm and humor in B.C.'s past, and he said he wouldn't like to see the name changed now.

Changing the name to the BCR, he said, "loses the continuity that I think is essential in teaching the history of this province. The names themselves give us some roots."

Barrett said the ability to reach back into history makes people better able to face the future.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer supported the bill, saying the "past that we have had is very short compared with the future we will have" through the railway.

He said the name change is appropriate to show the railway is an instrument of the provincial government.

Robert Wenman (SC — Delta) said changing the name doesn't necessarily mean breaking with the past.

He noted when Barrett married, he changed his wife's name, "but that didn't wipe out her past."

The house broke into loud laughter, and Wenman amended his statement to say, "But a very honorable past, Mr. Speaker."

Premier Bennett closed the debate saying the railway's name should be changed for many reasons. He added he could agree with Barrett and McGeer on some of their points.

Bennett said the railway frequently gets confused with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, a United States utility.

He added the name change is not being made to glorify the government.

The house also adjourned debate on second reading of a bill to increase the borrowing capacity of the PGE to $340 million from $240 million.

Second reading debate on a bill to permit a further $25 million share purchase by the province of PGE stock also was adjourned.

Hydro Gets Bulk Of Pension Funds

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority received almost all of the Canada Pension Plan money placed under Premier Bennett's control in the past year and a half, Bennett disclosed Tuesday.

Of CPP money invested since May 1, 1971, $213 million went to Hydro and $9.1 million to the B.C. School Districts Capital Financing Authority, Bennett reported in answers to written questions from Bob Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat).

The premier is the trustee of the money which is collected from residents of British Columbia under the pension plan.

Hydro now has received more than $500 million of the $647 million CPP funds invested by Bennett to date.

School financing has received $81 million to date and hospitals $40 million. Bennett provided substantial funds for school and hospital loans from his new perpetual funds in the past year, making more CPP cash available to Hydro.

LOG SALVAGE OPERATIONS FOR PROBE

The legislature's forestry committee has been asked to study log salvage operations in the Strait of Georgia and tree farm licences.

The house Tuesday approved a motion activating the committee. The motion was sponsored by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

It said the committee will study the contractor clause in tree-farm licences, log and debris salvage in the Straits of Georgia and the apparent oversupply of chips from sawmill operations.

Welfare Total Lower

The number of persons receiving social assistance in B.C. declined by 29,000 between January and November of last year, Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi reported Tuesday.

There were 148,360 persons on social assistance in January and 119,719 in November, Gaglardi disclosed in reply to written questions from Eileen Dailly (NDP — Burnaby North).

The figures show a steady month-by-month decline through the year until November, when there was a slight increase to 119,719 from 118,158 the previous month.

There were 139,672 in April, 127,968 in July and 122,885 in September.

The caseload, defined as the number of heads of families and individual social assistance recipients, dropped from 67,753 to 56,699 from January to November.

Figures for December 1971 aren't available yet, Gaglardi reported.

In other answers, Gaglardi said there were 528 charges of defrauding his department of social assistance monies during 1971, involving $422,767.

There were 288 convictions, involving $152,928.

A total of 16,645 persons receive supplementary social allowance payments from the department, he said, including 1,283 who get the maximum amount of $38.59 a month.

Antiques Stolen

A value of $4,719 has been placed on antiques and other items stolen last Wednesday night from Old House Antiques, 1040 Fort.

Police said Tuesday thieves broke a window to gain entry and made off with such items as cutlery, ivory pipes and cigar holders.

Province Subsidizing Tahsis, Charges NDP

The provincial government should cancel the letters patent of the village of Hahsis and end the subsidy they bring to the Tahsis Company, James Lorimer (NDP — Burnaby-Willingdon) said Tuesday.

Because there are only about six title holders in the area, Lorimer told the legislature, municipal status for the village lets the company escape from responsibility for providing essential services.

Lorimer said municipal status brought the per capita grant to the village which the Tahsis Company is using to pay for water, sewer and similar services which it should have to provide.

The residents can't vote on money bylaws, he added, because they rent land from the Tahsis Company. When the company raises rents, the people have no choice but to pay or leave town, Lorimer said.

"Instant towns such as Tahsis are all right as long as people buy land and participate in government and the company doesn't own most of the land," he said.

But this isn't the way it is in Tahsis, and the situation amounts to "welfare on a grand scale," he said.

Neighbors Stare At Sparlins

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — Not many people ring the front doorbell at the Melvin Sparlin home anymore. When Wilma Sparlin takes her young children out for a walk, many people on the street stare but do not speak.

The Sparlins, who are white, are the adoptive parents of a black girl. Many of their neighbors in Alton, across the Mississippi from St. Louis, are finding that hard to accept.

"But I haven't lost anything," says Mrs. Sparlin. "If this makes friends stay away, then anyone who would shun us because we have adopted a black child doesn't want us anyway."

The Sparlins have three other children besides their black daughter, Denise, who celebrated her second birthday last week. Brent, 17, is the couple's natural child and John, 15, and Julie, 4, are adopted.

"The other children don't notice any difference between Denise and themselves," Mrs. Sparlin said. "It's the adults who make kids notice things like that."

Bruins Boost Home Streak, Rangers Jump on Canucks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins have won 40 of their 57 games played so far this season in the National Hockey League, and tied nine. They also have a comfortable eight-point lead in the East Division over New York Rangers.

But coach Tom Johnson is still worried.

The Bruins dumped California Golden Seals 6-3 Tuesday night and extended their home unbeaten streak to 23 games. Why then is Johnson worried?

His team is embarking on a six-game road trip and that is what has the Boston coach uneasy. He considers that trip "crucial."

"You bet your life it is," Johnson said Tuesday night after his Bruins disposed of the Seals before the usual sellout crowd at the Boston Garden.

STAY IN RANGE

New York apparently feels the same way too. The Rangers downed Vancouver Canucks 5-1 Tuesday night to stay within range of the Bruins. In another game, Chicago Black Hawks edged St. Louis Blues 3-2.

Defenceman Bobby Orr picked up four assists in the first period to lead the Bruins to their victory over the Seals. The victory moved the Bruins within five games of tying the NHL record for the longest home-ice unbeaten string. Montreal set the mark of 28 in the 1943-44 season.

"We aren't thinking of any records; we're just trying to win games," Johnson said.

WALTON GETS TWO

Orr's blistering shots set up goals by Johnny Bucyk and Derek Sanderson in the first 4½ minutes. Sanderson got another goal later, while Mike Walton also collected two goals, his 20th and 21st, with the help of rebounds of Orr shots. Orr now has 62 assists, tops in the league.

Two former Bruins figured in the scoring for the Seals. Wayne Carleton got California's second goal in the second period and Ivan Boldirev got the third Seal goal in the third. Gary Croteau was the other California scorer.

Jean Ratelle, enjoying one of his most productive seasons, scored three goals—his 37th, 38th and 39th—in pacing the Rangers to their win over the Canucks.

Ratelle scored the first two New York goals, his first coming at the 13-second mark of the game when he knocked in Rod Gilbert's rebound. His second came in the final minute of the second period when he scored on the short side from 20 feet. His final goal was in an empty net when Vancouver pulled goalie Dunc Wilson for a sixth attacker.

Bobby Schmautz scored Vancouver's goal, tying the score 1-1 early in the second period, but New York came back with four unanswered goals—three of them in the third period.

Just a Little Luck Can Often Help a Lot

Back in Alberta they are calling the Hec Gervais rink, the team of destiny. The reason is that he is considered fortunate to be where he is. Out here on the Island there could be comparable situations, depending on where the loyalties lie; or, good curling and a little luck can sometimes go a long way together.

Which is by way of introducing the Consols playdowns, the competition leading to the Brier.

The weekend news was that Gervais, a former champion (1961) had won the northern Alberta title, and the right to compete in the provincial playdowns for a Brier berth.

Meanwhile, in Victoria two rinks skipped by Moe Hill and Gary Leibel, are standing by, waiting weekend action at Hollyburn in Vancouver in the Pacific Coast Curling Association playoffs.

The winner will meet Kevin "Duke" Smale, last year's provincial representative. He has qualified by winning the interior playdowns.

And the story of how they all got there is just as interesting as what might happen next.

First to the locals. The Moe Hill rink gained the Island finals the hard way by coming up through "B" event, and in the clutch match they overcame a season-long hex. They defeated Bob Gallaugher, who previously had defeated them six straight times. But this time it was loser out, and Hill made one spectacular all-or-nothing shot through a narrow port to take command and eventually eliminate Gallaugher. The other six games suddenly meant nothing, not even an "A" side defeat by Gallaugher.

Leibel Got a Miss and a Rub

Leibel did it the other way. He won "A" in the Lower Island, but didn't qualify easily. It was one miss by Dick Samson, the first by him in the game, that gave Leibel the break he needed. And he jumped in. He had rallied from a 9-6 deficit to score two on the 11th, and was attempting to steal in the 12th. Samson got narrow and missed the crucial shot. That forced an extra end and Leibel won it with another steal.

That put him in the Island finals, and yet another close call. He was coming up through "B" side, when he met Freddie Duncan.

And again for Leibel it was score on the 12th, and then steal on the 13th. Which he did, but not the way it was planned. If he could get by a Duncan rock with a draw he would be partially buried. But he got heavy, rubbed a Duncan rock, and suddenly was buried very deep. Too deep for Duncan to get at. And as the losers would say: "Leibel had sneaked in."

"Try this for size, the Friendly Giant was down to his last life, and he was up against a bunch of souped-up kids from the Granite led by Brian Steilo. They were tied coming home and Brian had the hammer. There was just one rock in the house, Gervais' last one biting the back of the eight foot. Anywhere within the eight foot would do for Steilo. But halfway down his rock lost its turn and Hector stayed alive."

Lost Turn That Turned Into Title

Later came another apparent Gervais' life saver when he was matched against his one-time second, Bob Hawkins, in the "B" qualifying round. It was only the fifth end, but Hawkins was ahead and lying shot when Gervais went for a takeout. He was wide, and might have blown it, but his rock picked up something along the way, cut over and slowed down at the same time and darted in behind a guard for shot rock. Hawkins couldn't get at it, and Gervais took a three and control.

And now he's in the Alberta finals. Again.

For the all-time fantastic turn of events, however, local curlers can still recall vividly the PCCA Consols playdowns here in 1964. It was Lyall Dagg against Roy Vinthers, in a playoff. And it was Dagg who had fought back to tie the score at 9-9 after trailing 8-3 at the end of six ends. And now it was the 12th and final end. Dagg had put his last rock on the tee line, half hidden behind a long guard. Vinthers took the same path and when his rock was in front of the house it was curling in towards Dagg's rock, and Vinthers was almost a winner.

Then suddenly, Vinthers' stone lost its turn, straightened out, barely grazed Dagg's rock and slid by. Dagg had won, and history records the fact that he went on from there to win the Brier and the world championship.

For Gervais, or Leibel, or Hill, it could be that kind of a year ahead. At least they qualify on the theory that sometimes things work out that way. Ask Lyall Dagg.

Kings Share Second Place

It was obvious that Edmonton Oil Kings were determined to make a comeback.

The former champions of the Western Canada Hockey League had slipped to third place in the western division but rebounded Tuesday night to tie for second —and in winning they scored five consecutive goals in the third period to break a tie.

Edmonton downed Winnipeg Jets 8-4 and in other games Regina Pats beat Medicine Hat Tigers 6-5, Saskatoon Blades defeated Swift Current Broncos 5-3 and Flin Flon Bombers trounced Brandon Wheat Kings 4-2.

The Oil King victory gave them 66 points in a tie with New Westminster Bruins, nine points behind Calgary Centennials. Edmonton has four games in hand over New Westminster.

Brian Ogilvie scored three goals for the winners, playing at home, and Henry Van Drunen added two while Darcy Rota scored one, plus five assists as Edmonton's second line produced the club's first six goals of the game. Marcel Comeau and Terry Smith scored the others.

The Broncos, playing at home, got a goal from Del Beich who plays midget hockey in Swift Current. It was his first WCHL goal and he had been on the ice for only about 40 seconds.

Meanwhile, Victoria Cougars take on Vancouver Nats in one of two Western Division games scheduled tonight.

Younger fans will have an opportunity to watch the Cougar game, which starts at 8 in Memorial Arena, free of charge. The first 500 children under the age of 14 admitted through the pass gate will not have to pay.

FAR FROM HAPPY at Toronto Tuesday night, Arthur Ashe drops to knees after missing shot in singles contest of open tennis tournament. Sixth-seeded Ashe was upset by unseeded Graham Stillwell. Scores were 6-4, 6-4.

Arthur Doesn't Enjoy Competition in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Tennis star Arthur Ashe did a United States state department tour of Africa two years ago but if President Nixon ever asked him to do one in Canada, he'd probably refuse.

"I should stay away from Canada—I've never had good luck in Canada," Ashe said after he was upset 6-4, 6-4 by unseeded Graham Stilwell of Great Britain Tuesday in first-round play in a $50,000 World Championship Tennis tournament.

Ashe, who was seeded sixth here, lost in the first round in last year's Canadian Open and in the second round of a WCT tournament last year in Quebec City.

Stilwell, who doesn't consider himself an attacker, wielded a smoking forehand on passing shots from the backcourt and used the stroke aggressively at the net with his volleys in recording his first victory in five tries against the Richmond, Va., native.

CROWDS ASHE

Stilwell crowded Ashe on his service and the gamble paid off as the American got few aces past him. He also put the pressure on Ashe from the start by electing to receive his service.

"Whoever won the toss was going to receive," the 26-year-old Briton said after the morning match. "It was too early in the morning to start by serving so I let him serve and broke service and went ahead."

Stilwell, who held service all the way, broke Ashe again in the ninth game of the second set with three cross-court winners.

Other seeded players fared better.

Top-seeded Rod Laver of Australia eliminated stubborn Brian Fairlie of New Zealand 6-3, 6-4; second-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia ousted countryman Phil Dent 6-4, 6-2, and fifth-seeded Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., beat Aussie Terry Addison 6-2, 7-6.

A first-round upset also occurred in the doubles as the second-seeded duo of Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., were beaten by the newly-formed team of Frank Froehling of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico 5-7, 6-3, 7-6.

In other doubles matches, Britons Mark Cox and Stilwell beat Roger Taylor, Great Britain, and Cliff Drysdale, South Africa 6-7, 6-4, 6-2; fifth-seeded Ashe and Lutz downed Roy Barth, San Diego, and Tom Leonard, Los Angeles, 7-6, 6-3, and Addison and Jeff Borowiak, Los Angeles, defeated the Australian combination of Tony Roche and John Newcombe 7-6, 6-4.

NHL WILL GO TO COURT IF CONTRACT CHALLENGED

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League will go to court to defend the contract it uses to sign players, says NHL president Clarence Campbell.

"If anybody wants to challenge our contracts, we are prepared to defend it," Campbell told Toronto Star columnist Milt Dunnell in an interview.

He said it is only reasonable to expect the new World Hockey Association will sign someone now under contract to the NHL, thus leading to a court confrontation.

"Our course of action will likely be an injunction together with a writ for damages.

"I have no desire to forecast what the decision of the court might be ... We're merely saying: 'Do not steal our players.' If they do, we certainly are taking them to court."

The NHL contract is in harmony with contracts that have existed over the years in hockey and other sports, he said. "I would expect it to be honored."

The standard NHL contract contains a clause giving the employer of a player exclusive right to the player's services in a future contract to be negotiated between the two.

Spokesmen for the WHA have said this clause would not stand up in court.

INLET ANGLERS SLATE MEETING ON POLICIES

"Come and make yourself heard!"

With these words, president Al Wright announced that the executive of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association has called an extraordinary general meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Ingraham Hotel.

"The meeting is to decide on future policies of the club and to spark interest in the yearbook and derbies," added Wright.

Hill Rink Gains Canadian Finals

KAMLOOPS — Moe Hill of Victoria took another step toward retaining his Canadian title Tuesday by coming from behind to win the B.C. police curling championship.

Hill's rink defeated Ed Gee of Nelson 10-6 and 9-7 Tuesday to collect the provincial title and win a berth in the national final, starting March 11 in Hamilton.

The two rinks, favored to meet in the final, clashed three times in the double-loss elimination competition involving eight zone champions from the throughout the province.

Both rinks then started in the semi-finals of the "B" event and victories set up their second meeting.

Hill won the "B" event 10-6 to force the deciding contest and then followed through with the 9-7 triumph.

Hill has only one change in the lineup which won the Canadian crown last year. Wayne Dew has replaced Bill Erickson, who was transfered to Ontario, as vice-skip. Dave Wilson and Neil Dickson are back on the front end.

Riley's Spurt Paces Lakers Over Royals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Riley of Los Angeles Lakers posted career bests for points and rebounds as the Lakers downed Cincinnati Royals 125-118 in National Basketball Association action Tuesday night.

Elsewhere, Boston Celtics beat Portland Trailblazers 111-104, Baltimore Bullets whipped Houston Rockets 113-98, Atlanta Hawks downed Detroit Pistons 113-105 and Golden State Warriors shaded Buffalo Braves 103-100.

The Lakers led 20-16 early in the game when the Royals scored 14 points in a row to grab a 10-point lead. In came Riley to score eight points in 11 minutes as the Lakers closed the gap to six. And when they trailed by nine after one period, Riley stayed in and propelled Los Angeles to a 40-point quarter.

His over-all statistics: 12 of 17 shots from the floor, three of three from the free throw line in 27 minutes of playing time, nine rebounds and 27 points.

Silas McKinnie Traded to Cats

REGINA (CP) — Silas McKinnie, a veteran halfback with the Saskatchewan Roughriders, has been traded to Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Eastern Football Conference for a veteran and two rookie players, the western conference team announced today.

The Roughriders received veteran John Reid, a six-foot-four, 225-pound centre, and rookie defensive backs Ivan Morten and Dave Clarke in the trade. Hamilton also got Saskatchewan's first choice in last week's Canadian college draft.

McKinnie, a six-foot-two, 210-pound halfback who joined the Roughriders four years ago, played out his option with the team last year. McKinnie's first three years were as a first-string halfback and he was switched to the split-end position last season.

Reid was the Tiger Cats' starting centre in 1969 and 1970, and shared the centre duties with Doug Mitchell in 1971.

Elsewhere in Canadian football, defensive lineman Jeff Beard, who helped lead Alabama to three consecutive bowl games during the last three seasons, has signed to play with B.C. Lions of the Western Conference.

The six-foot-two, 235-pound 21-year-old was personally scouted by Lions coach Eagle Keys, who said he was "very impressed" with Beard's ability.

Plus-Minus System Can Inflate Value

Percentage Method Suggested

MONTREAL (CP) — The "plus-minus" system of rating a hockey player often inflates or depreciates a player's worth out of proportion, and should be changed to a percentage system, Ron Andrews, the National Hockey League's chief statistician, said Tuesday.

Andrews, who hopes to convince league members that the method should be replaced, said the great flaw in the existing "plus-minus" system is that it does not take into consideration the goals-for-and-against of team when assessing an individual player.

For instance, Bobby Orr of the Boston Bruins is currently plus 54, meaning that when he has been on the ice, Boston has scored 54 more goals than the opposition. Only goals scored when both teams are at even strength are taken into account.

The same method of evaluating a player gives Richard Martin, Buffalo Sabres' explosive rookie, a minus 34 rating. Martin has scored 38 goals, which tied team-mate Gilbert Perreault's record for rookies.

Boston has outscored the opposition 228-123 while the Sabres have been bombed 214-151. Andrews believes that the team record should be taken into account when the individual's performance is assessed.

The percentage system would provide a "much more meaningful" evaluation of an individual player, he said.

For example, Bobby Orr, who had the league's best "plus-minus" record last season with a plus 124, would have had a plus 20.4 per cent using the percentage system.

Doug Roberts of the California Golden Seals, had a minus 56 record last season but would have had a minus 7.2 per cent if Andrews' method was used.

"There would have to be a few adjustments," Andrews said. "If a player missed a few games, the total goals of the team would have to be deducted for the ones he wasn't playing."

"I've spoken to a few people about the system and Scotty Bowman Montreal Canadiens' coach (and Hal Laycoe) Vancouver Canucks coach) are very enthusiastic about it."

However, Andrews is less sure about some players, who have a lot of bonus clauses based on the plus-minus system, and some of the coaches and general managers, who might say he was trying to "baffle them with statistics."

Hunter-Training Course Will Be Watered Down

Some rambling notes along the trail:

Time to add our own spoon to the "tempest-in-a-teapot" controversy surrounding introduction of a compulsory hunter training program by the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

The course and written exam to obtain a firearms and-or hunting licence are scheduled to become effective on April 1 . . . branch officials are thinking of paring the original 20-hour (10 sessions) volunteer course down to a more manageable level . . . this, we believe, is desirable . . . since we graduated from the pilot course early in 1969, there has been little change in the actual content that covers a wide range of topics. . . .

Some of those topics, though interesting in a volunteer program, have no place in a compulsory course . . . they make administration of the course unwieldy and contribute little toward the actual goal of lessening firearms accidents . . . but some graduates of the program and fish and game club members insist on making the "guts" of the course a basis for the examination while retaining the controversial topics (such as archery, fish identification, etc.) as a volunteer "aside," which students may take if they wish . . . meanwhile, the planning and talking goes on.

Incidently, the course will be applied on a compulsory basis on Vancouver Island first . . . until the various "bugs" are ironed out.

Another bone of contention with Island sportsmen in recent weeks has been the herring fishery currently under way in the Strait of Georgia . . . herring reduction fishing was halted three years ago—was halted because stocks were being depleted and salmon, which depend on herring for food, suffered as a consequence . . . also the herring fishermen exacted a high toll of dead grilse while conducting their activities in the salmon nursery areas (like the Strait of Georgia) . . . a sporting goods store operator we know, who bought herring to freeze as bait when the fishermen came in to the wharf, said that approximately two per cent of the "herring" catch was made up of grilse and that one herring seiner reported a 100 per cent catch of young salmon during a "set" . . . food for thought?

MacMillan Bloedel Limited reports that in 1971, 88,626 residents of B.C. and visitors used its logging roads for access to the outdoors . . . this figure is 7,000 more than 1970 and 41,000 more than five years ago . . . these figures actually represent "recreation days," since some of the public used the roads more than once . . . the fish and game harvest of MB's land during '71, with the 1970 figure in brackets: 35,123 fish (40,138), 3,527 deer (3,661), 2,953 grouse (3,602), 1,535 other game birds (1,205) . . . all of which goes to show that such recreation is valuable, not only in an aesthetic sense, but in actual dollars and cents circulated within the province.

It's that time of year again . . . the fifth annual B.C. Salmon Derby, a Vancouver-based extravaganza that boasts a top prizeof $25,000 (in silver yet) . . . dates for the fishfest this year are Aug. 12-13 . . . one problem that might be encountered by promoters of the event is the new federal fisheries licence which must be purchased by any non-resident using his boat in B.C. waters . . . the licence is for the boat, not the boater, and is based on the length of the craft . . . these regulations take effect on April 1.

We were pleased to note recently that the "rip-off" artists at Crown Zellerbach were knocked down a peg or two in Duncan provincial court . . . and while the $12,000 fine for three counts of pollution at the Nitinat logging division might seem like "peanuts" for a company as large as this, the publicity didn't help their corporate image one little bit . . . this glare of publicity, however, might help serve as a deterrent to future abuses in areas little seen by the general public — and where some timber companies seem to think that anything goes.

KARL SCHRANZ

'Treatment Unfair' ...Schranz Retires

VIENNA (AP) — Skiing idol Karl Schranz has retired just one week after Austria acclaimed him a national hero out of sympathy for his disqualification from the Olympic Games on charges of professionalism.

In a letter to Karl-Heinz Klee, president of the Austrian Ski Federation, Schranz, at 33, one of the oldest and most successful skiers in the sport, said he retired because of unfair treatment and promises broken by international sports officials.

Schranz said his decision to leave international skiing circuit was prompted by failure of the International Ski Federation to stage separate world championships despite previous assurances.

The skier's 17-season career was interspersed with defeats and disappointments. At the time Schranz's case was receiving international notice, federation officials indicated they would go ahead with their own world championships if any skiers were barred from Olympic competition.

That, however, never came about. Schranz said he would not take part in the forthcoming World Cup races and had no immediate plans to turn professional.

World Skiing Leaders Handicapped at Banff

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Annemarie Proell of Austria and Henri Duvillard of France, leaders on the World Cup skiing circuit, are expected to have trouble retaining first place in the series when it resumes Thursday.

Women's and men's special and giant slaloms are to be held until Saturday on the steep slopes of Mount Norquay, but the leaders' weakness lies in the fact that their speciality is downhill and no downhill is scheduled for this meet.

Miss Proell has one serious challenger to face—Francoise Macchi of France, second with 187 points, just 16 behind the 18-year-old Austrian. Isabelle Mir of France trails with 73 points in third place.

Duvillard, however, has several challengers, notably second-place Jean-Noel Augert, also of France. With 194 points, Augert is only three behind Duvillard and he's considered one of the best slalom skiers in the world.

Third place is wide open. It is held by Austria's Karl Schranz, the three-time world champion who was banned from the Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, because of alleged commercialism. He announced his retirement from all competition Tuesday in Vienna.

ITALIAN FOURTH

Gustavo Thoeni of Italy, winner of the gold medal for his giant slalom performance at Sapporo, is fourth with 67 points and although his World Cup performance has been late developing, it's felt he'll pick up enough points to overtake Schranz.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, now retired, is the top Canadian in women's standings with 24 points for 15th place. Judy Crawford of Toronto is in 18th place while sisters Kathy and Laurie Kriener of Timmins, Ont., are 26th and 36th.

U.S. NEXT STOP

The only Canadian among the 50 men who hold points is Jim Hunter of Calgary, 44th with two points picked up at St. Moritz, Switzerland, in the opening downhill of the series last December.

From Banff, the competitors go to Crystal Mountain, Wash., for the 15th meet Feb. 26-27. The 20-meet series ends at Pra Loup, France, March 18-19. The men face two more special slaloms, three giant slaloms and two downhills while the women have one more special slalom, three more giant slaloms and three downhills.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

In an earlier column, I mentioned that goalies are the key to winning hockey games. But according to fans — and the front office — goal scoring is the name of the game and the big shooters draw down the big salaries.

Even in minor hockey games, the big emphasis is put on goal-scorers and most youngsters are disappointed if they are not made a forward. In fact, I've seen some coaches who give the players a skating test, then put the best skaters on the forward line.

Actually, they are right. You do have to be a better skater to play forward. I found that out in the short time I played forward for Boston.

And a good forward also has to play position hockey. He is responsible for his side of the ice, both on offence and defence. He must be able to dig the puck out of corners, be ready to break fast, be able to take a quick pass, be able to set up his teammate for a breakaway. In short, be an all-round player.

The centre is the super forward. In addition to good goaltending, you often hear teams rated by the strength down centre. The good playmakers are a valuable addition to any team.

So my advice to youngsters is to practice skating, shooting, passing, stops and starts — in fact, all the fundamentals. As a forward, you require them all, and that includes checking.

Cup Team Selected

TORONTO (CP) — Nancy McCurdy, Canadian champion, and Judy Rollick of Vancouver head a six-member team that will represent Canada in the Uber Cup women's badminton matches against the United States here Feb. 26.

The competition between the two countries is played every three years. Canada last won the series in 1957.

The other members of the Canadian team are Barb Welch and Marg Shedd of Toronto and Jane Youngberg and Mami Neilsson of Vancouver.

Rugby Birds Win

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (CP) — University of British Columbia Thunderbirds defeated the University of California at Santa Barbara, 20-12, here Tuesday in an exhibition rugby game.

Hoop Franchises Realigned

NEW YORK (AP) — The board of governors of the National Basketball Association has voted to realign the league's Phoenix and Houston franchises in the Western Conference for the 1972-73 season and also changed the format for qualifying for post-season playoffs.

By a majority vote, the governors decided at their annual winter meeting to move the Phoenix franchise from the Midwest Division to the Pacific Division, with Houston switching from the Pacific to the Midwest. This move had been strongly advocated by Phoenix since the expansion franchise joined the NBA four years ago.

For the 1972-73 playoffs, the four division winners will automatically qualify, as they do now. But the remaining four places will go to the two teams in each conference with the best winning percentages, other than the division winners. At present, the four division runners-up automatically qualify.

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey acknowledged Tuesday that the Unemployment Insurance Commission was at least two weeks late in paying 2,032 unemployment insurance claims. It was less than two weeks late paying 3,047 other claims.

He said in a statement that claims delayed for lack of information "were not being returned fast enough into the work stream after the information had been obtained."

The Hindenburg 'Sabotaged'

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A 35-year-old mystery surrounding the destruction of the zeppelin Hindenburg has been revived with publication of a book supporting theories that the German airship was sabotaged.

The dirigible, pride of Nazi Germany's prewar civil aviation fleet, was gutted by fire May 6, 1937, as it was about to moor at the U.S. naval air station at Lakehurst, N.J., following a transatlantic flight.

Twenty-two of the 61 crewmembers died, along with 13 of the 36 passengers. One of the ground crew also was fatally injured, bringing the death toll to 36.

An official inquiry said St. Elmo's fire—a bright discharge of static electricity—was the most probable cause of the disaster.

Author Michael M. Mooney, in his book Hindenburg, says the craft was set on fire by a bomb planted by a young member of the crew, a rigger named Eric Spehl.

He had meant the bomb to go off after the passengers and crew had disembarked. The airship was late in mooring, however, due to bad weather, and the bomb went off while they still were aboard. Spehl was fatally injured.

Mooney says Spehl, 25, born in the tiny Black Forest village of Goschweiler, became disillusioned with the Hitler regime, partly because of its persecution of Catholic priests and nuns. The book says he planned to remain in the U.S. after destroying the Hindenburg.

The author said the members of the U.S. inquiry into the disaster had decided to rule out sabotage as a cause, in order not to stir up an international incident.

At the same time, he said, the inquiry board's German observers had been ordered by their superiors also to avoid a finding of sabotage. "No mortal means was to be accorded the honor of destroying a key symbol of the Reich," Mooney writes.

They show, he said, that the inquiry and German observers held secret meetings at night to discuss, "off the record, the inescapable evidence of sabotage before them."

HINDENBURG DISASTER in 1937 killed 36 people. Was it sabotage?

N.Z. Freezes Pay

WELLINGTON (AP) — New Zealand has introduced a wage-price freeze which will last until the end of March.

Prime Minister John R. Marshall announced Monday a series of stabilization measures guaranteeing no increase in rail, post office or electricity charges until March 31. In return, he asked employers and workers to refrain from making or seeking awards increasing wages until that time.

After March 31, Marshall promised new legislation to halt the wage-price spiral on a longer-term basis.

He also hinted at early steps to encourage investment and stimulate areas in economy which could support a faster growth rate.

Clover Leaf Pink Salmon is one of those happy little food ideas that leads to dozens of mealtime flavour experiences. It's all food, no waste, so it's truly economical. And it blends with other budget foods to give you a variety of popular and nourishing hot dishes your family will enjoy. If you're thinking salmon tonight, think pink — for pennies.

Salmon Cakes

½ cup soda cracker crumbs
2 beaten eggs
½ teaspoon salt
Pinch of black pepper

Combine ingredients together. Form into round patties or cakes. Coat with flour. Fry in butter or shortening on both sides until golden brown. Serve with hot Mushroom Sauce, or with crisp fried bacon.

Serves 4 to 6. Approximate cost - 23c each.

Devilled Salmon

1 can (1 pound) Clover Leaf Pink Salmon
1 10 ounce can cream of mushroom soup
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
½ cup cooked peas (canned, frozen or fresh)
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon prepared mustard

Mix the soup, peas, grated onion, mustard and lemon juice and heat over low heat or hot water. Add salmon chunks and egg slices a few minutes before serving. (Don't stir too much, keep salmon in chunks). Garnish with paprika and serve in toasted bread cups, patty shells or rice rings. Serves 6. Approximate cost - 24c each.

MALRAUX'S MAO: INSCRUTABLE

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Nixon will have the same problem telling whether Mao Tse-tung is serious with him or is stringing him along as a man trying to tell whether a woman means it when she says she loves him, according to French novelist-politician Andre Malraux.

"Political talent" is the way one tells the difference, Malraux said. "A great leader can understand when he is being fooled, and a bad one does not know it."

This was the Frenchman's conclusion to an hour-long press conference in which he said that Nixon should be prepared to offer Mao something like a Marshall Plan for China and that anything else would be "meaningless talk."

Malraux said that Mao had told him back in 1965 that, with only 10 per cent of China's arable land still uncultivated, the only way for China to raise its living standard is to industrialize and that the only country that could afford to underwrite such a vast undertaking would be the United States "since I cannot repay for 25 or 30 years."

"Is the richest country ready to help the poorest?" is the way Malraux summed it up.

"The Chinese," Malraux explained with the characteristic intensity that makes his whole body shake, "are absolutely not interested in their own international revolutionary speeches. What have they done? Nothing in Vietnam. Nothing in Pakistan. Some little railroads . . . let's be serious. We're the ones who say they're dangerous because of a few students."

As for the U.S. presence in Indochina, he dismissed that as "no longer important" now that "no one believes anymore" that the Americans are there to push back Chinese communism. As a matter of fact, said Malraux, the Chinese do not want peace in Indochina because they can use the continuation of the war as a rally cry for national unity.

"The revolution is behind him," Malraux said of Mao. "You don't refight every morning a battle you've already won."

In China, It's Also Year of the Book

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — About a dozen books banned during the cultural revolution went on sale again Monday setting off a rare melee in Peking's main bookshop where hundreds jostled each other at the counters to buy copies.

The books, many of them faded and dusty after years in storage, included several classics by the great liberal thinkers of eithteenth century Europe such as Montesquieu.

The bookshop also did a brisk business in several newly-published books, some of them translations of European works and others original Chinese texts, which were on sale for the first time.

The decision to make the books available, viewed here as a major step towards intellectual liberalization, coincided happily with the beginning of the spring festival, the three-day holiday which marks the traditional Chinese new year.

With money in their pockets and gifts to buy for relatives Pekingers leaped at the opportunity, crowding the sidewalk outside the main bookshop well before it opened.

Normally disciplined in a crowd, they barged each other aside in their eagerness to get to the counters, apparently afraid that the supply would run out before they got their turn.

INTELLECTUAL BONANZA

The energies released in the struggle to get to the font had been stored up for more than five years, since the days when university libraries and bookshops were forced to purge their stocks of any titles that might leave them vulnerable to charges of ideological impurity.

The purge forced Chinese readers into a diet of ideologically acceptable texts, most of them drawn from the writings of the giants of the Communist movement, principally Marx, Lenin and Mao Tse-tung.

In the last year there has been a gradual loosening up, with some of the old titles returning to the shelves, but nothing to compare with the intellectual bonanza represented by Monday's releases.

The books ranged from the commentaries by Marx on German philosophy to the history of the Peleponesian wars written before the birth of Christ by Thucydides.

Other titles on sale included Jean-Jacques Rousseau's The Social Contract, Montesquieu's Spirit of the Laws, Immanuel Kant's Critique of Pure Reason and an anthology of writings by the early laissez-faire economists, including Adam Smith and David Ricardo.

Chinese readers interested in the crisis in Northern Ireland — represented in the Chinese press as a simple case of brutal oppression of the unoffending Irish masses by British "oppressor" troops — will also be able to get a look at some of the historic background to the crisis by reading Sir William Petty's Political Economy of Ireland, first published in 1899.

Lost Confidence in Your Breath?
Bad breath often becomes a real problem for many people with deteriorating dentition . . . gum trouble, caps, bridgework and especially dentures. Only your dentist can rectify these conditions. But Steri/sol Oral Antiseptic does much to control accompanying bad breath. Steri/sol is specially designed for this purpose. Steri/sol's formulation contains an exclusive, active ingredient called Hexetidine that deprives bacteria of thiamine. Without thiamine, the mouth-germs that cause bad breath cannot live. In fact, Steri/sol with Hexetidine is so effective, it kills 95% of these mouth-germs within 15 minutes. Then it clings to the mouth and gum tissue to control bad breath for up to 10 hours. No wonder many dentists use Steri/sol.
Try Steri/sol with Hexetidine. It costs more than you usually pay for a mouthwash, but then Steri/sol is not your usual mouthwash. Sold only at pharmacies.

Late Surge Clinches Senior Hoop Title

It took until the dying moments of the season for Hotel Douglas to clinch a second straight Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League regular-season crown Tuesday night at Highrock Junior High School.

Hotelmen, powered by the 23-point performance of Mike Taaffe and the 17-point contribution of John Lauvaas, trimmed Price and Smith 72-62 to nip Independents by two points and Clothiers by four, for the league title on the final night of the schedule.

Restoration Services, which ended up in a deadlock with the Metros, each with a 6-18 record, is the fourth playoff qualifier. Services earned the spot on the strength of a 4-2 record in games played between the two clubs during the season.

Clinging to a 66-62 lead in the dying moments, the Hotelmen hit for three straight baskets to lock up the title. Clothiers get another shot at the league champs in the opening rounds of the playoffs Tuesday at Highrock. Independents meet Restoration in the other sudden-death semi-final, which leads to the two-game total-point final. Monday and Tuesday, February 28-29.

Court Brousson and Barry Burch replied with 17 and 16 points for the Clothiers, who trailed most of the game.

Bob Burrows triggered Independents' attack tanking 36 points while Jim Duddridge potted 23 for Metros.

Victoria Players Placed High In Canadian Tennis Rankings

Peter Burwash of Toronto has been named Canada's top male tennis player in the official rankings released in Toronto following the annual meeting of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association here.

Jim Boyce, also of Toronto, unranked in 1970, was second followed by Tony Bardsley, of Vancouver, and Pierre Lamarche of Montreal.

In the women's division, Vickie Berner, of Vancouver, was rated ahead of Andree Martin, of Montreal, and Janice Tindle, of Vancouver. She moved up from No. 5 in 1970 to the top slot.

Two Victoria-area youngsters and two ex-Victorians now playing out of Vancouver were also ranked high in Canada.

Provincial-champion Brenda Cameron was ranked second in the girls' under-14 age class and No. 6 in the under-16 division. Glen Bradshaw was rated No. 2 in the under-14 division and No. 11 in the under-16 class.

Both will have to play in the under-16 division this year.

Don McCormick and Susan Butt, the former Victorians, were both rated fifth.

A number of top players among the men were missing from the list because of insufficient tournament play in Canada. For that reason, Mike Belkin, John Sharpe, Harry Fauquier and Keith Carpenter, all members of last year's Davis Cup squad, were absent from the ratings.

Scott Cathcart, of Toronto, heads the under-14 category, and Steve Volrich, of Vancouver, leads the boys' under-12 division.

Janet Hall, of Vancouver, heads the girls under-18 and also tops the under-16 category.

Bays, Braves Have Battles After Getting Fast Starts

Bays and Braves, one-two in the Victoria Senior High School Boy's Basketball League standings, shot into early leads on visiting courts and then had all they could handle before squeaking out narrow decisions.

Oak Bay needed a last-minute basket from Grant Boland to slip by Reynolds Roadrunners 51-49 after holding a 31-24 half-time lead.

Braves were forced into overtime to finally edge Mt. Douglas Rams 73-70 after shooting into a 13-0 lead in the opening minutes.

Belmont, expected to have little trouble disposing of winless Claremont Spartans in a rescheduled game tonight, clashes head-on with the Bays Friday night at Oak Bay in a confrontation which could decide first place and the easy route into the Vancouver Island tournament.

Mark Anderson finished with 17 points for the Bays and Dave Anderson chipped in 12 while the Roadrunners got 12-point efforts from Mike Finlayson and Terry Bains.

Lee Edmondson, Belmont's six-six centre, was the key in the Braves' attack hooping 32 points — including four in overtime — and hauling down 21 rebounds.

Greg Gardner had 17 points for the Rams, who remained locked in a three-way fight with Victoria High and Mt. View for the fourth and final playoff spot.

REVIVAL 'HOPEFUL' FOR FAIR'S MUSIC

There's "fantastic hope" now that the musical side of the cancelled Victoria Fair will be put on again this summer, George Corwin, University of Victoria musical director, said today.

He said that this time, however, the program would be more of a joint community-university effort, and may be called something different from Victoria Fair, which is a name associated only with UVic.

The fair, which was made up of theatre and musical programs, was cancelled in January in an announcement by Peter Garvie, dean of fine arts, and Ralph Allen, head of the theatre department, both of whom are leaving for other universities. They had blamed lack of financial support for the decision.

Corwin said it looks as though enough community support is being voiced for a program that may include two orchestra concerts and one chamber concert a week for the summer.

Outer Areas a Mess: Students

Urgent Planning Need Cited

By BRYAN McGILL
Times Staff

Sixteen University of Victoria geography students last fall ventured into the wilderness that is known as Langford-Colwood-Metchosin.

On Wednesday, six of them gathered in the office of Dr. Peter Murphy, instructor of their urban geography course and said the place is a mess.

"It's a dog's breakfast," commented Mark Brown, 22. That is to say it has "no neat pattern."

And at the same time the residents seem "generally apathetic" about what the rapid sprawling growth is doing to their environment, said Cliff Storvold, 23.

Murphy explained that the students, in an unprecedented class project, made an "exploratory study" of the unorganized areas in co-operation with the Capital Regional District Board. A report based on the students' term papers covering the project was slated for release later today, and is expected to be used in an over-all professional study the board planners will carry out on the area.

What most impressed the students was that although there is considerable building in the area there is also a lack of local parks, adequate roads and "a sense of form" or "neighborhood" in its housing developments.

If there ever was an area ripe for good planning, this was it, they agreed.

"You find a road here, a cow path there, an old house here, a new house there," said Wendy Foreman, 22.

She and Dave Murphy, 21, found that because there are no neighborhood parks, children play either in their backyards or on the roads. They don't use school playgrounds, either, because they are in need of upgrading.

Bill Harris, 23, and Russ Malcolm, 22, found that "transportation facilities haven't kept up to the sprawl of the last 10 years," which has resulted in a great deal of congestion, expecially on the Old Island Highway.

What is needed is more secondary roads leading into the area, but this is a difficult proposal because it is hard to create thoroughfares out of an area that is mainly dead-end streets, they noted.

Storvold, in a sampling of resident opinion, found that the people are evenly divided on whether to incorporate.

Those who do want more services, and those who don't are afraid of increased taxes.

"The reason they say they like living there is that it provides a slower pace of life . . . and they like open space and to sit in their own backyards."

But, paradoxically, there isn't much open space, the houses are crammed together, and the people "sit in their little houses" not aware of what is going on around them.

It was Storvold's opinion that the real reason people live there is that it is cheaper than living in the municipalities.

Brown said that business centres in the outer areas mainly provide day-to-day products and services and don't seem to be as prosperous as shopping centres in town. Residents, he said, tend to go on shopping excursions into Victoria.

Murphy said the students found the project more difficult than they anticipated, but they enjoyed trying to put urban planning into practice.

Other students who worked on the study are Maureen Avery, Duncan Davies, Karen Fenwick, James Guthrie, Paul Hadfield, Glen Leicester, Graham Roche, Gilbert Scott, Ken Smithers and Frances Tanner.

Young Mr. Peek-A-Boo

Oil-Fighting Units Arrive On Coast Soon

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services for the transport department, said from Vancouver today that three $6,000 "slick lickers" are being bought and will be stationed at Victoria, Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

The slick-lickers, barge-mounted devices which lift oil from the water's surface with a conveyor belt, were developed by a local scientist.

Location of the machines confirms earlier indications that the three ports will be established as resource centres from which attacks can be launched on oil spills.

FORM NUCLEUS

Buchanan said the slick lickers will form the nucleus of oil-fighting depots but he is unable to say now how much more is coming because the equipment budget has yet to be approved by Parliament.

It is expected about $150,000 will be spent at each of the three ports this year building the oil pollution control arsenal.

This will include barges or catamaran-type vessels to mount the slick lickers, booms to encircle oil spills and possibly more slick lickers.

DAMAGE FISH

Emulsifiers, which break down the oil, won't be much in evidence because they are known to produce conditions damaging to fish and would only be used as a last resort in some situations.

Buchanan is the government officer who will co-ordinate the attack on any coast oil spill, using whatever resources he believes are needed, including navy men and equipment.

Asked how prepared he will be with the new equipment to cope with an oil spill, he said:

"With the experience we've gained on the east coast and elsewhere, we'll be able to deal with the sort of leaks which might be expected from a single damaged fuel tank, at the most two, in a medium-sized vessel."

What about problems with one of the giant tankers, 250,000 to 500,000 tons, which may be carrying oil from Alaska past Victoria someday?

CATASTROPHE

"There's no place in the world that can deal with a giant tanker in real trouble. If one of them breaks up it will be a catastrophe, and it will be that way for donkey's years."

The slick licker, formally known as the Oleovator, was developed by Richard Sewell, a scientist with the Defence Research Establishment in Victoria.

It employs the principle of "preferential wetting." When the cloth conveyor belt which projects into the water is first coated with oil, it will then only pick up oil from the water's surface. Rollers at the top of the belt squeeze the oil out in the same style as an old-fashioned washing machine.

Sandringham Hearing Under Way

The B.C. Labor Relations Board began a hearing this morning in Victoria Law Courts to determine whether Sandringham Private Hospital has bargained collectively with the union on strike against it for the last 72 weeks.

The press was excluded from the hearing, which was attended by a number of representatives of the hospital and the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The union took action under a section of the Labor Relations Act which allows the board to decide whether there has been or is, collective bargaining. Its decision will be binding.

Under a section of the Mediation Commission Act, both sides are required to bargain collectively "and shall make every reasonable effort to conclude a collective agreement."

"The union contends that the hospital has not bargained collectively," said CUPE staff representative Alex Markides.

There have been no negotiations since the strike of 28 employees, seeking a first contract, began Sept. 30, 1970. Before then, there were two meetings with the hospital management and two meetings with a mediation officer.

Man Admits Prospectus False

A prominent city businessman pleaded guilty in county court today to a charge of issuing a false prospectus concerning a $1-million share issue by Datatech Systems Ltd.

Walter Frank Large, 37, of 4230 Glendenning, faces a possible maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for the offence. Judge M. L. T. Drake adjourned Large's trial to consider submissions by prosecutor Roy Paris and defence lawyer Boyd Ferris before passing sentence.

According to facts agreed on by both lawyers at the outset of the trial, the charge invoves a prospectus issued by Datatech when it became a public company in January, 1969.

A section of the prospectus, prepared by Large, failed to report that the proceeds of a $1-million share issue would be handed over in the main to another company, Canamerico Mortgages, of which the accused was co-owner.

Canamerico got $878,000 as a loan, with interest at 9 per cent, from the $972,000 net proceeds of the share sale.

LOAN RECALLED

Datatech directors were eventually told of the loan in December, 1969, and the loan was recalled. Canamerico was unable to pay the $500,000 balance owing, and was taken over by Datatech by way of a share transfer and a nominal purchase price.

An executive of the firm testified that the $500,000 is invested in Imperial Building Materials Ltd., and is considered by the present Datatech directors to be a financially sound investment.

DETERRENCE

Prosecutor Paris urged Drake to impose a stiff sentence as a deterrent, quoting a precedent in which imposition of a fine alone was cited as a licence to commit the offence again.

Paris said he had no quarrel with character evidence led by the defence which showed the accused to be otherwise a leading member of the community. But he said the key factor in sentence would have to be deterrence.

The defence called as witnesses to Large's character Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, Ald. Percy Frampton, investment counsellor Robert Daniel Ferguson, lawyer George F. Jones and Ronald Blair Smith, a Datatech executive.

Ferris said there had been no intention of theft or fraud on Large's part, and that the falsity of the prospectus was "not in the form of a materially false statement, but one of omission."

If the money had been borrowed by a large financial house instead of the privately-owned Canamerico, he said, no charge would have been laid at all.

He asked that sentence be limited to a fine, because jailing Large would be a loss to his family, the business and the community as a whole.

Large originally was charged with his brother, Earl Wilbert Large, on charges of theft and fraud in August, 1970.

The charges against Earl Large were dropped in May, 1971, at which point Walter Large waived the balance of a preliminary hearing on his charge and was committed for trial in county court.

Ask the Times

Q. Recently in Ask The Times you advised a questioner that goldfish can be frozen and survive. Would you like to check your information again? A.H.

A. We would and we did — and we were wrong, sorry to say. Dr. Michael Ashwood-Smith, biology professor at the University of Victoria and a specialist in deep cold effects, confirms that a fish frozen for more than a moment or two cannot survive — in an outdoor pool or anywhere else.

The Times endeavors to answer questions of general public interest in this column. Personal replies to queries will not be made.

'ST. JOSEPH'S' FADES AWAY

St. Joseph's Hospital passed into history today in name at least and will now be known as Queen Victoria General Hospital.

It was just one of several changes which flowed from two ceremonies this afternoon, one at the hospital and the other at the offices of the Capital regional hospital board.

The regional board meeting at 2 p.m. saw the signing of documents which will:

- Complete the sale of about four acres alongside the hospital, from the Sisters of St. Ann to the regional board, for $899,557.22.
- Deeding of this land to the provincial government which will in turn lease it to the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, the public organization taking over the hospital from the Sisters.

At 3 p.m. the sisters and the society held a brief ceremony at the hospital's Humboldt Street entrance to mark the sisters' gift of their $6 million equity in the hospital to the community.

The order founded the hospital in 1876, the first building costing $13,900 and having room for 35 patients. Growth and complexity of the hospital administration have led the sisters to withdraw.

The sisters and the society signed the documents last week which will see the hospital given first to the community, represented by the society, and then deeded to the provincial government.

With the completion of documentation today the province will own both hospital and adjacent land for expansion and these will be leased to the society.

The regional hospital board is handling the land purchase, with the province contributing 60 per cent and the balance being raised by tax levy in the Capital region.

Strike Delays Mail to City

Spokesman Ken Stofer said while some flights with air mail are arriving on time some mail is coming on later flights, apparently as a result of missing connections.

This had been occurring during the past week, when airport technicians have been on strike and airlines have reported delays and cancellations of some flights.

Stofer said the delays were generally up to 24 hours.

THREE MONTHS EXTRA

An inmate of the William Head minimum security prison who failed to return after a one-day pass Saturday was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in provincial court today.

Leonard Morris, 23, said today he had missed the last boat back from Vancouver Saturday and had then decided to go to Hope to find a friend.

He turned himself in at the Hope RCMP headquarters Sunday.

Judge William Ostler said he had made Morris' sentence light because he had turned himself in, adding that he had shown "extremely bad judgment" in not doing so immediately he knew that he had missed the ferry.

He described the temporary pass system at William Head as an excellent one.

Morris was serving a two-year term for possession of stolen property and intent to wound. He was to have been released Aug. 19, 1973.

Dogs Have Day, Owners Fined

The nine were fined $10 each in provincial court by Judge E. F. N. Robinson on charges of letting their pets run loose.

The charges arose from a two-week blitz from Jan. 20 to Feb. 4 by inspectors from the Society for prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Meandering dogs were picked up on Belmont, Joseph, May, Brighton, Reno, Carrick and Michigan.

SPCA Manager David Beeching says the society, which controls dogs under contract in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, has a policy of "continuous enforcement." But the prosecutions seem to come in batches, totalling about 100 per year.

$700,000 Roads Budget Urged for Saanich

Saanich public works committee decided Tuesday night to warn council that it is proposing to present a minimum roads construction budget of $700,000 for 1972.

The sum is exactly double the $350,000 allocated for roads capital expenditure in the provisional budget already submitted to council for preliminary consideration.

For several years past the municipality's roads program has been the major victim in the annual budget - pruning sessions, but committee members seemed determined to avoid that situation this year.

"I am hoping council will realize the error they are making in continually cutting back," said committee chairman Ald. William Campbell. "I hope they will see that it's false economy."

Ald. Edith Gunning said, "We're just putting off facing the problem, and in doing so we're building up more problems for the future."

In a first look at the roads construction program submitted by engineering staff, the committee agreed to include in budget proposals works on 11 roads in the municipality, at a total estimated cost of $474,800.

It was also agreed that $15,200 should be set aside as a contingency fund.

Thus the present total considered necessary is $490,000. But the committee also instructed staff to report again at the March meeting on estimates of other road projects, which could bring the total to about $700,000.

The committee agreed that a top priority in the 1972 program should be the widening and rebuilding of Quadra on the section from Rogers to Dieppe, where Quadra will join the new highway overpass. The cost will be $115,000.

Also high on the list is the long-awaited improvement to Gordon Head Road, from McKenzie to Cedar Hill Cross Road. Acting municipal engineer John Cowlin said the road is narrow, with poor surface and contours, posing a constant hazard to schoolchildren.

The Saanich share of this project is $71,500. Oak Bay council and the provincial government will pay part of the cost, the latter as it is involved in access to the University of Victoria.

Where to Go for Help

Mrs. W. E. Rolls

Bill Tindall

WHAT TO DO WITH BEEFS

1. Take the case as far as you can yourself before asking for help. Some stores have managers above managers, or head offices elsewhere. Write to them, and to the makers of defective goods.

2. When applying for aid, write out your complaint as briefly as possible. Try not to become emotional. Calling the seller a cut-throat brigand makes for strained relations, particularly if there's been an honest mistake.

3. Be prepared to wait. When you hand your case over to the Better Business Bureau, the Consumer Association of Canada or any other organization, remember they're not magicians. If you couldn't get immediate action, there's no automatic guarantee they will fare better.

4. Learn from experience, both good and bad. Once bitten, twice shy applies to buying, but some homework in advance is necessary, especially before buying large items such as electrical appliances.

By DAVID MAY
Times Staff

Where does the frustrated consumer go when the washer won't and the dryer doesn't?

The answer is simple — back to the store of origin. Find the sales clerk and collect the department manager. (Tales of woe to the clerk alone are pointless; even the longest-serving just hasn't the rank to change goods.)

Most stores will try their best to settle business to the customer's satisfaction; they are, after all, selling service as well as goods.

Remember that certain complaints are difficult to back up after purchase, particularly when shoes and clothing are concerned. Your eyes are your brokers in every purchase, so check the goods well before handing over cash.

If, however you do have a legitimate beef and it doesn't get the attention you think it deserves, there is a variety of consumer courts of appeal at your disposal. Each one holds a slightly different position in the marketplace situation and this fact is worth bearing in mind before searching for aid.

'Arm of Business'

Victoria's branch of the Better Business Bureau (BBB) is now in its tenth year of operation. It is financed from fees paid by local member stores. BBB manager Bill Tindall admits his organization is "an arm of business' but denies this impairs its objectivity. The business community, he argues, is just as anxious to maintain and upgrade the quality of goods as the consumer. For Tindall, a dissatisfied customer is potentially a customer lost to BBB member stores.

In fact, says Tindall, complaints comprise only a small part of his bureau's daily affairs; last year the Victoria and Nanaimo offices handled some 12,000 enquiries and, of these, less than 12 per cent were complaints.

Politically, the BBB in Victoria represents the small business. Most of BBB fees are drawn from companies with 10 or less employees. The small businessman fighting oppressive government legislation is a popular image with BBB members.

The Consumer Association of Canada (CAC), local membership around 1,000, is a voluntary organization financed by annual subscription. Its ranks, according to local president, Mrs. W. E. Rolls, have a four-fold objective. They seek to unite consumers to improve standards, to study consumer problems, to bring the views of consumers to government and industry and to obtain information and advice for the consumer.

CAC Pressure Group

Many of the association's members are middle-class women of higher than average intelligence, married to professional men. As a pressure group, the ranks of the CAC are not to be underestimated.

In B.C. the association's most notable victories lie in the field of education and government. The group was instrumental in setting up consumer education as a guidance course in schools. Since March, 1971, this has been taught at Grade 9 level. Workshops are to be established to keep teachers abreast of consumer education developments.

But the star in the cap of the CAC in this part of the world is consumer affairs officer Michael Hanson, a civil servant in the Attorney-General's department of the provincial government.

Civil servants are an anxious breed; objectivity is their aim, for bias may be interpreted as political. Hanson, a stickler for the letter of the law, is persistent but detached with his cases. An ex-policeman, there is, however, something of the romantic under the civil servant's sober suit. In tones reminiscent of the super sleuth, he declares "no case is finished till there is a result." He has the respect of Better Business Bureau and Consumer Association alike.

Like Tindall, Hanson insists on concise written accounts of consumer complaints. Brevity is of particular importance for Hanson. He may have the intuition of Sherlock Holmes and the legal mind of Perry Mason, but he is, alas, only one man.

PERTH, Australia (Reuter) — Faith Scudds, 59, who injured her knee when she slipped on a hair curler in a beauty shop, has been awarded just over $3,500 damages.

Stress Drug for Weak-Hearted?

TORONTO (CP) — People prone to heart attacks may soon be given a drug to protect them from the effects of stress, Dr. Hans Selye said here recently.

The Montreal doctor, a world authority on the effects of stress on the body, told the Royal Canadian Institute about the drug that will protect laboratory animals from otherwise lethal doses of poisons, heart attacks and artificially induced aging.

He said the drug's application to human aging is far in the future because scientists first have to learn whether natural aging is the same as premature senility induced in the laboratory as well as to determine whether people react in the same way as experimental animals.

However, the application to the prevention of coronary heart attacks is much nearer and more feasible, Dr. Selye said.

He said the drug is being tried on humans in Yugoslavia, but is being used only in experimental animals in North America.

Dr. Selye said individual people react differently to stress because each breaks at the weakest link in the chain of his physical makeup—some have a heart attack, others a stroke or an ulcer.

The doctor said rats were made coronary-prone by diet and certain drugs, then stressed. These rats had heart attacks and died. Other rats were treated similarly, except that they were also treated with PCN.

The stress had no effect. An autopsy showed their hearts were healthy.

DEAR ABBY: My husband sleeps in his underwear. He wears the long woollen kind, and he sleeps in the same underwear he has worn all day. The problem is getting him to change it. Abby, there are four suits of clean underwear in his drawer, but he won't put on a clean pair without a fight. I can't even get his underwear away from him to put in the wash. Don't tell me to grab it when he's in the bathtub. He doesn't bathe much either. Please help me. He is getting pretty ripe.—N.D.

DEAR N.D.: Look at it this way. You don't have to worry about another woman stealing him. And he's easy to find in the dark. But if you want action, try begging, bribing, nagging, and leaving! And in that order.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Winter evenings will seem less dreary, if you use them to enhance your fashion wardrobe.

Could you do with an elegant knitted, sleeveless party sweater in moss stitch with a flattering square neckline? The pattern fits size 10-12.

Or, if you prefer to crochet, you may want to make a short-sleeved sweater. This one is round-necked and the pattern fits a size 36.

If you feel more enterprising and have lots of time on your hands, why not crochet yourself a fashionable dress with three-quarter sleeves? It sports two lacy pockets and the body is lined.

All three patterns are on the free Stardust leaflet. Send your request, accompanied by a long (size 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Diamond Yarn Canada Corporation, 9697 St. Lawrence Blvd., Montreal, Quebec. Please allow two weeks for delivery.

Churches Tempt Teen-Agers

Cadboro Bay United Church teens meet for recreation

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Highly structured youth organizations, once an important part of most church programs, don't appeal to today's teen-ager, according to local clergymen.

They say groups such as the Anglican Young People's Association and the Catholic Youth Organization just don't attract young people anymore.

"We don't have that kind of old-style youth club. They're not effective anymore," said Father Bob Hogarth, of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

"We have to approach kids where they are," Hogarth said.

He thinks counselling young people at the rectory or during confession is the most effective aid to teen-agers now.

"When they need help they don't need a dance," Father Hogarth said.

He added that many of the young people seeking help don't even belong to the parish. Hogarth thinks troubled teen-agers choose his church because they know "the police don't lean on us to reveal drug information."

Hogarth said his church has a religious education program for young people and an informal mass each Sunday in the activity centre.

"The liturgy for this service is very simplified so that all can be involved. It's a developing thing. Every Sunday there is something different."

Referring to the Cool-Aid benefit, scheduled to take place in his church last Saturday and cancelled at the urging of conservative church members, Father Hogarth said: "Those that are upset by young people are upset by everything."

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolfe, of St. Luke's Anglican Church, thinks older teen-agers are so involved in studies and school-oriented groups they don't have time for church programs.

"Schools are doing so much more than they used to do. They have finally realized that education goes on after 4 p.m.," the archdeacon said.

He believes it is the younger teen-agers who need church programs to fill the gap between cub scouts or brownies and high school activities.

St. Luke's has a young people's organization geared to the needs of the 13 to 16-year-olds in the parish. The group meets once every two weeks for projects and games.

Rev. Andrew Gates is helping organize a youth corps at St. George's Anglican Church. He hopes this service group will appeal to young people both "in and outside the church."

The 45 members, ranging in age from 13 to 17, want to work as volunteers in the community.

"They want to be involved in the world," Gates said. "They want to work as volunteers in hospitals, clinics, nursing homes and animal hospitals."

Tuesday and Thursday evening programs include drama, dancing, sports, scouts handicrafts, films and guest speakers, according to church elder Donald Roegele.

Roegele said about 50 to 60 people come each evening and once a month the church hires a live band for a dance.

Rev. Philip Calkins, of the Free Methodist Church, said his church is "always looking for new things to interest young people."

Mr. Calkins said that besides Sunday school, his church has a program of week night Bible study and recreational activities.

Young people at the Church of the Nazarene will attend a retreat at Camp Thunderbird next weekend. This church offers weekly outings and study groups for young people and rents a gym once a month for games.

Rev. Alfred Johnson, of the Lutheran Church of the Cross, thinks there is an "increased interest in religion among young people."

10,000 Present

He described a recent rally held in Minneapolis, Minn., which attracted 10,000 young people. About 25 members of his church belong to the Luther League, an organization for young people.

Young people at Emmanuel Baptist Church have applied for a grant under the federal government's winter works program. Funds will be used to build a drop-in centre for teenagers.

About 70 young people meet every Friday evening to plan programs or take part in activities. Members meet in homes during the week for prayer and study groups.

Sunday Supper

The youth program at Emmanuel Baptist also involves young adults in church activities. There is a supper every Sunday at 5 p.m. for 18 to 25-year-olds.

Young people, ranging in age from 13 to 17 years, meet weekends at Cadboro Bay United church for recreational activities.

Since most 17-year-olds don't have much in common with the average 13-year-old, the group is divided according to age.

The junior recreation group meets Friday evenings at 7 p.m. The more sophisticated 17 and 18-year-olds meet Saturday evenings at the same time. The program has become so popular that 11 and 12-year-olds are now forming their own group.

Knox Presbyterian Church has no specific program for teenagers. Older teenagers 17 to 21 years of age use church facilities Sunday evenings.

"Anybody can come for an informal get together Sunday evening. They usually play the guitar, sing and talk for hours," said Rev. Alan Beaton.

Equal Wages for Gov't Workers First

Pay a babysitter the minimum wage?

Parents may find they will have to if Eileen Dailly, Burnaby MLA and deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, has her way. As it stands now, the B.C. Human Rights Act does not cover domestic and farm workers.

Mrs. Dailly was speaking to the Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) Tuesday evening at the Cool-Aid Fernwood hostel on the role of women in the provincial government.

Mrs. Dailly's first experience with the inequalities suffered by women was six years ago when she ran against four male nominees for a seat in her own party.

"Afer a panel discussion someone came up to me and said: 'Well you make a good speech, Mrs. Dailly, but you know a woman's place is really in the home'."

She said the interest shown in women's rights by groups such as SWAG will eventually force the provincial government to realize that women are beginning to work together rather than in fragmented efforts.

Three other women — Ministers without Portfolio Patricia Jordan, Grace McCarthy and Isabel Dawson — were invited to the meeting but did not attend.

Although the Human Rights Act stipulates equal pay for men and women doing comparable work, in practice there are still many inequalities in salaries, Mrs. Dailly said.

These inequalities begin with the government itself. For example, the cleaning women in the legislature earn $100 less per month than male janitors, Mrs. Dailly said. The discrepancy in wages is attributed to the fact that janitors use the floor polisher, she added.

"Unless the government takes a lead in their own department, it cannot go around to industries demanding what it does not do itself," Mrs. Dailly said.

Mrs. Dailly stated what she hopes to do during the current legislature session as far as women's rights are concerned:

- Call on the government to set up an implementation committee to study the Royal Commission on the Status of Women.
- Work to establish a provincial child care board.
- To beef up the present Human Rights Act which allows the employer scope to discriminate against women.
- Change the separate male and female minimum wage acts to one law covering both.
- Give the provincial women's bureau power to investigate job discrimination and bring action against the employer, thus eliminating the

Victorians Contribute to Dictionary

It's a strange whim of fate that couples food for canaries and others of their kind with stories of outstanding Canadians. Nevertheless, it was bird seed that, a few years back, helped to start a country-wide project entitled Dictionary of Canadian Biography (Dictionnaire Biographique de Canada, (DCB-DBC).

Miss Francess G. Halpenny, MA (Toronto), LLD (Guelph), now general editor of that project, told me the story when she was in Victoria on the weekend.

It seems the late James Nicholson, head of Brock's Bird Seed Company (an old-time Ontario firm was an ardent student of history.

When he died in 1952 he willed the residuum of his estate to the University of Toronto to endow a biographical dictionary which would contain "Full, accurate and concise biographies of all noteworthy inhabitants of the Dominion of Canada."

A bequest that made it possible, by 1959, to set up the mechanics for an English publication of such a dictionary at University of Toronto press and to start research for the first volumes. Arrangements were also made with les presses de l'universite Laval in Quebec City to publish a French edition.

CHANGED JOBS

Dr. Halpenny was managing editor of the university press at that time but the new project was so fascinating she transferred to the DCB-DBC staff.

elizabeth forbes

As general editor since 1968, she now works between Toronto and Quebec City. She also travels east or west once a year making preliminary lists of noteworthy Canadians and visiting universities and archives to check on any research being done in this particular field.

Since it was organized, DCB-DBC has been working in both the 18th and 19th centuries. First two volumes, already in print, include persons who died between 1700 and 1770. Volume III, dealing with the year 1850 to 1900 and largely made possible "by a generous grant from the Centennial Commission and assistance from Canada Council," will be in bookstores and libraries by April.

"We will continue to produce volumes simultaneously in the 18th and 19th centuries at intervals of two years," Dr. Halpenny explains. The third, for persons who died between 1741 and 1770, and now in course of preparation, will be published in 1973 and the ninth for the years 1851 to 1870 in 1975.

"We will thus gain the advantage of concentration as the gap between the published volumes is closed. It will also enable us to make best use of information accumulated in our files and of the familiarity with our needs on the part of contributors who have already worked with us."

SPECIAL KNOWLEDGE

The general editor makes it clear that contributors to the dictionary are carefully selected for their specialized knowledge of the persons and periods treated in its volumes.

Volume III, which relates to all of Canada from Newfoundland to British Columbia in the 19th century and in which Sir James Douglas has a prominent position, includes amongst its contributors George Newell, of our provincial archives, Dr. Patricia Roy, of University of Victoria, and historians Dr. Dorothy Blakey Smith and Madge Wolfenden Hamilton.

Asked how many years it will take to fully complete the dictionary, Francess Halpenny quickly answered that compilation would be going on "long after I have retired."

She pointed to a plan that will see volumes three to nine published within 14 years. Then suggests there will be need for "continuing revision and many futher volumes as time goes on."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thursday, Feb. 17, 1972
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Partnerships, special relationships may be put to test. Many preconceived notions are overturned. You advance through daring, originality, ability to be versatile. Move with times. Welcome progress.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some restrictions ultimately work for your benefit. Don't force issues. Steady pace gets you where you're going. Check facts, figures. Machines now can go haywire. Intelligent inquiry can save you money.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Some friends now exhibit tendency to talk too much. Be sure you get your own point across. Ignore one who tells tales out of school. Special message is highlighted. Be analytical. Take nothing for granted.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Situation at home requires attention. Domestic area is accented. Make concession to family member. You gain through diplomacy. You lose if unreasonable. Don't permit pride to block progress. You will understand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Hold off on travel decisions. You require additional information. Long-range plans are subject to change. Places is involved. See in light of reality. Don't become victim of wishful thinking. Relatives disagree.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You gain insight into financial transaction. You get chance for advancement. But try to delay money arrangement. You do better now by reviewing, utilizing past experience, don't jump at first offer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tear down in order to rebuild. Don't be awed by tradition. Time has come to break from past. Future is what you make it — and opportunity is present. Know this and respond accordingly. Aries is involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You discover new ways of accomplishing. Stress original approach. Bring forth creative resources. Be independent in thought, action. Avoid excess. Remember recent resolutions concerning health, diet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lover's quarrel occurs if you are impulsive. Don't create situation which later will require apology. Avoid being too harsh with young persons. Follow intuition. One who taught you much makes reappearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Business conditions are unsettled. Expansion is due. But there are numerous details which require personal attention. Aim towards security. Don't be in too much of a hurry. Sagittarian plays key role.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obtain valid hint from Leo message. Some neighbors, relatives are misinformed. Don't believe everything you hear. Be thorough. Check reports. Avoid becoming involved in wild-goose chase.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Protect assets. Some would like to be reckless — with your money. Get accounting. Get tax returns in order. Your holdings require review. Dealings indicated with Gemini and Virgo individuals. Stick to facts.

Homemade Health Cereal

By MARY MOORE

The Lord and you must be watching over me. Out of a blue sky in the same mail came two requests: one for a reasonable facsimile of Nutri Crunch or Granola and another giving me the recipe for homemade health cereal. It did not stop there. During the next few days I received three offers of the recipe for health cereals and a fat envelope containing a plastic Nutri Crunch bag for a sample of what was needed.

A long distance call from Wanda and Bill at 11:25 p.m. gave me their method. Barbara B's daughter's music teacher's wife gave me her method. The object of all of these homemade formulas is to reduce the price of 79 cents per pound. These health cereals are so popular and nutritious many families are abandoning packaged ready-to-eat cereals entirely.

I went downtown and found the coarse rolled oats, sesame seeds and wheat germ at the seed store. I had to go to the health food store for the shelled sunflower seeds.

HOMEMADE HEALTH CEREAL

(20 cups)

16 cups coarse rolled oats (3c per 5-lb. bag)
2 cups wheat germ (25c per lb.)
1 cup sesame seeds (25c per 15-oz. pkg.)
1 cup shelled sunflower seeds (55 per lb.)
2 cups chopped unsweetened coconut
½ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 cup honey
1 cup hot water
1 cup cooking oil (I recommend safflower oil)
1 tsp. vanilla

In your large roasting pan mix together oats, wheat germ, seeds, coconut, sugar and salt. Mix together until blended the honey and hot water then stir in the oil and vanilla. Patiently stir this wet mixture into the dry ingredients until thoroughly incorporated. Mine was 2¼" deep in the roasting pan. Bake on centre shelf at 225 deg. Fahr. stirring every 10 minutes until all oats are crisp and pale gold — about 1 to 1¼ hours. Cool and store in baggies or double plastic bags in cool place or in freezer. Serve as you would packaged cereal but with milk only for it contains its own sweetener.

When I am starving hungry about 4 p.m. I dip up a spoonful and cheerfully chew it dry.

I fondly hope our readers will realize the significance of this discovery in breakfast foods.

Lang: Calm After Storm

OTTAWA (CP) — John Turner romped into the justice department four years ago. His successor, Otto Lang, is more the calm after a storm.

Where Mr. Turner was bursting with ideas when he became justice minister in 1968, the new minister from the Prairies, a former Saskatchewan University law dean, says:

"I expect to take some time in getting a complete feel of the department before I begin to think about what can be done and in what period of time."

Mr. Turner has left plenty to think about. A bill on electronic eavesdropping didn't get beyond first reading in the long crowded session that ends this week.

It is expected to reappear in the throne speech opening the new session of Parliament Thursday, along with a package bill of Criminal Code amendments.

The package bill is expected to aim at removing vagrancy from the Criminal Code and to insert prohibitions against air piracy and concealed weapons.

DOESN'T TAKE STAND

Mr. Lang, in his first interview after becoming justice minister, bobbed and weaved on issues like abortion, capital punishment and divorce.

The most he would say about capital punishment is that Parliament will have to make a decision before the five-year trial suspension ends Dec. 29.

His view on divorce and abortion law is that more time is needed to see how the changes of the late 1960s are working.

The 39-year-old Lang said he isn't satisfied with a Criminal Code amendment on obscenity. That has opened the way for everything from nudist magazines to X-rated movies.

"I'm not very satisfied with the way that's operating. I hope I may be able to get some attention for this."

With speculation rising about a spring election campaign, Mr. Lang's promotion to justice from manpower is being interpreted by some as a move to bolster his prestige on the Prairies and show that the government really is interested in the West. As Prime Minister Trudeau's Prairie lieutenant, he retains responsibility for the Canadian wheat board.

BACKGROUND GOOD

However, his personal qualifications for the justice ministry are impeccable. He is a Rhodes Scholar and another law teacher says he was a brilliant student.

He became dean of law at the University of Saskatchewan at the age of 29, building what has been described as an excellent faculty.

The sandy-haired, round-faced Lang, who has been described as looking like an adult Charlie Brown behind his horn-rimmed glasses, comes on just as softly. But one political columnist calls him a "cold logic engine" and his record belies his reticent personality.

Only two Liberals were elected from Saskatchewan in 1968 and Mr. Lang, in his first political contest, was one of them. He was a cabinet member within two weeks.

HAS BEEN WHEAT MAN

He has been the wheat man in the cabinet, first as minister without portfolio, then as minister of manpower and immigration for 14 months, and now as justice minister. As such, he has been a rural target during some of the worst years for wheat sales in recent history.

LANG

Last fall, in a byelection caused by the death of A. B. Douglas, also elected in 1968, the Liberals lost Assiniboia riding to the New Democrats.

Since then Mr. Lang, who won his Saskatoon-Humboldt seat by a slim 600 votes in 1968, has been promoted and has introduced the long-debated two-price system for wheat.

The two-price system, sought by farmers for 20 years, means that the federal government subsidizes Prairie wheat at a higher price domestically than it sells for on the export market.

Ireland's 'Plush Ghetto'

By CARL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The deputy premier of the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Republic of Ireland—some say it's possible next president—is a Protestant.

This in itself is a striking example of the differences in status and opportunity between the tiny Protestant minority in the south and the much larger Catholic minority in embattled Ulster.

Although nothing in Ulster's constitution precludes a Catholic holding office, it was only recently that one was appointed to cabinet hank — and in a temporary, new posting.

Of course, Erkine Childers, the Republic's second-in-command, may be a special case. He has impeccable Republican ancestry, being the son of a famous author who fought in the Irish civil war and was shot. Nevertheless, the first Irish president, Douglas Hyde, was also a Protestant and modern Ireland holds other examples.

ARE ON BENCH

Of the top 12 Irish judges, two are Protestants. Dublin's distinguished Trinity College is still largely Protestant-run and elects as many representatives to the Irish Senate as the larger National University, a Catholic establishment.

The remaining Protestant enclave in the south, about five per cent of the country's three million population, still retains much of the wealth and social position of the original Anglo-Irish "ascendancy" which ruled until the nationalists achieved independence 50 years ago.

They were prominent in such fields as banking and insurance. One Catholic politician quoted in a recent newspaper report described them as living in a "plush-lined ghetto."

The Irish constitution specifically guarantees all citizens the free profession and practice of religion, subject to public morality and order. It bans discrimination on religious grounds.

But the country's way of life is heavily oriented towards the Catholic faith, including prohibition of divorce and family planning, censorship of books and films and control of education by the Catholic church.

RESENT ATMOSPHERE

Some Protestants resent the cultural atmosphere and frustration tends to mount with their feelings that there is virtually nothing they can do about the situation.

Many of them are reported to favor retention of some links with the British Crown and are unsympathetic with the general Republican approach of reunification of all Ireland. However they remain silent knowing that their views are not shared by the vast majority of their countrymen.

In practice, many small Irish towns are divided by an invisible wall between the Protestant community—which often embraces the local gentry—and the Catholic majority. Here subtle discriminations have traditionally been exercised, usually over such questions as mixed religion marriages and entry to exclusive social clubs.

Isolated examples have occurred of Catholic pressure against the Protestant minority —mostly Church of Ireland Anglican - with about 30,000 Presbyterians and other denominations. Usually these expressions of disapproval the religious training of children of mixed marriages.
are aroused by disputes over

A Church of Ireland rector near Dublin said recently that when he became involved in such a dispute, he received phone calls at all hours from angry Catholics "who let it be known they didn't think Protestants had any more right to live here than lice or rats or any other vermin."

SEES VICIOUSNESS

He says: "We're living in a fool's paradise if we think there isn't this viciousness underneath the crust."

Observers suggest that if Ireland were united, many northern Protestants would probably remain in the north among their own community. Some might wish to join the Irish civil or foreign service, but under present regulations would have to learn Gaelic.

Opportunities in the theatre and press might lure some northern Protestants to Dublin. Belfast's theatrical activity is scant compared to the richness of the Dublin stage, and the four southern morning newspapers are less tied to sectarian interests than their two Belfast counterparts.

Southern Ireland's tax-haven status for artists and writers might prove another magnet. But for the bulk of the Ulster population, welfare benefits in the republic would have to double to match those handed out under the British umbrella.

CHANGES A MUST

Many other built-in features of life in the republic would doubtless have to be modified before unity could find acceptance among northern Protestants. Although Dublin's ultra-conservative Archbishop John McQuaid now has retired, the church still wields a powerful influence over daily life and the Catholic-directed book censorships still in force.

Last week the Dublin government declined even to give a first reading to a bill designed to allow the sale of contraceptives in drugstores. Many similar aspects of Eire life are accepted by its present Protestant minority but would grate on Ulster sensibilities.

The poet William Butler Yeats, when a senator in the Irish Parliament of 1925, warned the Senate then that if southern Ireland was seen to be governed by Catholic ideas alone, "you will never get the north."

TOWING'S A SNAP FOR HUSKIES

MILTON, Ont. (CP) — On a snow-covered county road near this community, 25 miles west of Toronto, a powerful car accelerates to pass a slow-moving vehicle.

It winds up in a ditch.

The slow-moving vehicle, a sleigh driven by Steve French, hitches up to the big car and, with a hearty "mush", the sleigh and seven Siberian huskies rescue the car.

There are 23 Siberian huskies, worth a total of $11,000, in the kennel run by Mr. French and his brother, Peter, and some of them can pull 1,000 pounds each. Towing a few thousand pounds of car out of a ditch is just a little extra exercise for the dog teams which do practice road work three nights a week.

They would rather trot along at 20 miles an hour, however, towing Mr. French and a 40-pound sleigh. One dog, Allerelli Bilkoff, has led one of Mr. French's three racing teams to victory throughout Ontario and the northern United States.

In fact the huskies like to run so much that when they appeared in Milton's Santa Claus parade in December they had to be hitched to a panel truck to keep them at a walking pace. And at that Mr. French's father, who rode in truck, had to keep the brakes on to hold them back.

Mr. French hasn't started a towing-service business with his dogs, although they are available in emergencies.

The Masses Will Revolt—Or Maybe They'll Just Stay Home

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Latin America can be a frustrating place for a young revolutionary who dreams of leading a column of angry, ill-fed peasants against a government of self-satisfied and perhaps corrupt politicians.

Despite burgeoning population growth, unchecked farm-to-city migration, and chronic unemployment and under-employment, Latin America continues to be essentially characterized by deeply entrenched social and economic rigidities.

The spectre of masses rising up in indignation against their rulers has long haunted U.S. state department policy makers, but the pattern for most of the region has been and remains one of general acquiescence, or maybe cynical resignation, to the status quo.

In no two countries is the nature of the power structure exactly the same. Much as it was 20, 50, or 100 years ago, Latin America is still largely composed of powerless poor and powerful military and economic elites.

There have been 20 or so "revolutions" over the last decade but these usually have involved little more than a reshuffling of personnel at the top of the power pyramid.

RESISTANT TO CHANGE

Resistance to change seems especially characteristic of the smaller countries. Gen. Alfredo Stroessner of Paraguay has often resorted to repressive tactics to put down dissidents but the popularity of his 17-year-old paternalistic rule seems to grow.

The Somoza family has run Nicaragua 35 years, accumulating fantastic wealth along the way, but opposition is weak and fragmented.

In El Salvador, presidential elections are to be held shortly and the odds-on favorite is a right-of-centre army general, Arturo Armando Molina, the hand-picked successor-designate of President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez, himself an army general.

In neighboring Guatemala, the last decade has been marked by bloody political wars but the country remains firmly in the grasp of a military-economic oligarchy.

Civilian presidents serve at the sufferance of the military in Ecuador and the Dominican Republic. Despite myriad social problems and occasional rumblings of discontent, the social structures in both countries remain largely as they were decades ago.

Perhaps the element of Latin American society most impervious to change is the Indian population. Whether he is Mexican, Peruvian, Guatemalan or Bolivian, the Indian has never had much use for the trappings of modern civilization. There are cases of destitute Indians who have made large sums of money in Bolivia from agrarian reform but who have refused to buy even the basic necessities they lacked.

While a social, political-economic continuity pervades much of Latin America, there are several exceptions to the rule. Perhaps no country in the world has broken more decisively with its past during the last 13 years than Cuba. A shift to the left has produced a Marxist president and a frightened oligarchy in Chile. In Uruguay, defections out of the two traditionalist parties have made the leftist-leaning Broad Front coalition a conspicuous force in political life.

Although socialism is not an issue, there are signs of political upheaval in Colombia's restless masses.

French Mails Slipping

PARIS (AP) — The once-excellent French postal system is going the way of the French telephone system—downhill.

High costs, mounting volume and glutted arteries have brought the spectre of no mail on Saturdays, a zip code and uniform-sized envelopes.

The French post-telephone-telecommunications department still maintains the rule that a letter should be delivered the following day to any destination in the country. But officials admit that only about 80 per cent have been making it.

The Paris underground pneumatic tube still gets a letter delivered across town in a couple of hours. But it now costs three francs—54 cents—instead of one—18 cents.

Business mail is so undependable that some big firms have shifted to private distributors.

No one anticipated the recent rise in mail volume, officials explain. It more than doubled between 1950 and 1968, compared with a mere 25-per-cent increase between 1914 and 1940.

HINDERED BY TRAFFIC

Another trouble is the high cost of fringe services. The postal chequing system holds seven million accounts. Each transaction means at least one letter. The $6 billion "float" is loaned to other government agencies at only 1.5-per-cent interest. Critics say these accounts could best be handled by banks. But in France, only the rich people have bank accounts.

Modern times take a toll too. Mail trucks just can't get through the traffic to meet plane and train schedules. If a truckload of air mail for Marseille misses the plane, it can't get back to town in time for the overnight train.

Personnel problems are symptomatic of a rural society being rapidly urbanized. In Paris, about the only sorters attracted by the basic salary of $175 a month are country youths with grade school educations. An experienced sorter who knows Paris can handle 2,000 letters an hour, officials say. But these boys barely make 1,500, even after months of experience.

There are city-country differences in the weight of the mail sack, too. A city postman distributes about 1,800 pieces a day, but his country counterpart does only about 200.

A new system in the works will require three more numerals on the present two-digit county code, and will handle only uniform business-sized envelopes. A keyboard operator will transfer the zip code into a fluorescent code for automatic sorting machines.

But officials know that the French people "don't want to be turned into numbers." They fear that the least sabotage, spontaneous or organized, could eliminate any possible savings.

Island Students Win SFU Awards

VANCOUVER (CP) — Norman T. Wickstrom of Beaver Cove, on Vancouver Island, is one of four students at Simon Fraser University awarded $225 awards for valuable contributions to the university or the community.

Recipients of $150 awards include Arie Van Leyenhorst of Port Alberni, Ronald Vernie of Kitimaat, and Gerald Warner of Blueberry Creek.

FLQ FILM PLANNED

LOS ANGELES (CP-AP) — A book about the 1970 Cross and Laporte kidnapping crisis in Quebec will be made into a movie and will star French-Canadian actors, the book's author said Tuesday.

Brian Moore, who write The Revolution Script, said in an interviw the movie dealing with the kidnapping of British trade official James Jasper Cross and Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte "will be a political thriller with the main characters portrayed by French-Canadian actors."

Moore, a native of Northern Ireland who later worked as a newspaper man in Montreal and is a Canadian citizen, has described his book as a non-fiction novel.

He said he had finished writing the first draft of the film's scenario.

During the interview, Moore said the kidnappings and subsequent murder of Laport seems to have destroyed the effectiveness of the Front de Liberation du Quebec, the group which carried out the kidnappings.

Moore said the FLQ "seems much less powerful today and has less potential than it had 1½ years ago."

Moore said the movie he is writing will focus on the kidnappers themselves and not on the political climate which produced the violence against Laporte and the subsequent introduction of the War Measures Act.

Moore's book was critical of the act and the writer says he still believes it was a "dangerous and repressive law which could lead to facism."

He said the movie account of his book is being filmed by Poterton Production of Montreal and will be directed by Donald Brittain.

Student Director Praised

Adjudicator Colin Gorrie congratulated Miss McTaggart on her direction of Guernsey Le Pelley's Nobody Sleeps, performed by her fellow students.

Congratulating the entire group on its performance, Gorrie particularly praised the lighting effects and the way in which Dallas Akers, Jerri Bateman and Sharon Welsh carried the dialogue.

He said Chris Bender, who played the lead male role of Spike, "should have reacted more blustery."

MILLSTREAM PLAYS

Two plays were presented at Millstream elementary Tuesday afternoon.

The third grade of the school performed Claire Boiko's Who Will Bell the Cat? The director was Harold Banks.

Gorrie said all the performers spoke well and clearly and congratulated Banks on the set, costumes and masks.

F. B. Watts' King Valentine's Tarts was the second play to be seen. It was presented by Millstream's intermediate grade and directed by Kenneth Bailey.

'PETER RABBIT'

Gorrie observed that it was a "very difficult" play to do and the performers had problems in relating to it. He suggested changes in the set and costumes. The students' diction was described as "very good."

Miss Margaret Greck directed Natalie Simons' Peter Rabbit, performed by Saseenos elementary school students during the evening session.

Gorrie said there appeared to be only one problem — that of set changes — and advised that these should be incorporated into the play as part of the performance. He said the presentation was "very good in all other respects."

Final play of the evening was Aristophanes' Women in Council, performed by Edward Milne senior high students under the direction of Dennis Kershaw.

Praising the set, designed to simulate ancient Greece, Gorrie said "the scene captured the sense of style and gave a feeling of location."

Fifteen plays will be presented before the festival ends Friday.

Board to Concentrate On Informing Parents

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

DUNCAN — The Cowichan school board this year will concentrate more on better communication with parents and the public, newly-elected chairman Dave Bradbury said in an interview Tuesday.

To achieve this, Bradbury has appointed a special public relations committee and arranged for schools superintendent Eric Lewis to set up "parent school councils" in all 27 elementary, three junior secondary and one senior secondary school between the Malahat and Chemainus River.

Board meetings will be held once a month at different schools in the district in the hope the public will take part in the 30-minute question period to be held during the general business portion of the meeting.

The first meeting will be held at 7:30 Monday evening at Mount Prevost Junior Secondary. The second of the two meetings held a month later will be conducted as usual at the board office.

"We will continue with the board's policy to have board representatives at all public meetings should they be invited," Bradbury said. "We found it to be quite successful last year."

Bradbury, 45, of Mill Bay, who was re-elected for his second term in December, said the lack of communication between the board and the public is one of the main reasons he ran as trustee originally.

"The whole object of this public relations campaign is to keep the public fully informed as to referendums and budgets," he said. "We must be able to justify our educational system to the public and I hope this is a way to get referendums passed."

By forming parent school councils, Bradbury hopes to encourage parents to become more involved in the school system.

The councils are not to replace the Parent-Teacher Association that is run on a district level, he said.

"I hope that by setting up these councils that parents can relate to each school and their complaints and problems can then be channelled to the board. Many parents appear to be diffident to going forward and talking directly to a principal."

★ ★ ★

"Hopefully, through group discussions we will get a feedback from the parents as to what they want in their schools," Bradbury added.

"By doing this I hope they will have more confidence in communication with the board and it will do away with petitions."

Board members have found that by having volunteer aids in the schools, parents are becoming more involved.

"Currently we have about 260 mothers volunteering their time right now," said Bradbury. "They donate a tremendous amount of time and can see what is going on."

Bradbury said no referendums are pending this year. Rather than go to the public with an operating budget referendum this year, trustees decided to cut back in order to work within the allotted 108 per cent. He said there was little chance of a referendum passing because "the climate is not right."

Board members announced recently that 21½ jobs will be cut. Some will be cut immediately while others such as 12 teaching positions will be cut in September. Teaching supplies are to be cut in half and sums allocated to some particular services such as special education and district departments will be dropped or halved.

Cowichan school district's budget for 1972 is $4,436,022, 5.59 per cent above the 1971 budget of $4,201,223. The provisional budget introduced in January was $4,569,000.

"We felt that by cutting many frills in services, without endangering the educational system, that we could still provide the public with value for their educational dollar," Bradbury noted.

He warned that cutbacks can only go so far before "we seriously start to endanger our good educational system. We have done this now for the past three years without resorting to the holding of an operating cost referendum."

BRADBURY
. . . closing the gap

Bradbury, a millwright at the Crofton pulp and paper mill as well as a chicken farmer, has lived in Mill Bay for 11 years. He has two boys and a girl.

Born in England, Bradbury lived in India until his father, who was in the armed forces, returned to England. Bradbury was 10 years old at the time.

★ ★ ★

After completing his formal education in England, he joined the air force and in 1946 attended Reading University at Berkshire, England. He then went on a scholarship to a college in Trinidad where he received an associate degree after studying tropical agriculture for a year.

Before moving to the Cowichan Valley, Bradbury was a tea plantation manager in Kenya where he lived for 14½ years.

Fleet Flapjack Flipper Wins Frying Pan

Over distances of 50 and 100 yards, contestants ranging in age from very young to comfortably old ran down the length of the field. The rules required that each contestant, armed with a frying pan and a pancake, flip his cake at least three times between start and finish.

If the pancake drops, the contestant stops, picks it up and continues. First one over the line wins.

About 300 spectators cheered the contestants.

Other winners were: grandmothers, Mrs. Nellie Miller; men's open, Dennis Beech; women's open, Mrs. Penny Quesnell; boys 12-13, Robert Empey; girls 12-13, Brenda Mowat; boys 10-11, Jay Burdin; girls 10-11, Susan Mowat; boys 8-9, Joe Toutant, Douglas Luke; girls 8-9, Glenda Woodley, Theresa Byron; boys 6-7, Tony Kaye; girls 6-7, Linda Kaye; kindergarten, Lyal Brown.

In Olney, England where it is believed the pancake race tradition originated, Willa Crouch, 23-year-old housewife, won the 415-yard race in one minute 10 seconds.

Douglas Prepared To Aid Stowaway

NANAIMO (CP) — T. C. Douglas said Tuesday he's prepared to intercede on behalf of a 20-year-old Cuban girl who arrived here as a stowaway last week and asked for political asylum.

Immigration authorities in Ottawa have not yet announced a decision in the case of Lydia Del Rio Turini, who fled Cuba by stowing away on the Greek freighter Dorine Papalios.

Mr. Douglas, former leader of the New Democratic Party who represents the federal riding of Nanaimo, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa he doubts that the girl would succeed in an application for landed immigrant status under the immigration department's point system.

Under the system, applicants must compile a certain number of points, awarded for language ability, trade skills, employment guarantees, educational standing and other factors.

"She should appeal to the minister to give her permission to stay in Canada as a landed immigrant on the grounds that she is a political refugee seeking asylum," said Mr. Douglas.

He said he would be prepared to make strong representations to Immigration Minister Bryce Mackasey on that ground, and if that fails, "I would be prepared to appear before the Immigration Appeal Board myself."

1-WAY ROUTES HOT POTATO

Whether to encourage the use of one-way streets in downtown Victoria will be the first question to confront the city's newly-formed Central Business District Advisory Committee.

The topic of one-way streets is controversial, and the new committee should not shy away from its honestly held views because of this, Ald. Clyde Savage told the inaugural meeting Tuesday.

Savage was appointed by Mayor Peter Pollen to form the committee, which was a campaign promise of Pollen's before the Dec. 11 mayoralty election. Pollen has been openly critical of some of the one-way street plans advanced by city officials.

SHOULD BE OPEN

Savage's view that the advisory committee meetings should be open to press and radio reporters was maintained over some objections.

"Everybody in the town is interested and they want to know what's doing," Savage said today. He did not think press releases composed by the committee would be adequate communication with the public and the rest of the downtown business community, he said.

The first business meeting of the committee is scheduled for Feb. 29. Savage said the agenda will be one-way streets, and he hopes discussion will be full and wide-ranging. Specific recommendations will be made to city hall at the meeting after that, he said.

NO OBLIGATION

Council will be under no obligation to accept anything the committee recommends, but Savage said the members are "all very enthusiastic."

"They think they can really go somewhere," he said.

NRC Study Questions Fluoride Use

OTTAWA (CP) — A National Research Council study released Tuesday calls for a close investigation of the effects of fluoride on man.

It suggests that man may be adding more fluoride to his environment than he should.

The report says that man is probably exposed to more naturally-occuring fluoride than was heretofore suspected, and that no one really knows what effect that could have.

It notes that scientific investigation of the effects of fluoride on humans has been limited almost completely to extremes.

It has shown that low levels of fluoride, such as the amount that might be added to a municipality's water supply to prevent tooth decay, have no significant negative effect in themselvds.

Other studies had shown that very high doses could cause skeletal abnormalities, anemia and disorders of the skin, eyes, gastro-intestinal tract and nerves.

The council's report says little work has been done on what effect "borderline" levels of fluoride might have — levels that could result if people absorb fluoride from several sources.

These could include a fluoridated water supply, fluoridated toothpaste and vitamin pills, food from fluoride-polluted areas and beverages prepared with fluoridated water, as well as pharmaceuticals, cosmetics and aerosol sprays that emit fluoride in various ways.

The report was prepared by J. R. Marier, an analytic chemist in the council's environmental section, and Dyson Rose, in the cell culture section of the biology division.

Dr. Marier, interviewed Tuesday, said: "I'm not trying to be an alarmist, but I don't want to be overly reassuring and sweep this under the rug on the grounds that fluoride will never hurt us, because I'm not all that sure."

"I want society to start using for fluorides the same ground rules it used with DDT and lead — careful scientific investigation."

Bruch 'Pie-Eyed' Over Potatoes

Herbert Bruch, SC — Esquimalt, was accused today of making "pie-eyed" statements when he blamed marketing boards for allowing low grade potatoes to be sold by grocers.

"He doesn't know what he's is talking about," said Alan Barker, manager of the Island Vegetable Co-Operative Association, the man responsible for sorting and grading potatoes in Victoria.

"He's speaking for effect," he added. "He never even bothered to get the facts."

Several Victoria grocers agreed that Bruch knew nothing about marketing and potatoes.

Bruch said in the legislature Tuesday that grocers are selling B.C. potatoes which are little better than "pig feed."

'PIG FEED'

He hauled a bag of spuds on to his desk during the budget debate and said he had bought them in a local store.

"They are suppose to be Grade One potatoes, but they can hardly be classified as pig feed," he said.

But some grocers said today they had received complaints about Idaho potatoes — not local spuds.

"Some of our clients have returned Idaho potatoes they bought from us because they were bad inside and boiled down to nothing," said one grocer. "They were replaced with B.C. potatoes."

IMPROPER SORTING

Bruch said he doubted B.C. potatoes tasted better than those grown in the United States. He blamed the problem on improper sorting procedures by growers and marketing boards.

"Bruch should first get his facts straight," said Barker. "First growers and marketing boards don't sort out the potatoes. Our co-op does this under licence from the B.C. Cost Marketing Board.

Barker claimed most of the complaints came from people who selected their potatoes from bins.

Dean Park Supports Saanich School Vote

Dean Park Property Owners' Association, North Saanich, voted at its annual meeting Tuesday to support the Saanich school district referendum to be presented March 11.

The association, re-activated after a three-year period during which no meetings were held, elected Wiliam Sherwood, 1968 McTavish as president, Douglas Cook, 1990 Bazan Bay, vice president and Mrs. E. A. Hay, 8535 E. Saanich, secretary-treasurer.

Directors for a two-year term are Mrs. W. G. Richmond, 8650 Emard Terrace, William MacLeod, 9060 E. Saanich and Charles Whitehouse, 9016 E. Saanich. One year directors are Mrs. Peter L'Hirondelle, 8575 E. Saanich, Patrick Burroughs, 8576 Emard Terrace and A. G. Gilmore, 9191 Rideau.

Deaf Agency 'Vital' Need

OTTAWA (CP) — It is "vital and urgent" that a national association for the deaf be set up, Health Minister John Munro said Tuesday.

In a prepared statement, he said his department is considering providing the money for a meeting of persons from organizations connected with the deaf.

POLICEMAN KILLED IN DACCA GUNFIGHT

DACCA (UPI) — Two rival groups of former Mukti Bahini guerrillas shot it out in downtown Dacca today, and it took the police, the army and the prime minister himself to restore peace.

One policeman was reported killed and an unknown number of persons injured in the gunfight.

Ottawa Lends Provinces $36M to Create Jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government announced today loans totalling $36,641,540 to seven provinces under the federal-provincial employment loans program.

The loans, with totals to date in brackets, are: Newfoundland $5,162,066 ($6,634,616), Prince Edward Island $227,000 ($366,860), New Brunswick $2,031,120 ($7,706,802), Ontario $22,306,670 ($23,642,102), Saskatchewan $2,835,829 ($6,515,829), Alberta $2,991,395 ($6,995,405) and British Columbia $1,587,160 ($12,917,769).

Loans under the $160.5-million program are to help initiate job-creating capital projects across the country.

A balance of about $18 million remains to be approved under the program. Quebec and Manitoba now have received their complete allocations.

Messiah Evidence Varies

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times quotes two Israeli scholars as saying they have found, in a 10th century Arabic manuscript, an apparent solution to the controversy over whether the description of Jesus by 1st century historian Josephus was a forgery.

The Greek text of Josephus' book The Antiquities of the Jews had been considered by some scholars as proof of Jesus' existence from a non-Christian source, since Josephus, a Jew, adopted the Roman pagan faith.

But modern scholars have questioned the description of Jesus' life in the Greek text as "too Christian," since it calls him "the Messiah" and flatly states that he rose after death. Some have called the passage a forgery.

The Times quotes research of two professors at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, Shlomo Pines and David Flusser, who found in an Arabic manuscript by a Bishop Agapius a quotation of the Josephus description of Jesus which sharply differs from the Greek version. It states only that Jesus' desciples "reported that he had appeared to them" after the crucifixion and described him as "perhaps the Messiah."

INCO Called, Few Chosen

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. recruited hundreds of workers to its Sudbury operations on the basis of optimistic market reports, only to announce massive layoffs a few months later when the reports proved inaccurate, union and management spokesmen said Tuesday.

Mickey Maguire, president of Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America, representing 18,000 Inco employees, said the company, armed with predictions of an upturn in nickel demand in late 1971, embarked on "a cross-Canada hiring spree."

He told the Ontario legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism that the predictions fell flat, Inco suspended some mine operations and laid off men.

Inco announced two weeks ago it planned to lay off about 600 men. The layoffs affected an additional 1,400 jobs in associated industry such as construction projects. Inco said the layoffs were necessary to avoid a build-up of inventories.

John McCreedy, Inco's Ontario vice-president and divisional general manager, told the committee that market analysis personnel had predicted an upturn in nickel demand for the last quarter of 1971.

STARTED HIRING

He said that with no reason to question the forecast, in view of the market analysis department's past record, the company began recruiting for its mining operations.

There was no upturn, he said, at least partially because an unusually high amount of nickel-bearing scrap metal was marketed during 1971.

By the end of last year, Mr. McCreedy said, Inco had $465 million worth of unsold nickel, compared with a surplus of $286 million in the previous year.

Bud Germa, NDP member of the legislature for Sudbury, charged earlier there is "certain evidence to support opinions that Inco's recently-built-up nickel surplus was deliberately accumulated to gain advantage at the bargaining table."

He asked that the provincial labor department investigate to what degree the present layoffs were designed to gain a bargaining advantage and that legislation be enacted which would require Inco to negotiate such cutbacks with the employees concerned.

Later, Mr. McCreedy said there was no intention to stockpile a surplus to use it as a club during contract negotiations.

Separatism to Harm Quebec, Says Official

TORONTO (CP) — William Tetley, Quebec's minister of financial institutions, companies and co-operatives, said Tuesday night that separatism would have a harmful effect on the economy of Quebec.

Speaking to a dinner meeting of the Junior Board of Trade, Mr. Tetley said separatism would work to the disadvantage of investors, industrialists and merchants.

He said the Quebec economy would not be able to exist alone.

Mr. Tetley, who represents the predominantly English-speaking riding of Notre Dame de Grace, said he opposes separatism and centralism—but favors federalism.

"Federalism means two levels of government," he said, "the Ottawa government and the 10 provincial governments resulting in a two-level division of powers."

He said this creates an effective balance of power.

"Separating and dividing ourselves will not help Quebec or Canada in the long or short run," he said.

Interment at Mount Royal Cemetery, Montreal.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Types of Sleeplessness

I am always interested in seeing what other physicians write about insomnia, since I have suffered from this distressing problem since the great influenza epidemic of 1918, when I worked to the point of exhaustion.

Recently, Dr. Dale G. Friend had an article in the journal "Today's Health" in which he says that he has found found types of insomniacs: (1) the tension insomniac, who keeps tossing and turning all night; (2) the fatigue insomniac, who dozes off immediately after dinner and awakens several hours later to spend the rest of the night awake; (3) the physical discomfort insomniac, who can't sleep because his aches and pains keep him awake; and (4) the in-and-out insomniac, who sleeps fitfully, drifting between the two states and rising in the morning convinced that he has not slept at all.

Doctors who have never had trouble sleeping are sometimes unsympathetic to the incomniac. They cannot imagine the distress and discomfort that the person can suffer lying awake hour after hour. Dr. Friend mentioned a doctor who fears that some people take too much sleeping medicine, but in my experience, most people would prefer not to take sleeping pills unless they absolutely have to. One trick that I have learned is not to keep taking one type of sleeping pill all the time. If the body gets used to it, it doesn't work well. The trick is to change back and forth between two types of medicine each few weeks.

One bit of advice that I often give to my insomniac patients is, "Don't use your nights for worry; use your nights for sleeping. If you really must worry, do it during the day."

One time, a woman confessed to me that she had been lying awake at night, worrying about her daughter, who was being slow in making up her mind to accept the proposal of marriage from a very "suitable" beau. I tried to make her see that in the first place, the night time is for sleeping and not for worrying; but more important, I said, "Wait a minute. That isn't your problem. The decision must be made by your daughter, and not you, so quit worrying about it."

SPECIAL DEALS FOR HOMEOWNERS
AT ASSOCIATES
If you're buying your house, you're eligible for a special Homeowner Loan at Associates any time you need cash. That means we may be able to give you a better deal. Lower rates . . . or longer terms . . . or even both.
The amount you can borrow is limited only by the equity you have in your home. $5,000, $10,000, maybe $25,000 or more. So if you have high-interest debts outstanding, or if you need cash for a second car, a boat, or any other good reason, talk to Associates about a low-interest Homeowner Loan. See how much better off you'll be — long-term.

Spadea Designer Pattern

71031 Eguzquiza

Elegance and superb tailoring make this ensemble by Eguzquiza a must for any woman's wardrobe. The deep V bib is in a contrasting color to match the lining and revers of the jacket. The shape of the dress is the slimming A-line and the brief jacket has short sleeves and a two-button closing. Perfect for silks, linen, cotton, synthetic blends and double knits. 71031 is cut in Misses Sizes 8-18. Size 12 requires approximately 3⅛ yards of 45" fabric for the dress and jacket and 1⅝ yards of 45" contrast. This pre-cut, pre-perforated Spadea Designer Pattern produces a better fit. To order 71031: give size, name and address. Send $2 in U.S. funds. Address SPADEA, Box N, Dept. CVX-5, Milford, N.J. 08848.

SCHOOL REFERENDUM 'PUBLIC MISCHIEF

School board candidate Frank Preston today termed "public mischief" a proposed referendum by Greater Victoria school board to raise $412,000 more than the allowable spending limit.

"The local taxpayer should not be asked to approve a $412,000 over-expenditure of the budget allowance," Preston said.

A referendum seeking that amount will be held March 11.

Preston is one of three candidates seeking the school board seat vacated by Dr. Donald Shorting, who resigned in January. The other candidates are Karel de Roo and Ted Robbins. A byelection will be held the same day as the referendum.

"Cuts to the school board budget must be made now just as they surely will have to be made in March when this silly referendum is defeated," Preston said. "Budget reductions should be made where they will not affect basic education requirements in the classroom."

Preston suggested that special attention be paid to "the high administration costs that exist in this district." He said the pupil-teacher ratio should not be increased and special services like instruction for deaf children should stay.

"The public is convinced that cuts can be made by the administration that can achieve economies and still present good education."

Preston said the cost of education should be removed from the municipal taxpayer and paid by provincial and federal governments and taxes on industry and resources.

'No Fat' in Saanich, School Boosters Say

Public approval on March 11 of the Saanich school district referendum for $1.6 million would cost the average homeowner the price of a package of cigarettes each month, according to a referendum committee fact sheet.

This fact emerged at a "referendum luncheon" at Claremont senior secondary school Monday during which ratepayers' representatives were deluged with school district information.

Referendum committee chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott emphasized that it is important not to confuse the Saanich referendum, which is for capital costs, with the Greater Victoria school district referendum, which is for operating costs.

Saanich school district has remained within the provincial government formula of 108 per cent allowed for operating costs.

NEED 'URGENT'

The need for more school facilities is urgent, declared Mrs. Parrott, adding "Saanich school district has no fat."

A building boom at the north end of the peninsula has necessitated transportation of 164 students from Sidney to neighboring elementary schools at a daily cost to the district of $64.

Claremont senior secondary is now using an extended day operation to accommodate the enrolment of 705 pupils.

This school provides classroom space for 655 but projected estimates show that 960 students will register for senior high school in September, 1973.

Because Saanich Peninsula population is growing at the rate of six per cent each year, total enrolment will jump from the present 5,500 students to 8,000 within the next nine years.

Approval of the referendum will provide for construction of a new junior-senior secondary school to be located in North Saanich on McDonald Park Road.

The present North Saanich junior secondary will then be converted to elementary school use.

A vocational wing in the new senior high school will provide for metal working and automotive instruction to complement the electronics and construction shops at Claremont. Both schools will offer the basic academic program in addition to vocational training.

A provincial grant of $80,000 covers the vocational wing and the district has obtained a federal government bonus of $240,000 leaving only 25 per cent of the total cost to be borne by taxpayers.

"A home with a market value of $25,000 might have its taxes increased by 49 cents a month," according to the referendum committee's fact sheet.

An intensive information program will occupy trustees at meetings throughout the community this month.

Tonight, Deep Cove elementary school parents host a meeting at the North Saanich school at 8 p.m. On Thursday, parents in the Beaver Lake, Durrance Road and Prospect Lake district will meet at Prospect Lake school and Monday, Feb. 21, Sidney PTA will listen to trustees at Sidney elementary.

Immigration Probe Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin called today for a full parliamentary inquiry into the immigration system, currently beset by severe problems.

Mr. Baldwin (Peace River) suggested the government has been stalling on changes in the Immigration Act and the Immigration Appeal Board Act because it fears loss of the ethnic vote.

One result was complaints from the U.S. about "smuggling rackets," in which Canada is the pipeline, operated by shady travel agencies for Chinese, Italian, Portuguese, Greek, Indian, Pakistani and Caribbean migrants.

Mr. Baldwin said Conservatives will press for reform in the new session of Parliament that begins Thursday.

Carnival Kills 88

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — Police proclaimed the 1972 Rio carnival as one of the most peaceful ever Tuesday with a total of only 88 deaths so far, a normal average for three summer days in the city. Many died as the result of disputes caused by what police called "overdrinking."

Gorton Secretary Gets Job

CANBERRA (AP) — Ainsley Gotto, private secretary to John Gorton, former prime minister of Australia, said tonight she is resigning to take a $22,000 taxfree job.

Her job with Gorton paid $8,600.

Miss Gotto, 25, will become executive assistant to William Pollock, a Canadian who is president of Drake International, one of the world's biggest employment agencies.

She has been Gorton's secretary since January, 1968, when he became prime minister and remained with him after he was ousted last year.

She was at the centre of a political dispute when some members of Gorton's Liberal party charged that she had undue influence over him.

Scientists To Study Gulf Flow

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Scientists from the Bedford Institute here plan to undertake a study of the Gulf of St. Lawrence in an attempt to get a better understanding of the gulf flows.

Dr. William Ford, director of the institute, said Tuesday night such things as the effect the construction of a crossing across the Strait of Belle Isle, separating insular Newfoundland and Labrador, would be studied.

He said such a crossing would likely make gulf waters warmer.

However, the impact of warm waters and its effect on the ice cover, would only be known after such a study is undertaken.

He said the study would be held in a year or so once the scale of investigation is determined.

Morgan's Becomes le Baie

Morgan's department stores, which 12 years ago became the Montreal branch of the nation's oldest merchant house, changes its name in June to "le Baie."

The name was chosen by The Bay's executives after popular surveys dictated a name recognizable in French or English and identifiable as the 301-year-old Hudson's Bay Co., according to A. Rolph Huband of Winnipeg, secretary of the company.

Huband was in Victoria to introduce Allan W. Brent, store manager replacing George Kosich, now general manager in Calgary.

He said the Morgan name had been allowed to continue because it was so well known in Quebec as a quality merchandiser.

Aussie Slavs Still Fight

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Sporadic bomb explosions and milder acts of violence reflect continuing rivalries within the big Yugoslav community in Australia.

An attempt early in January to blow up a statue of Gen. Draza Mihailovic outside Canberra's Serbian Club was the latest in a series of such incidents during the last four months.

The general, regarded as a hero by Serbian royalists, was executed by the Yugoslav government in 1946 as a war criminal and collaborator with the occupying Nazis.

Australia has about 200,000 Yugoslav migrants, many of them already naturalized. In the last five years alone, 80,760 Yugoslav settlers have arrived in the country, most of them with their fares subsidized by the Australian government.

A further 12,000 are expected to arrive in the coming year.

The immigration department does not break down the figures to show from which of the six Yugoslav republics the migrants come, but many are from Croatia and Serbia.

STRUGGLE ANCIENT

The Balkans have had a history over the centuries of power struggles between the Croats and the Serbs during the numerous occupations by foreign powers.

Australia now has the hard task of trying to avoid importing that region's conflicts along with its immigrants.

A spokesman for the Yugoslav embassy has alleged there are a number of Nazi war criminals working in Australia for the Ustachi, an extremist Croatian movement opposed to the present government in Belgrade.

"All collaborated with the Germans during the Second World War," he said.

Incidents between Croats and Serbs are not uncommon, and the recent bombing at the Canberra Serbian Club was blamed by the Serbs on the Croats.

Incidents directed against the Yugoslav government have been even more common, including bomb attempts at the Yugoslav embassy in 1969 and at the Consulate-general in 1970.

The bombing of the Yugoslav tourist agency in Sydney last October resulted in a formal apology from the Australian government.

Halifax Dodges Price Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs rose in all principal cities of Canada last month, except in Halifax where the consumer price index remained unchanged from December, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The largest increase was in St. John's, Nfld., where the index rose nine-tenths of one per cent in the month.

The statistics bureau said food prices rose in all the cities for which it keeps separate records, except Saint John, N.B. Slightly lower food prices there were offset by substantially higher rents and new car prices.

The indexes compiled for each city reflect price changes within the city only. They cannot be used to compare living costs between one city and another because costs differed when the indexes were started, and variations exist between the cities in the weight to be given to home heating.

Ottawa recorded the largest increase in living costs over the 12 months between January, 1971, and last month—4.8 per cent. St. John's, Nfld., registered the second largest, 4.6 per cent, and Edmonton and Calgary the smallest increase, 3.5 per cent.

Indexes for January, 1972, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, followed by indexes for December, 1971, were: St. John's, Nfld., 126.1, 125; Halifax, 128.2, 128.2; Saint John, N.B., 127.4, 126.9; Montreal 129.6, 128.9; Ottawa, 133.6, 133; Toronto, 132, 131.6; Winnipeg, 131.4, 131.1; Saskatoon and Regina, 126.3, 125.6; Edmonton and Calgary, 130.8, 130.3; Vancouver 130, 129.4.

Indexes based on 1969 prices equalling 100 were: Quebec City, 106.2, 105.6; Thunder Bay, 105.8, 105.4.

Sharing Invited On Road Repairs

Saanich public works committee will ask council to invite other Greater Victoria municipalities to share in the cost of maintaining Hartland Road, which leads to the area's garbage disposal grounds.

The decision Tuesday night followed a report from acting municipal engineer John Cowlin, who said when a 70-foot section of the road was washed away Jan. 21, the temporary repair job cost $2,300.

Cowlin said it will cost another $5,000 to install a culvert under the damaged section.

He suggested that because other municipalities use the road for dumping trips they should be invited to share in these costs, as well as the cost of future maintenance.

Cowlin also remarked that as this type of situation could arise again, because of the heavy use the road receives, some thought should be given to establishing alternative disposal grounds elsewhere.

He told the committee the wash-out occurred because the road bed had been built across a natural watercourse but without a culvert.

Burning Planned Of Wood Debris

A crash program of burning as much as four million cubic feet of wood debris on the Fraser River between Hope and Mission before heavy spring flows was approved today by the legislative forestry committee.

The proposal from the provincial forest service would cost $20,000, much less costly than attempting to catch the debris on its way to the ocean, the committee was told.

The debris, accumulated over several years, is accessible on gravel bars in seven major concentrations between Hope and Mission and might become dislodged by heavier than usual spring runoff, the forest service reported.

Further studies of the effect of the program should be made, the forest service said.

PTA, Brothers Talk

About 150 members of the B.C. Parent Teacher Federation met MLAs today in Victoria to discuss education policies and other matters.

The group met Education Minister Donald Brothers and some of the delegates were to attend the afternoon legislative sitting when Brothers was scheduled to speak.

Among topics raised by the PTA delegates were concern about cutbacks in school services as a result of government financial policies, the need for increased drug education and the need for a network of small receiving centres throughout the province to give intensive treatment to juvenile delinquents so they can be able to benefit from family care.

University Dying —Suzuki

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — David Suzuki, a British Columbia geneticist, said Tuesday that universities are modern-day dinosaurs.

"The university is a dying institution," he told students at the University of Waterloo Tuesday during a discussion period.

Dr. Suzuki is here to deliver the Hagey lectures, commemorating the contributions of the university's founding president, Dr. J. G. Hagey.

He told students that the granting of a degree as a mealticket was never the purpose of the university and that "faculties have prostituted themselves to encourage that mentality."

"A degree doesn't guarantee a job, and it certainly doesn't make you a better person."

He said he believes many persons could get greater fulfilment outside of university and the "majority of students have no business being here—it's bad for them, it's bad for everyone."

BIRTH CONTROL ISSUE BANNED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The issues of parental rights versus human rights and of what constitutes good taste were the basis of a school board meeting which resulted in the banning of a high school newspaper containing a lengthy article on birth control.

The article is contained in the February edition of the Okanookie Standard, a student newspaper published by the Inter-High Students' Society.

The board voted 5 to 4 that the February issue be banned because it did not meet the "standard of responsibility" required for distribution in city secondary schools.

Fred Rowell, chairman of student services for the board, said Tuesday the main arguments against the article were that it contained questionable advice on birth control methods and blunt medical terminology to describe the male and female sexual organs.

Bank Worker Charged In $53,000 Theft

VERNON (CP) — RCMP today issued a warrant charging John Wayne Geick, a 22-year-old bank employee, with theft of more than $53,000 from the bank where he worked.

Police laid the charge after cash and an unknown quantity of travellers' cheques were discovered missing from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in this Okanagan Valley city.

Geick was transferred to Vernon from a Vancouver branch of the same bank earlier this month, police said.

Loading Resumes

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The crew of the British freighter Silvercove walked off the job for about 12 hours after alleged mistreatment of two of their members by National Harbors Board police.

Loading of lumber was delayed after longshoremen refused to cross a picket line set up by the crew at a local dock.

Slide Closes Road

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A major snow slide Tuesday closed Highway 16 between Terrace and this city 75 miles to the west.

A highways department spokesman said the slide, about 1,500 feet long and up to 20 feet deep, came down on the highway about half way between the two centres. There were no injuries.

It was not known when traffic might be restored on the route.

Groundcover Plants Worth Considering

Write of groundcovers and every gardener sees expanses of soil covered permanently with low-growing plants requiring no human attention forevermore. An idealistic condition seldom reached in a "cultivated" garden.

When starting a new garden or re-doing an old one, groundcovers are worth considerable thought, for they are not things to plant in a wild rush of enthusiasm and then leave to their own inclinations.

One gardener may want a covering plant for a sunny or rocky area, another for a shaded damp spot. And there are all the in-between conditions occurring in gardens.

As with some other types of garden problems, temporary measures often pay dividends. In this case of groundcover plants whose main purpose is to suppress weeds (the unwanted grass and other native plants deposited as seeds by birds andwind) why not put in a season with temporary, annual plants?

During the period of preparation, subsequent cultivation and finally the removal of the annuals, you will reduce the present population of weed growth and the dormant seeds.

Of additional benefit to the permanent crop is the soil improvement you do for the annuals and the resulting conditioning.

The first thing we notice on turning up new soil is the appearance of thousands of seedlings whose presence we had never suspected. We have brought the dormant seeds of bygone years to the action area where light and air encourage germination.

Annual groundcovering plants can be low, easy, yet gay flowers as Candytuft, Sweet Alyssum or California-poppy. These grow if treated as described in an article last week on outdoor sowing.

Sown in small patches, the spaces between must be hand-weeded as long as necessary. The flower annuals will finally grow over the spaces making a solid groundcover.

The main point in cleaning the ground of weeds is to prevent their shedding more seeds. Cultivation brings more of the dormant seeds to surface where in turn they germinate and are removed as you continue surface cultivation.

In the meantime you have flowers to look at, perhaps something new for you to enjoy both in colors and fragrance. But the purpose is to prepare the soil for a groundcover which will be more or less permanent.

The only permanent groundcover is concrete; but here we work on the belief that where there is soil there should be plants.

Permanent plant groundcovers usually are chosen from the group known as sub shrubs, and may include any low-growing, woody-stemmed plant capable of spreading sideways either by means of its creeping branchlets rooting as they touch the soil or by its root stolons pushing up through the soil.

Several usefully lovely and desirable plants come into this category. Think up a few possibles yourselves and I will write about some on my own list in a few days.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

After South had gone down at his game contract, the post-mortem analysis revealed that the contract could (and should) have been fulfilled. Can you spot South's error in play and bring it to light? The deal arose in a high-calibre rubber-bridge game.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

SOUTH

♣ J 7 6 5 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Dbl.	Redbl.	1 ♠
Pass	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

On West's jack of spades lead, East signalled encouragement by playing the eight-spot. South won the trick with his queen. He then led a club to dummy's king, East taking his ace. East came back a spade, driving out South's ace, and simultaneously establishing West's spade suit.

When declarer next led a club, West discarded a diamond, thus revealing the bad break in the club suit. Declarer now returned to his own hand via the heart king, and led the diamond jack, finessing against West's hoped-for king. East won this trick. When play had ended, declarer had lost three spades, a club, and a diamond. What mistake did he make?

Admittedly, the distribution of the club suit was unkind to South, but he did not play the hand in expert fashion. Certainly, on the bidding, East rated to have the ace of clubs.

At trick two, South should have entered dummy via the ace of diamonds (spurning the finesse) in order to lead the three of clubs. If East took his ace, declarer would now have four cashable club winners, and a total of nine all in all: two spades, two hearts, one diamond and four clubs.

If East declined to take his ace, South would put up his jack, which would win. Having "stolen" a club trick, declarer would then return to the diamond suit, playing his jack and losing it to East's King. And once again South would have a fulfilled contract two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and one club.

As was stated, South was unlucky in finding the five adversely held clubs divided 4-1, rather than 3-2. If the latter distribution had existed, South would have made four club tricks by attacking clubs as he did. But, then, there was no necessity for him to have relied on a normal distribution of clubs.

Chief, Woman Linked

MONTREAL (CP) — A former prostitute told a Quebec police commission inquiry Tuesday she first met Police Chief Jacques Saulnier while he was drinking in a Montreal nightclub in 1963 or 1964.

The 32-year-old woman said that Mr. Saulnier spent two hours drinking and talking with a policeman and the owner of the establishment. She said she had seen Mr. Saulnier at the club "fairly often," about once a week or every 15 days.

The inquiry is investigating the conduct of Mr. Saulnier while he was in charge of the Montreal morality squad from 1963 to 1967.

At the request of her lawyer, the name of the witness was forbidden to be published "in her own interest" or the name, initials and addresses which might be mentioned in her testimony.

He will be the first witness to be called when the inquiry resumes Thursday. The chart was admited as evidence earlier Tuesday but only for identification purposes.

Mr. Picher first brought the report out in 1965 during an investigation into his conduct by the police disciplinary committee. He was subsequently fired.

Before an in-camera session took place, she said she met then Capt. Saulnier in his office on Dec. 14, 1965, following a search of her apartment. It was the first time she met him alone in his office, she said.

Mr. Saulnier questioned her about a notebook found in her apartment which contained names and phone numbers. The names also appeared on the chart, she said.

Judge Roger Gosselin ruled that the rest of her testimony would be given behind closed doors when she was asked if she ever had occasion to give a policeman information on prostitution.

The witness testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act which means her testimony can not be used against her in any subsequent criminal or civil actions.

Crowd 'Wasn't Afraid To Rush Us'—Policeman

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto policeman said Tuesday mounted officers of the Metropolitan Toronto police force were molested during a demonstration Oct. 25 at the Ontario Science Centre where Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin was a guest.

Insp. Edwin Johnson, in charge of the mounted unit, said:

"It's the first case we've had where the people seemed unafraid to run up to the horses, grab the bridles and grab the policemen by the legs and swing at them with placards."

Tuesday's testimony also resulted in Judge Vannini ordering two CBC executives to produce television news films shot by network cameramen but not shown to the Canadian public.

Insp. Johnson said members of the mounted unit were forced to use riding crops to protect themselves and their horses.

He denied previous testimony by demonstrators that the police on horseback galloped into the crowd. He said there was a "wall of signs and people" and no room to gallop.

Booklet Gives Vote Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Officially, Jean-Marc Hamel doesn't care whether you vote in the next federal election or not.

But Mr. Hamel, the country's chief electoral officer, and his staff are working hard to ensure that you'll know how to go about votiing.

With a revised act on the books and speculation flying about a spring election, he and his staff are in high gear on an information program.

It is designed to highlight Canada Elections Act changes that affect the voter and give an outline of voter rights and privileges.

Those who run elections have turned to the same methods candidates use to get their messages across.

WILL USE PAMPHLETS

A five-page pamphlet, outlining the legal changes and what they mean to the individual voter, is to be in every household within about seven days of an election announcement.

The voter will be urged to keep it as a reference until the election is over.

Consideration also is being given to television, radio and newspaper advertisements, spaced through the five or six weeks of an election campaign, to complement and stress the material in the pamphlet.

Drafts of the pamphlet, both English and French versions, were tested on about 200 Ottawa residents picked to represent a wide social spectrum. A questionnaire followed to assess its value.

Some revisions of the text then were made and it now has been sent to the printers.

BOIL DOWN LAW

Boiling down the hundreds of pages and complicated legal language of the electoral law into five easily understood pages was a major task.

"Even so, we've managed to cover about 95 per cent of the law," the consultant said.

In simple terms, the sections spell out:

—Who can vote;

—How an election is run;

—How enumeration, the actual voter head count, is taken;

—How voter lists are made, including how to get your name on if you were inadvertently overlooked.

—How to use advance polls.

—How to use a voting proxy, a step being introduced for the first time in federal elections.

—Hours polling stations are open.

—What the ballot slip looks like, how to mark it, and how secrecy of choice is protected.

The electoral law was revised by Parliament in 1970 and the Commons committee on privileges and elections suggested an information campaign before the next election to make the new system clear to voters.

SUGGESTED BY MPs

The campaign is a result of the suggestions by MPs but also could have what electoral experts see as a beneficial side effect.

An open and public system, for everything except how the voter marks his ballot, is considered the best protection against attempts to tamper with the process. The more public knowledge about how the system works, about what is legal and what illegal, the less chance of someone trying to pull a fast one and the more chance he'll be caught if he does.

The pamphlet stresses the positive aspect. If you see that a neighbor's name has been left off the voting list, for example, you are urged to make this known to electoral officials.

The unstated side of the coin, of course, is that a voter who spots a name on the list taken from a nearby cemetery tombstone also is expected to call in.

Keeping the machinery operating in the people's view is the idea because, as one expert puts it, "it's a process that belongs to them."

Alberta Judge Fined, Given Driving Ban

CALGARY (CP) — Mr. Justice H. W. Riley of the Alberta Supreme Court trial division was fined $300 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving in connection with a Feb. 3 accident.

His driver's licence was suspended for six months.

Crown prosecutor E. P. Adolphe withdrew a charge of leaving the scene of an accident which had been laid at the same time.

Board Move Studied

CALGARY (CP) — The federal government is giving serious consideration to moving the National Energy Board to Alberta from Ottawa, says Art Dixon, former speaker of the provincial legislature.

The Social Credit MLA told a panel discussion Tuesday he has it "on good authority" that the move is being considered.

Fur Prices Climb

EDMONTON (CP) — Trappers and fur buyers can look to the future with optimism again as fur sales this week were the best in 20 years, says Bill Levine of Edmonton Fur Auction Sales Ltd.

Prices for ranch mink pelts at the two-day action, which ended Tuesday, averaged 25 to 30 per cent above those of last year, he said. They ranged up to $95 for prime wild mink from the Mackenzie Delta area of the Northwest Territories.

2-Price Gas Urged

EDMONTON (CP) — The City of Edmonton would like to see a two-price system for natural gas in Alberta and council this week authorized its utilities and engineering committee to include such a recommendation in its report to the energy resources conservation board.

The two-price system would mean that gas exported from the province would be higher priced than gas for domestic use.

Still Some Hope

REGINA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Tuesday there still is a chance that Saskatchewan can come to an individual agreement with Ottawa about the proposed "small farms development program."

The federal government announced Monday that a conference with provincial ministers of agriculture had not produced a concensus that would form the basis of an agreement, but Ottawa was going to proceed with the plan anyway.

Backlog Attacked

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian grain industry, aiming for a second successive year of record exports, is gearing a giant transportation drive to get shipments back on schedule.

Although exports are running ahead of last year, the Canadian Wheat Board expects to be about 24 million bushels behind its target by the end of February. The backlog was caused largely by repercussions at Vancouver from the U.S. dock strike, and a nightmarish winter in the mountains which slowed rail shipments from the Prairies.

Mayor Returns

MAGRATH, Alta. (CP)—E. P. Tanner, whose election as mayor in October was set aside last week by a district judge, took over the position Tuesday by acclamation.

His name was the only one filed during nominations for a March 15 election. Tanner defeated incumbent Swen Jensen by one vote in the election but a district court in Lethbridge declared it illegal because persons unqualified to vote had cast ballots.

Lower Age Approved

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Commissioner James Smith gave assent Monday to a Yukon territorial council ordinance lowering the age of majority to 19 years from 21 effective March 1.

Tht legislation means that persons 19 years of age and over in the territory now will enjoy such adult privileges as the right to sue and be sued, marry, divorce and deal in property.

The same age group has had the right to vote in territorial elections and to purchase liquor for some time.

Hands Off Quebec, CLC Told

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Federation of Labor has told the Canadian Labor Congress to keep its hands off the provincial body with regard to policies formulated in the context of Quebec developments.

There were reports Tuesday the QFL may not send any resolutions to the biennial CLC convention at Ottawa in May.

The federation's general council, at a meeting this week, resolved to support CLC representatives in Quebec "who will continue to support, promote and disseminate the policies of the QFL adopted democratically at its convention."

The resolution was an apparent reply to Donald MacDonald, CLC president, who said Feb. 5 provincial labor federations are subordinate to the CLC and its policies, which deny any form of totalitarianism such as Marxism, Trotskyism or Maoism.

NOT SPECIFIC

At the same time Mr. MacDonald denied published reports quoting him as saying at a private union meeting in Toronto that paid CLC organizers in Quebec would be fired if they pursue Marxist policies advocated by the QFL.

Andre Leclerc, responsible for QFL political action, said in an interview Tuesday that five of eight Quebec CLC organizers attended the Toronto meeting but that Mr. MacDonald did not specify what QFL policies he opposed.

Jean Beaudry, CLC vice-president, was to meet here today with Philippe Vaillancourt, deputy national director of the CLC who attended the closed-door meeting Monday of the QFL general council.

Louis Laberge, QFL president, is reported to have told the general council:

"This is not a declaration of war (against the CLC). We simply want to affirm our determination to be masters of our orientation in Quebec."

The council, made up of between 50 and 60 delegates from various regions of QFL affiliated Quebec unions, is responsible for carrying out policy for the 250,000-member federation between conventions held every two years.

Gallup Poll Finds U.S. Capital Unwelcome Now

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Canadian belief that there is now enough U.S. capital invested in Canada has reached a new high. Today almost seven in 10 men and women think it is time to call a halt, a ratio which compares to about five in 10 in the early 60s.

The belief has mounted significantly during the past year, rising from 62% who wanted no more U.S. capital in the fall of 1970.

The people of Ontario (73%) are the most convinced, with the west close to this level (69%). In the Maritimes and Quebec about six in 10 adults have the same viewpoint.

Canadian attitudes on the question show a sharp contrast of opinion over the past decade, with a steadily rising opinion across the country that we should not encourage more U.S. investments here. This attitude has mounted not only on the national average, but in every region.

To chart this changing viewpoint, the same question has been put to a national sample of Canadians over the past eight years:

"Do you think there is enough U.S. capital in Canada now, or would you like to see more U.S. capital invested in Canada?"

The table below reveals the way public opinion has changed over the years, with the undecided segment dropping to half the proportion it was in 1964. It also shows regional attitudes today.

Meany 'Senile Old Goat' For Criticizing Strikes

EDMONTON (CP) — American labor leader George Meany is a "senile old goat" and his suggestion that voluntary arbitration could halt labor strife has no merit, says Gene Mitchell, executive secretary of the Alberta Federation of Labor.

Meany, head of the 16-million member AFL-CIO, said Sunday he favors binding arbitration, voluntarily agreed upon, as a substitute for strikes.

Mitchell's view was supported by Leo Lancaster, Alberta area representative of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

But Roy Jamha, Alberta Federation of Labor president, said while Meany's suggestion was an "anathema to us," the American labor leader was to be commended for attempting to find workable solutions.

MONTHEY, Switzerland (Reuter) — Police seeking Herald Paillet, 12, missing from his home, found him Tuesday, hiding in a local department store. He had spent two days and two nights there reading through all the children's books in stock.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A Nevada equal rights commission official says a formal complaint will be filed against a house of prostitution which refused admission to a black man. Tony McCormick, commission executive director, said the prospective customer from Arizona was refused admission last month at the Cotton Tail Ranch at Lido Junction in Esmeralda County.

McCormick said the man was told the ranch did not serve blacks because it did not employ them. Prostitution is legal by local option in Nevada.

LONDON (UPI) — Christina Panter looked out her bedroom window at the ice cream truck helping keep her alive and said the power cuts no longer worried her. A cable from the artificial kidney machine by the bed of the 51-year-old widow plugged into a generator on the ice cream truck. When electricity cuts blacked out her home Tuesday, her treatment never faltered.

"I don't have to worry now," she smiled. "But I do have to keep answering the front door to tell children there's no ice cream for sale." Mrs. Panter was only one of many Britons generally keeping a stiff upper lip in the face of power cuts that were plunging millions of homes into darkness and cold for as many as nine hours very day.

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Film star Rock Hudson arrived in Australia for the first time Tuesday and was mobbed by hundreds of screaming fans. A large section of the crowd at Sydney Airport was made up of autograph-hunting girls and young mothers with babies in their arms. Hudson refused to sign autographs and was hustled into a waiting car by a police bodyguard. Earlier at a news conference, he had said: "Me a sex symbol? How could I be at 46?"

LA CORUNA, Spain (Reuter) — Merchant seaman Manuel Carballeda returned home Tuesday in time for his own funeral. The 32-year-old sailor fell overboard from the Panamanian vessel San Salvador as it passed through Malacca Straits nearly a month ago. When the ship arrived in Bangkok the captain reported him missing and presumed dead. But after spending more than 50 hours in the water, Carballeda was picked up by a Japanese cargo ship and taken to Bombay, where he was in hospital unconscious for 18 days. After his recovery he flew to Paris, then Madrid, and finally to this northwestern port city.

When he walked in the door Tuesday he found his weeping mother and mourning relatives making final preparations for his funeral. The service had been delayed because Carballeda's mother refused to believe he was dead.

Power Hopes Sink

LONDON (UPI) — Britain neared a total industrial shutdown today. Twenty million jobs were threatened with further power cuts in store for British homes and industry.

The blockade of power stations by striking coal miners bit even harder and electricity authorites ordered power cuts for one-third of the country, with 15 per cent hit at any single time. Previously, only about 10 per cent had been affected at a time.

That meant most areas which before suffered only six hours of cuts a day now would be blacked out for nine hours.

The central electricity generating board, which operates Britain's state-run power industry, said cuts might hit as much as 20 per cent of the country at a time if generating resources continue to fall.

So far 10 of Britain's 148 power stations have been put out of action by strike pickets preventing coal or oil reaching them. At least a third are working at reduced capacity, the board said.

WORST YET

"It looks as if this is going to be the most drastic day so far. There is no doubt that power rationing is becoming more severe" a generating board spokesman said.

The nine-hour power cuts were split into three groups of three hours each.

For the seventh day tens of thousands of homes and offices were without heat for up to nine hours. Some areas also were hit by water shortages when electric water pumps failed.

At Bath, in the West England, water carts were stationed at strategic points throughout the city for families whose supplies had dried up.

The state-run British railroad's slashed more than 1,000 trains fro mtheir services. Hundreds of commuter runs were cancelled and those trains running had fewer and unheated cars.

Officials said everything now depends on the recommendations of a three-man court of inquiry, headed by Lord Wilberforce, an appeals court judge. The panel began public hearings Tuesday.

The court has promised to announce its findings by the end of the week.

THE BRIDGE THAT WAS, on Richmond Road, intrigues youngsters on their way to school this morning, as they stand dangerously close to edge of sunken section. Rain-swollen Bowker Creek undermined bridge supports during the night. City engineers today began building a temporary bridge.

65-m.p.h. Winds Lash City

By PAUL MOSS, Times Staff

One of the worst storms of the winter hit Greater Victoria and Vancouver Island Tuesday night, causing a small city bridge to collapse, flooding scores of basements in Saanich and Oak Bay and leaving many residents without electricity.

Almost an inch of rain had fallen in the 24-hour period up to 4 a.m. today, but the flooding problems arose because half of that fell in a six-hour period starting at about 10 p.m.

A four-inch B.C. Hydro gas main was fractured as the whole bridge structure sagged, posing a threat to residents of the area. But a Hydro crew was on the scene by 5:30 a.m. and sealed off the break.

All traffic was diverted today as city engineers began the job of erecting a temporary girder bridge.

Children on their way to school this morning were still using the footpath over the bridge, whic looked as if it could collapse entirely at any moment. Traffic detour signs were diverting traffic, but up to 9 o'clock no policemen were on duty to control pedestrians.

However, when city traffic engineer James Garnett arrived on the scene just before 9 he issued instructions that all pedestrian use of the bridge was to cease immediately.

Although the Victoria-Saanich boundary runs down the middle of Richmond, under an egreement between the municipalities the city has responsibility for the road.

Garnett explained that the rushing water scoured out the creek bed, undermining the old piers on both sides of the bridge. A huge chunk of masonry was swept several yards downstream.

No one knows what time the bridge actually gave way, but the discovery was made in a frightening manner by a young motorist whose car bumped and bounced over the sagged section.

Mrs. Margaret Beech, of 2616 Richmond, said her daughter opened the door at about 3:45 a.m. to the young man, who asked if he could phone the police.

"He looked very shaken up," she said.

Small Plane Flight Curbs At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)— The transport department Tuesday ordered restrictions on visual flight operations within a 10-mile radius of Vancouver International Airport as the airport's radar system broke down.

It was the first major reported breakdown of navigational equipment at the airport since maintenance technicians, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, went on strike last week.

The restrictions, in practice, affected only small charter and private aircraft which are not equipped with instrument landing systems, as are the major airlines and other, larger aircraft.

Air Canada cancelled more than half of its flights out of Toronto today and about two-thirds of its domestic flights from Montreal as the strike entered its 11th day.

Airlines urged passengers to take buses or trains as flight delays were reported. Some flights from Toronto were taking off six hours late.

Traffic in and out of other major airports was hectic Tuesday as air controllers resorted to visual procedures for commercial takeoffs and landings after delicate radar equipment broke down without maintenance.

Conditions today appeared about the same or slightly worse.

CANCEL 60 FLIGHTS

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline had to cancel 60 of 112 scheduled flights from Toronto. It got about two-thirds of its flights out Tuesday.

CP Air said its usual 20 flights would leave Toronto today but it couldn't guarantee when.

Air Canada said it was trying to maintain long-range flights while cancelling short runs. There were numerous consolidations—passengers on lightly loaded flights being put on other aircraft.

Extra busss and railway cars are running because of the strike.

U.S. 'ON BRINK' OVER PAKISTAN

NEW YORK (CP) — Columnist Jack Anderson, who has disclosed secret government documents on the India-Pakistan war, said Tuesday the United States was "on the brink of nuclear war" in that conflict.

The syndicated writer also charged at a news conference that President Nixon and aides tried to deceive the public about how much the nation was involved in the India-Pakistan war.

"Life and death decisions that brought us to the brink" were kept from the public, Anderson said, including the fact that American task forces sent to the Bay of Bengal were "alerted for hostile action" against the Soviets and Chinese.

Anderson called the news conference to announce the impending publication of a book, The Anderson Papers, expandingon the documents already published or excerpted in his column.

He said that while the administration was secretly pursuing a pro-Pakistan policy, Nixon told congressional leaders and Henry Kissinger his national security adviser told newsmen that U.S. policy was not anti-Indian and the United States was neutral.

"The president -- and there is not a pretty word for it — lied to Congress. Henry Kissinger on the president's behalf, lied to the American people," Anderson declared.

He said he has hundreds of previously unpublished documents, but added: "No security matters are involved in anything we have, only embarrassments."

Times' Challenge Prompts Threat of B.C. Ad Cutoff

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday he will recommend the provincial government stop placing advertisements in the Victoria Times or any other newspaper which publishes tobacco ads.

Peterson said he will make the recommendation to cabinet because the Times published a tobacco advertisement Monday in apparent violation of provincial legislation banning these ads.

The attorney-general said the Times had behaved irresponsibly, and he said its action went against previous Times editorial policy favoring the banning of tobacco and alcohol advertisements.

A Times editorial, March 30, 1971, said that "in view of the medical and social trend of the times it is difficult to argue against the moral basis of a ban on published encouragement of smoking and drinking."

Commenting on Peterson's reference to the editorial, Times' publisher Stuart Underhill said that while approving steps to discourage smoking and drinking, the editorial also pointed out there would be "formidable problems." in implementing the new legislation.

Underhill declined to say what it would cost the Times in revenue if deprived of government advertising.

He said it was irrelevant to the point of principle at issue.

TEST CASE DUE

Peterson was accused of evading his responsibility as attorney-general by Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) in the legislature Tuesday evening.

"If they (Times) have broken the censorship law he piloted through the house, then I put it to him — the chief law officer doesn't talk about economic reprisals, he goes to court."

Peterson replied that a test case of the advertising ban was due in court next week.

Dowding said the economic reprisal threat was a clear evasion of the attorney-general's responsibility and a "ridiculous response."

Legislation prohibititing tobacco product advertising and extending the ban on alcohol advertising to newspapers was passed by the legislature in 1971.

Peterson said the B.C. Supreme Court is expected to rule Feb. 22 on the validity and interpretation of the provincial legislation.

"And now, one week before the time of this matter," said Peterson, "they commence advertising tobacco products.

"They're performing a great public disservice. I will recommend that no government advertising be placed in this newspaper.

"I'm sure that all the other papers are too responsible to do this. This kind of irresponsibility on the part of the Victoria Times should in no way

IRVING'S WIFE ARRESTED

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Edith Irving, wife of writer Clifford Irving, appeared in court today for an extradition hearing brought by the Swiss government.

Bomb Aboard Ferry

BELFAST (UPI) — Security forces today found and defused a 40-pound bomb planted on a ferry from England in what may have been a bid to blow up 300 British troops en route to Ulster.

An army spokesman said army explosives experts sped to the ferry, the Duke of Argyle, when it docked in Belfast from Heysham, England, just before 7 a.m. carrying about 300 British troops and a number of civilians.

The explosives experts defused the bomb after several hours work, the spokesman said.

Disaster Seen If B.C. Wins

Provincial leaders across Canada — particularly in the "Have-not" Atlantic provinces — agreed today that an end to federal equalization payments would be a disaster for Confederation.

And most said they doubted if a proposed attack on the payments by the Social Credit government of B.C. had any basis in constitutional law.

B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday that the province would test the legality of the equalization payments — federal grants designed by Ottawa to reduce regional economic differences — in a court challenge. The move followed a remark Sunday by Prime Minister Trudau characterizing B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett as a "bigot" toward French-speaking Canadians.

In Ottawa Finance Minister John Turner intends to introduce a five-year extension to current federal-provincial equalization payments legislation in the new session of Parliament opening Thursday, regardless of British Columbia's objections to it.

The legislation will raise to $1.6 billion by 1976-77 the amount of federal tax money now used each year to subsidize the treasuries of the so-called seven "have-not" provinces — all but Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia. Equalization payments amount to $1.1 billion this year.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex Campbell said Prince Edward Island will meet any challenge to its right for equalization payments with all the abilities, arguments and finance it can put forth.

Campbell said he would have hoped "that the government of any Canadian province disenchated with equalization would have sought political solutions to a constitutional problem at the provincial or federal-provincial conferences."

Heath Threat

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has threatened to quit if Parliament refuses to ratify a treaty bringing Britain into the European Common Market, political sources said today.

The sources said Heath made the threat in an attempt to prevent a rebellion by members of his ruling Conservative Party opposed to the plan. The issue comes to a vote Thursday.

The House of Commons began a three-day debate Tuesday on the second of three scheduled parlimentary readings of a bill ratifying the treaty he signed in Brussels Jan. 22 taking Britain into the six-nation community on Jan. 1, 1973.

U.S. Dollar Under Pressure

Times News Services

LONDON — An early flurry of dollar selling drove the price of U.S. currency down to a new all-time low in West Germany today and forced it lower in Britain, France, Switzerland and Holland in early trading.

The record 1971 U.S. balance of payments deficit got the blame for the renewed selling pressure on the dollar, dealers said, although the huge deficit had long been predicted.

It was also widely known there had been no massive reflux of dollars to the United States after the flight from the dollar both before and after the August crisis.

Trading in London turned hectic. One dealer said "I've seen as much business in the first hour of trading as I sometimes see in a whole day."

In Washington, the commerce department said the "official settlements" deficit — measured in terms of official foreign holdings of dollars — was $29.6 million for the year, nearly $20 billion worse than the 1970 record deficit of $9.8 billion.

Stage Set for Opening Of New Ottawa Session

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Parliament, adjourned since Dec. 30, met for a few minutes today to formally end the third session of the 28th Parliament and set the stage for the opening of the fourth session Thursday morning.

The opening in a pre-election atmosphere is expected to produce a throne speech that will give Canadians an encouraging view of the future of the country.

The speech will also outline some of the legislation scheduled to come before Parliament —some of it new, some of it in the form of left-overs —which the government feels will bring Canada closer toward a just society.

With the opposition scenting an election, it could be a stormy parliamentary period ahead. But the government is not expected to aggravate the situation by introducing unnecessarily contentious bills.

Some of the more controversial bills left over from last session, including Labor Code amendments and a measure to regulate business competition, are unlikely to return in their former state, and probably not before the expected election.

The throne speech, which traditionally outlines legislation to come before Parliament, is expected to concentrate more on the state of Canada and hopes for its future. Some cabinet ministers are known to be annoyed that some of their pet projects are not being included in the speech, to be read by Governor-General Roland Michener.

The speech has been prepared within Prime Minister Trudeau's office, and sources say there has been less cabinet participation than in previous years. Ministers were asked to submit legislative programs they had in mind.

Mr. Trudeau, following a tendency begun in 1970, favors using the speech as a vehicle for an over-all government view of Canada, its problems and its hopes. Bills which, in the government's view, will make Canada a better place will be outlined.

God Put Us in Charge—Phil

God made man to run the world, not worship it. Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi told the legislature Tuesday.

"Trees were never created by God to be worshipped as gods. They were made to be utilized. Minerals aren't to be worshipped, they're to be utilized. We were created to be in control," Gaglardi said.

Opposition members kidded Gaglardi, saying he must have been referring to the Socreds. The minister replied he was merely talking about man in general.

He said the government believes in anti-pollution efforts but suggested people should not over-emphasize protection of the environment.

He said Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan is "setting the pace" in Canada in the fight against pollution.

Gaglardi also praised his department's record in finding jobs. He claimed the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen found 30,000 new jobs in 1971 at an average rate of 114 jobs a day.

He said Ottawa has copied his on-the-job training program and praised vocational training programs sponsored by the rehabilitation department.

Boycott Faces Mission

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's Labor party is considering boycotting a proposed all-party parliamentary delegation to Rhodesia because Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith objects to its nominees, informed sources said Tuesday.

Smith has informed the British government that he is unwilling to accept an all-party mission. Nominees include former defence minister and now Labor's chief spokesman on foreign affairs, Denis Healey; a left-wing Labor MP and member of the party's policy-making national executive committee, Joan Lestor; and a leading Liberal party MP, David Steel.

Britain's deputy foreign secretary, Joseph Godber, disclosed Smith's reaction to the Labor and Liberal nominees when questioned in Parliament.

The British government had consulted Smith about sending a delegation to Rhodesia to observe how a British-appointed commission was testing public reaction to independence settlement terms.

At a subsequent meeting, the Labor party's "shadow cabinet" rejected the idea that Smith should decide who would be represented on a British parliamentary delegation. They decided that, if they had interpreted Smith's attitude correctly, they should not co-operate in any way with the proposed mission.

School Budget: A Balancing Act

Times Staff
By BRIAN BUTTERS

Budget, Budget, Budget.

The mere mention of the word these days within the boundaries of the Greater Victoria school district is enough to make school trustees wince.

It seems the longer the school board thinks about its troublesome 1972 budget, the more time and energy it puts into finding a way out of the financial maze, the more complicated and intricate the situation becomes — so much so that it sooner or later confounds even the best-acquainted.

Tuesday night was a perfect example. The school board has decided to publish an advertisement in the two local daily newspapers, which will supposedly explain the situation of the 1972 operating budget to Joe Taxpayer.

However, the situation is so confused now that in trying to get it straight for the newspaper ad, the board had difficulty getting its own figures straight in the minds of its own trustees.

REFERENDUM SET

In general terms, the situation is this.

On March 11, the owner-electors (Those people who own property in School District No. 61, Greater Victoria) will vote on a referendum which seeks $412,000, money the board needs to make up the difference between what it will be allowed to spend and what it is likely to get in funds.

If the referendum passes, there is no more problem. The board has already made substantial cuts in its budget, just to get spending down to the level previously allowed.

But if the referendum fails, look out. Board chairman Allan McKinnon has said he doesn't want to threaten voters with hints of a drastic cutback in services. So the board doesn't want to threaten, just set out the facts for all to see.

But one fact is that trustees still have not decided exactly what they propose to do away with if the owner-electors turn down their plea for the $412,000.

CHOPPING BLOCK

However, we are not completely in the dark. The district administration has prepared a list of the areas in which budget cuts are most likely and it is from this list that trustees will hack and cut and slice and end up with the magic figure of $412,000.

The list of possible cuts comes to more than $500,000. So, next Monday night, the most likely candidates for the chopping block will be prepared, hopefully once and for all.

Some of the possible candidates: research projects, $4,000; reduce family life (sex education) program, $8,000; supervisory and office staff cuts, $24,000; reduce special counselling, $24,000; department head status, $34,000; 10 temporary teachers out as of April 1, $56,000; 23 teachers as of Sept. 1, $92,000; swim program, $8,000; computer math course, $3,000. The list goes on and on. In order for the board to come up with a cutback of $412,000 (presuming the referendum fails) many of the above mentioned items will go.

To see how a sampling of the district's taxpayers feel about the situation, the school board carried out a survey. Of 312 persons contacted (each person an owner-elector) the response was a healthy 88 per cent.

SURVEY FINDINGS

The survey asked if owner-electors agree with the government's move to reduce educational spending by cutting down on the limit of allowable spending by school districts. Forty-six per cent said they did not agree, 38 per cent said they did and 16 per cent were undecided.

Should the board make up the difference between what it budgeted for and what it is allowed to spend? Thirty-five per cent said the board should makeup the difference (and remember that the owner-electors pay the shot), 55 per cent said it should not, and 10 per cent were undecided.

As far as owner-electors' opinions of spending levels are concerned, the survey indicated that 37 per cent of the people feel the school board is spending about the right amount of money, 25 per cent feel the level of spending is too high, 10 per cent feel it is too low and 28 per cent could not make up their minds.

Of the 97 owner-electors who indicated the specific area they feel should be cut if necessary, the most — 29 — felt it should come out of sports. Another 11 felt physical education could be cut back.

Other areas, with numbers of owner-elector preferences: construction costs, 17; administrative costs, 11; home economics; 11; teacher costs, 9; counselling services, 6; and sex education, 6.

PRINCIPALS POLLED

In a similar sampling of opinion, principals of the district's schools were asked to suggest ways to save money in school operation expenses.

The most expendable item, according to the 43 principals who replied (53 were contacted) was the swim program. It gathered 21 "votes." That is, 21 principals felt it should be reduced or eliminated.

Other major expendables listed were: supervisors of instruction (reduction), 16; special counsellors (reduction), 15; data processing in elementary schools (reduction), 13; band and string music programs in elementary schools (reduction), 12 each.

The next step in the complicated situation takes place tonight in the gymnasium of Mount Douglas high school. The occasion is an open meeting on educational spending, with guest speakers from the Social Credit and Conservative parties and board chairman McKinnon giving the board's viewpoint.

Many residents have indicated their displeasure with the way the budget situation has been handled, both by the school board and by the government. The meeting should be interesting. It starts at 8 p.m., 3970 Gordon Head Road.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

A phone can be an office.

Give yourself an edge.

Don't miss that emergency call or that crucial order because you're driving. A radio telephone can make an office . . . anywhere.

Love makes her world go 'round . . . but CLASSIFIED Ads make it go better

1. Housing: The Classified Section is the "housing marketplace". Where and how you live depends on your income, and you're sure to find what's best for you in the huge selection of apartments, mobile homes and houses listed in Classified.

2. Furnishings: Wedding gifts are a delight and a great help, but you'll discover you need certain home furnishings, even if your home is "furnished". You'll find great values in the Classified Ads.

3. Transportation: One car or two? Only you can decide. But the place to solve your particular car problems is in the Classified Section. (You'll also find motorcycles and scooters there!)

REVIVAL 'HOPEFUL' FOR FAIR'S MUSIC

"There's "fantastic hope" now that the musical side of the cancelled Victoria Fair will be put on again this summer, George Corwin, University of Victoria musical director, said today.

He said that this time, however, the program would be more of a joint community-university effort, and may be called something different from Victoria Fair, which is a name associated only with UVic.

The fair, which was made up of theatre and musical programs, was cancelled in January in an announcement by Peter Garvie, dean of fine arts, and Ralph Allen, head of the theatre department, both of whom are leaving for other universities. They had blamed lack of financial support for the decision.

Corwin said it looks as though enough community support is being voiced for a program that may include two orchestra concerts and one chamber concert a week for the summer.

Outer Areas a Mess: Students

Urgent Planning Need Cited

By BRYAN McGILL
Times Staff

Sixteen University of Victoria geography students last fall ventured into the wilderness that is known as Langford-Colwood-Metchosin.

On Wednesday, six of them gathered in the office of Dr. Peter Murphy, instructor of their urban geography course and said the place is a mess.

And at the same time the residents seem "generally apathetic" about what the rapid sprawling growth is doing to their environment, said Cliff Storvold, 23.

Murphy explained that the students, in an unprecedented class project, made an "exploratory study" of the unorganized areas in co-operation with the Capital Regional District Board. A report based on the students' term papers covering the project was slated for release later today, and is expected to be used in an over-all professional study the board planners will carry out on the area.

What most impressed the students was that although there is considerable building in the area there is also a lack of local parks, adequate roads and "a sense of form" or "neighborhood" in its housing developments.

If there ever was an area ripe for good planning, this was it, they agreed.

"You find a road here, a cow path there, an old house here, a new house there," said Wendy Foreman, 22.

She and Dave Murphy, 21, found that because there are no neighborhood parks, children play either in their backyards or on the roads. They don't use school playgrounds, either, because they are in need of upgrading.

Bill Harris, 23, and Russ Malcolm, 22, found that "transportation facilities haven't kept up to the sprawl of the last 10 years," which has resulted in great deal of congestion, expecially on the Old Island Highway.

What is needed is more secondary roads leading into the area, but this is a difficult proposal because it is hard to create thoroughfares out of an area that is mainly dead-end streets, they noted.

Storvold, in a sampling of resident opinion, found that the people are evenly divided on whether to incorporate.

Those who do want more services, and those who don't are afraid of increased taxes.

"The reason they say they like living there is that it provides a slower pace of life . . . and they like open space and to sit in their own backyards."

But, paradoxically, there isn't much open space, the houses are crammed together, and the people "sit in their little houses" not aware of what is going on around them.

It was Storvold's opinion that the real reason people live there is that it is cheaper than living in the municipalities.

Brown said that business centres in the outer areas mainly provide day-to-day products and services and don't seem to be as prosperous as shopping centres in town. Residents, he said, tend to go on shopping excursions into Victoria.

Murphy said the students found the project more difficult than they anticipated, but they enjoyed trying to put urban planning into practice.

Other students who worked on the study are Maureen Avery, Duncan Davies, Karen Fenwick, James Guthrie, Paul Hadfield, Glen Leicester, Graham Roche, Gilbert Scott, Ken Smithers and Frances Tanner.

Young Mr. Peek-A-Boo

Oil-Fighting Units Arrive On Coast Soon

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services for the transport department, said from Vancouver today that three $6,000 "slick lickers" are being bought and will be stationed at Victoria, Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

The slick-lickers, barge-mounted devices which lift oil from the water's surface with a conveyor belt, were developed by a local scientist.

Location of the machines confirms earlier indications that the three ports will be established as resource centres from which attacks can be launched on oil spills.

FORM NUCLEUS

Buchanan said the slick lickers will form the nucleus of oil-fighting depots but he is unable to say now how much more is coming because the equipment budget has yet to be approved by Parliament.

It is expected about $150,000 will be spent at each of the three ports this year building the oil pollution control arsenal.

This will include barges or catamaran-type vessels to mount the slick lickers, booms to encircle oil spills and possibly more slick lickers.

DAMAGE FISH

Emulsifiers, which break down the oil, won't be much in evidence because they are known to produce conditions damaging to fish and would only be used as a last resort in some situations.

Buchanan is the government officer who will co-ordinate the attack on any coast oil spill, using whatever resources he believes are needed, including navy men and equipment.

Asked how prepared he will be with the new equipment to cope with an oil spill, he said:

"With the experience we've gained on the East coast and elsewhere, we'll be able to deal with the sort of leaks which might be expected from a single damaged fuel tank, at the most two, in a medium-sized vessel."

What about problems with one of the giant tankers, 250,000 to 500,000 tons, which may be carrying oil from Alaska past Victoria some day?

CATASTROPHE

"There's no place in the world that can deal with a giant tanker in real trouble. If one of them breaks up it will be a catastropne, and it will be that way for donkey's years."

The slick licker, formally known as the Oleovator, was developed by Richard Sewell, a scientist with the Defence Research Establishment in Victoria.

It employs the principle of "preferential wetting." When the cloth conveyor belt which projects into the water is first coated with oil, it will then only pick up oil from the water's surface. Rollers at the top of the belt squeeze the oil out in the same style as an old-fashioned washing machine.

Sandringham Hearing Under Way

The B.C. Labor Relations Board began a hearing this morning in Victoria Law Courts to determine whether Sandringham Private Hospital has bargained collectively with the union on strike against it for the last 72 weeks.

The press was excluded from the hearing, which was attended by a number of representatives of the hospital and the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The union took action under a section of the Labor Relations Act which allows the board to decide whether there has been or is, collective bargaining. Its decision will be binding.

Under a section of the Mediation Commission Act, both sides are required to bargain collectively "and shall make every reasonable effort to conclude a collective agreement."

"The union contends that the hospital has not bargained collectively," said CUPE staff representative Alex Markides.

There have been no negotiations since the strike of 28 employees, seeking a first contract, began Sept. 30, 1970. Before then, there were two meetings with the hospital management and two meetings with a mediation officer.

Man Admits Prospectus False

A prominent city businessman pleaded guilty in county court today to a charge of issuing a false prospectus concering a $1-million share issue by Datatech Systems Ltd.

Walter Frank Large, 37, of 4230 Glendenning, faces a possible maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for the offence. Judge M. L. T. Drake adjourned Large's trial to consider submissions by prosecutor Roy Paris and defence lawyer Boyd Ferris before passing sentence.

According to facts agreed on by both lawyers at the outset of the trial, the charge invoves a prospectus issued by Datatech when it became a public company in January, 1969.

A section of the prospectus, prepared by Large, failed to report that the proceeds of a $1-million share issue would be handed over in the main to another company, Canamerico Mortgages, of which the accused was co-owner.

Canamerico got $878,000 as a loan, with interest at 9 per cent, from the $972,000 net proceeds of the share sale.

LOAN RECALLED

Datatech directors were eventually told of the loan in December, 1969, and the loan was recalled. Canamerico was unable to pay the $500,000 balance owing, and was taken over by Datatech by way of a share transfer and a nominal purchase price.

An executive of the firm testified that the $500,000 is invested in Imperial Building Materials Ltd., and is considered by the present Datatech directors to be a financially sound investment.

DETERRENCE

Prosecutor Paris urged Drake to impose a stiff sentence as a deterrent, quoting a precedent in which imposition of a fine alone was cited as a licence to commit the offence again.

Paris said he had no quarrel with character evidence led by the defence which showed the accused to be otherwise a leading member of the community. But he said the key factor in sentence would have to be deterrence.

The dfence called as witnesses to Large's character Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, Ald. Percy Frampton, investment counsellor Robert Daniel Ferguson, lawyer George F. Jones and Ronald Blair Smith, a Datatech executive.

Ferris said there had been no intention of theft or fraud on Large's part, and that the falsity of the prospectus was "not in the form of a materially false statement, but one of omission."

If the money had been borrowed by a large financial house instead of the privately-owned Canemerico, he said, no charge would have been laid at all.

He asked that sentence be limited to a fine, because jailing Large would be a loss to his family, the business and the community as a whole.

Large originally was charged with his brother, Earl Wilbert Large, on charges of theft and fraud in August, 1970.

The charges against Earl Large were dropped in May, 1971, at which point Walter Large waived the balance of a preliminary hearing on his charge and was committed for trial in county court.

Ask the Times

Q. Are there munitions being made in Canada? If so, what is being made and to whom sold? Is it true that Canada is the largest arms producer per capita? I.M.

A. It is correct that Canada has the largest per capita arms sales in the world. About 80 per cent of the arms are sold to the United States. Figures in the latest Canada Year Book show that Canada exported firearms, ammunition and ordnance to the value of $78,713,000 in 1969 and the U.S. bought $73,216,000 worth. Munitions are manufactured in several locations, the closest being on James Island near Sidney.

'ST. JOSEPH'S' FADES AWAY

St. Joseph's Hospital passed into history today in name at least and will now be known as Queen Victoria General Hospital.

It was just one of several changes which flowed from two ceremonies this afternoon, one at the hospital and the other at the offices of the Capital regional hospital board.

The regional board meeting at 2 p.m. saw the signing of documents which will:

- Complete the sale of about four acres alongside the hospital, from the Sisters of St. Ann to the regional board, for $899,557.22.
- Deeding of this land to the provincial government which will in turn lease it to the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society, the public organization taking over the hospital from the Sisters.

At 3 p.m. the sisters and the society held a brief ceremony at the hospital's Humboldt Street entrance to mark the sisters' gift of their $6 million equity in the hospital to the community.

The order founded the hospital in 1876, the first building costing $13,900 and having room for 35 patients. Growth and complexity of the hospital administration have led the sisters to withdraw.

The sisters and the society signed the documents last week which will see the hospital given first to the community, represented by the society, and then deeded to the provincial government.

With the completion of documentation today the province will own both hospital and adjacent land for expansion and these will be leased to the society.

The regional hospital board is handling the land purchase, with the province contributing 60 per cent and the balance being raised by tax levy in the Capital region.

Strike Delays Mail to City

Spokesman Ken Stofer said while some flights with air mail are arriving on time some mail is coming on later flights, apparently as a result of missing connections.

This had been occurring during the past week, when airport technicians have been on strike and air lines have reported delays and cancellations of some flights.

Stofer said the delays were generally up to 24 hours.

THREE MONTHS EXTRA

An inmate of the William Head minimum security prison who failed to return after a one-day pass Saturday was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in provincial court today.

Leonard Morris, 23, said today he had missed the last boat back from Vancouver Saturday and had then decided to go to Hope to find a friend.

He turned himself in at the Hope RCMP headquarters Sunday.

Judge William Ostler said he had made Morris' sentence light because he had turned himself in, adding that he had shown "extremely bad judgment" in not doing so immediately he knew that he had missed the ferry.

He described the temporary pass system at William Head as an excellent one.

Morris was serving a two-year term for possession of stolen property and intent to wound. He was to have been released Aug. 19, 1973.

Dogs Have Day, Owners Fined

The nine were fined $10 each in provincial court by Judge E. F. N. Robinson on charges of letting their pets run loose.

The charges arose from a two-week blitz from Jan. 20 to Feb. 4 by inspectors from the Society for prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Meandering dogs were picked up on Belmont, Joseph, May, Brighton, Reno, Carrick and Michigan.

SPCA Manager David Beeching says the society, which controls dogs under contract in Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, has a policy of "continuous enforcement." But the prosecutions seem to come in batches, totalling about 100 per year.

$700,000 Roads Budget Urged for Saanich

Saanich public works committee decided Tuesday night to warn council that it is proposing to present a minimum roads construction budget of $700,000 for 1972.

The sum is exactly double the $350,000 allocated for roads capital expenditure in the provisional budget already submitted to council for preliminary consideration.

For several years past the municipality's roads program has been the major victim in the annual budget pruning sessions, but committee members seemed determined to avoid that situation this year.

"I am hoping council will realize the error they are making in continually cutting back," said committee chairman Ald. William Campbell. "I hope they will see that it's false economy."

Ald. Edith Gunning said "We're just putting off facing the problem, and in doing so we're building up more problems for the future."

In a first look at the roads construction program submitted by engineering staff, the committee agreed to include in budget proposals works on 11 roads in the municipality, at a total estimated cost of $474,800.

It was also agreed that $15,200 should be set aside as a contingency fund.

Thus the present total considered necessary is $490,000. But the committee also instructed staff to report again at the March meeting on estimates of other road projects, which could bring the total to about $700,000.

The committee agreed that a top priority in the 1972 program should be the widening and rebuilding of Quadra on the section from Rogers to Dieppe, where Quadra will join the new highway overpass. The cost will be $115,000.

Also high on the list is the long-awaited improvement to Gordon Head Road, from McKenzie to Cedar Hill Cross Road. Acting municipal engineer John Cowlin said the road is narrow, with poor surface and contours, posing a constant hazard to schoolchildren.

The Saanich share of this project is $71,500. Oak Bay council and the provincial government will pay part of the cost, the latter as it is involved in access to the University of Victoria.

Churches Tempt Teen-Agers

Cadboro Bay United Church teens meet for recreation

Highly structured youth organizations, once an important part of most church programs, don't appeal to today's teen-ager, according to local clergymen.

They say groups such as the Anglican Young People's Association and the Catholic Youth Organization just don't attract young people anymore.

"We don't have that kind of old-style youth club. They're not effective anymore," said Father Bob Hogarth, of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

"We have to approach kids where they are," Hogarth said.

He thinks counselling young people at the rectory or during confession is the most effective aid to teen-agers now.

"When they need help they don't need a dance," Father Hogarth said.

He added that many of the young people seeking help don't even belong to the parish. Hogarth thinks troubled teen-agers choose his church because they know "the police don't lean on us to reveal drug information."

Hogarth said his church has a religious education program for young people and an informal mass each Sunday in the activity centre.

"The liturgy for this service is very simplified so that all can be involved. It's a developing thing. Every Sunday there is something different."

Referring to the Cool-Aid benefit, scheduled to take place in his church last Saturday and cancelled at the urging of conservative church members, Father Hogarth said: "Those that are upset by young people are upset by everything."

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolfe, of St. Luke's Anglican Church, thinks older teen-agers are so involved in studies and school-oriented groups they don't have time for church programs.

"Schools are doing so much more than they used to do. They have finally realized that education goes on after 4 p.m.," the archdeacon said.

He believes it is the younger teen-agers who need church programs to fill the gap between cub scouts or brownies and high school activities.

St. Luke's has a young people's organization geared to the needs of the 13 to 16-year-olds in the parish. The group meets once every two weeks for projects and games.

Rev. Andrew Gates is helping organize a youth corps at St. George's Anglican Church. He hopes this service group will appeal to young people both "in and outside the church."

The 45 members, ranging in age from 13 to 17, want to work as volunteers in the community.

"They want to be involved in the world," Gates said. "They want to work as volunteers in hospitals, clinics, nursing homes and animal hospitals."

Tuesday and Thursday evening programs include drama, dancing, sports, scouts handicrafts, films and guest speakers, according to church elder Donald Roegele.

Roegele said about 50 to 60 people come each evening and once a month the church hires a live band for a dance.

Rev. Philip Calkins, of the Free Methodist Church, said his church is "always looking for new things to interest young people."

Mr. Calkins said that besides Sunday school, his church has a program of week night Bible study and recreational activities.

Young people at the Church of the Nazarene will attend a retreat at Camp Thunderbird next weekend. This church offers weekly outings and study groups for young people and rents a gym once a month for games.

Rev. Alfred Johnson, of the Lutheran Church of the Cross, thinks there is an "increased interest in religion among young people."

10,000 Present

He described a recent rally held in Minneapolis, Minn., which attracted 10,000 young people. About 25 members of his church belong to the Luther League, an organization for young people.

Young people at Emmanuel Baptist Church have applied for a grant under the federal government's winter works program. Funds will be used to build a drop-in centre for teenagers.

About 70 young people meet every Friday evening to plan programs or take part in activities. Members meet in homes during the week for prayer and study groups.

Sunday Support

The youth program at Emmanuel Baptist also involves young adults in church activities. There is a supper every Sunday at 5 p.m. for 18 to 25-year-olds.

Young people, ranging in age from 13 to 17 years, meet weekends at Cadboro Bay United church for recreational activities.

Since most 17-year-olds don't have much in common with the average 13-year-old, the group is divided according to age.

The junior recreation group meets Friday evenings at 7 p.m. The more sophisticated 17 and 18-year-olds meet Saturday evenings at the same time. The program has become so popular that 11 and 12-year-olds are now forming their own group.

Knox Presbyterian Church has no specific program for teenagers. Older teenagers 17 to 21 years of age use church facilities Sunday evenings.

"Anybody can come for an informal get together Sunday evening. They usually play the guitar, sing and talk for hours," said Rev. Alan Beaton.

Equal Wages for Gov't Workers First

Pay a babysitter the minimum wage?

Parents may find they will have to if Eileen Dailly, Burnaby MLA and deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, has her way. As it stands now, the B.C. Human Rights Act does not cover domestic and farm workers.

Mrs. Dailly was speaking to the Status of Women Action Group (SWAG) Tuesday evening at the Cool-Aid Fernwood hostel on the role of women in the provincial government.

Mrs. Dailly's first experience with the inequalities suffered by women was six years ago when she ran against four male nominees for a seat in her own party.

"'Afer a panel discussion someone came up to me and said: 'Well you make a good speech, Mrs. Dailly, but you know a woman's place is really in the home'."

She said the interest shown in women's rights by groups such as SWAG will eventually force the provincial government to realize that women are beginning to work together rather than in fragmented efforts.

Three other women — Ministers without Portfolio Patricia Jordan, Grace McCarthy and Isabel Dawson — were invited to the meeting but did not attend.

Although the Human Rights Act stipulates equal pay for men and women doing comparable work, in practice there are still many inequalities in salaries, Mrs. Dailly said.

These inequalities begin with the government itself. For example, the cleaning women in the legislature earn $100 less per month than male janitors, Mrs. Dailly said. The discrepancy in wages is attributed to the fact that janitors use the floor polisher, she added.

"Unless the government takes a lead in their own department, it cannot go around to industries demanding what it does not do itself," Mrs. Dailly said.

Mrs. Dailly stated what she hopes to do during the current legislature session as far as women's rights are concerned:

- Call on the government to set up an implementation committee to study the Royal Commission on the Status of Women.
- Work to establish a provincial child care board.
- To beef up the present Human Rights Act which allows the employer scope to discriminate against women.
- Change the separate male and female minimum wage acts to one law covering both.
- Give the provincial women's bureau power to investigate job discrimination and bring action against the employer, thus eliminating the

Power Hopes Sink

LONDON (UPI) — Britain neared a total industrial shutdown today. Twenty million jobs were threatened with further power cuts in store for British homes and industry.

The blockade of power stations by striking coal miners hit even harder and electricity authorities ordered power cuts for one-third of the country, with 15 per cent hit at any single time. Previously, only about 10 per cent had been affected at a time.

That meant most areas which before suffered only six hours of cuts a day now would be blacked out for nine hours.

The central electricity generating board, which operates Britain's state-run power industry, said cuts might hit as much as 20 per cent of the country at a time if generating resources continue to fall.

So far 10 of Britain's 148 power stations have been put out of action by strike pickets preventing coal or oil reaching them. At least a third are working at reduced capacity, the board said.

WORST YET

"It looks as if this is going to be the most drastic day so far. There is no doubt that power rationing is becoming more severe" a generating board spokesman said.

The nine-hour power cuts were split into three groups of three hours each.

For the seventh day tens of thousands of homes and offices were without heat for up to nine hours. Some areas also were hit by water shortages when electric water pumps failed.

At Bath, in the West England, water carts were stationed at strategic points throughout the city for families whose supplies had dried up.

The state-run British railroads slashed more than 1,000 trains from their services. Hundreds of commuter runs were cancelled and those trains running had fewer and unheated cars.

Officials said everything now depends on the recommendations of a three-man court of inquiry, headed by Lord Wilberforce, an appeals court judge. The panel began public hearings Tuesday.

The court has promised to announce its findings by the end of the week.

THE BRIDGE THAT WAS, on Richmond Road, intrigues youngsters on their way to school this morning, as they stand dangerously close to edge of sunken section. Rain-swollen Bowker Creek undermined bridge supports during the night. City engineers today began building a temporary bridge.

65-m.p.h. Winds Lash City

By PAUL MOSS, Times Staff

One of the worst storms of the winter hit Greater Victoria and Vancouver Island Tuesday night, causing a small city bridge to collapse, flooding scores of basements in Saanich and Oak Bay and leaving many residents without electricity.

Almost an inch of rain had fallen in the 24-hour period up to 4 a.m. today, but the flooding problems arose because half of that fell in a six-hour period starting at about 10 p.m.

A four-inch B.C. Hydro gas main was fractured as the whole bridge structure sagged, posing a threat to residents of the area. But a Hydro crew was on the scene by 5:30 a.m. and sealed off the break.

All traffic was diverted today as city engineers began the job of erecting a temporary girder bridge.

Children on their way to school this morning were still using the footpath over the bridge, which looked as if it could collapse entirely at any moment. Traffic detour signs were diverting traffic, but up to 9 o'clock no policemen were on duty to control pedestrians.

However, when city traffic engineer James Garnett arrived on the scene just before 9 he issued instructions that all pedestrian use of the bridge was to cease immediately.

Although the Victoria-Saanich boundary runs down the middle of Richmond, under an egreement between the municipalities the city has responsibility for the road.

Garnett explained that the rushing water scoured out the creek bed, undermining the old piers on both sides of the bridge. A huge chunk of masonry was swept several yards downstream.

No one knows what time the bridge actually gave way, but the discovery was made in a frightening manner by a young motorist whose car bumped and bounced over the sagged section.

Mrs. Margaret Beech, of 2616 Richmond, said her daughter opened the door at about 3:45 a.m. to the young man, who asked if he could phone the police.

"He looked very shaken up," she said.

Small Plane Flight Curbs At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)— The transport department has ordered restrictions on visual flight operations within a 10-mile radius of Vancouver International Airport as the airport's radar system broke down.

It was the first major reported breakdown of navigational equipment at the airport since maintenance technicians, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, went on strike last week.

The restrictions, in practice, affected only small charter and private aircraft which are not equipped with instrument landing systems, as are the major airlines and other, larger aircraft.

Air Canada cancelled more than half of its flights out of Toronto today and about two-thirds of its domestic flights from Montreal as the strike entered its 11th day.

Airlines urged passengers to take buses or trains as flight delays were reported. Some flights from Toronto were taking off six hours late.

Traffic in and out of other major airports was hectic Tuesday as air controllers resorted to visual procedures for commercial takeoffs and landings after delicate radar equipment broke down without maintenance.

Conditions today appeared about the same or slightly worse.

CANCEL 60 FLIGHTS

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline had to cancel 60 of 112 scheduled flights from Toronto. It got about two-thirds of its flights out Tuesday.

CP Air said its usual 20 flights would leave Toronto today but it couldn't guarantee when.

Air Canada said it was trying to maintain long-range flights while cancelling short runs. There were numerous consolidations—passengers on lightly loaded flights being put on other aircraft.

Extra buses and railway cars are running because of the strike.

CNR added three cars to each of Tuesday evening's Rapido trains from Montreal to Toronto and airport buses met them at the station. At least half the train passengers had to take buses to the airport just to pick up cars they had parked there.

U.S. 'ON BRINK' OVER PAKISTAN

NEW YORK (CP) — Columnist Jack Anderson, who has disclosed secret government documents on the India-Pakistan war, said Tuesday the United States was "on the brink of nuclear war" in that conflict.

The syndicated writer also charged at a news conference that President Nixon and aides tried to deceive the public about how much the nation was involved in the India-Pakistan war.

"Life and death decisions that brought us to the brink" were kept from the public, Anderson said, including the fact that American task forces sent to the Bay of Bengal were "alerted for hostile action" against the Soviets and Chinese.

Anderson called the news conference to announce the impending publication of a book, The Anderson Papers, expanding on the documents already published or excerpted in his column.

He said that while the administration was secretly pursuing a pro-Pakistan policy, Nixon told congressional leaders and Henry Kissinger his national security adviser told newsmen that U.S. policy was not anti-Indian and the United States was neutral.

"The president -- and there is not a pretty word for it — lied to Congress. Henry Kissinger, on the president's behalf, lied to the American people," Anderson declared.

He said he has hundreds of previously unpublished documents, but added: "No security matters are involved in anything we have, only embarrassments."

Times' Challenge Prompts Threat of B.C. Ad Cutoff

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday he will recommend the provincial government stop placing advertisements in the Victoria Times or any other newspaper which publishes tobacco ads.

Peterson said he will make the recommendation to cabinet because the Times published a tobacco advertisement Monday in apparent violation of provincial legislation banning these ads.

The attorney-general said the Times had behaved irresponsibly, and he said its action went against previous Times editorial policy favoring the banning of tobacco and alcohol advertisements.

A Times editorial, March 30, 1971, said that "in view of the medical and social trend of the times it is difficult to argue against the moral basis of a ban on published encouragement of smoking and drinking."

Commenting on Peterson's reference to the editorial, Times' publisher Stuart Underhill said that while approving steps to discourage smoking and drinking, the editorial also pointed out there would be "formidable problems." in implementing the new legislation.

Underhill declined to say what it would cost the Times in revenue if deprived of government advertising.

He said it was irrelevant to the point of principle at issue.

TEST CASE DUE

Peterson was accused of evading his responsibility as attorney-general by Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) in the legislature Tuesday evening.

"If they (Times) have broken the censorship law he piloted through the house, then I put it to him — the chief law officer doesn't talk about economic reprisals, he goes to court."

Peterson replied that a test case of the advertising ban was due in court next week.

Dowding said the economic reprisal threat was a clear evasion of the attorney-general's responsibility and a "ridiculous response."

Legislation prohibiting tobacco product advertising and extending the ban on alcohol advertising to newspapers was passed by the legislature in 1971.

Peterson said the B.C. Supreme Court is expected to rule Feb. 22 on the validity and interpretation of the provincial legislation.

"And now, one week before the time of this matter," said Peterson, "they commence advertising tobacco products.

"They're performing a great public disservice. I will recommend that no government advertising be placed in this newspaper.

"I'm sure that all the other papers are too responsible to do this. This kind of irresponsibility on the part of the Victoria Times should in no way

IRVING'S WIFE ARRESTED

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Edith Irving, wife of writer Clifford Irving, appeared in court today for an extradition hearing brought by the Swiss government.

Mrs. Irving was arrested and taken immediately before a U.S. magistrate.

Bomb Aboard Ferry

BELFAST (UPI) — Security forces today found and defused a 40-pound bomb planted on a ferry from England in what may have been a bid to blow up 300 British troops en route to Ulster.

An army spokesman said army explosives experts sped to the ferry, the Duke of Argyle, when it docked in Belfast from Heysham, England, just before 7 a.m. carrying about 300 British troops and a number of civilians.

The explosives experts defused the bomb after several hours work, the spokesman said.

Disaster Seen If B.C. Wins

Times News Services

Provincial leaders across Canada — particularly in the "Have-not" Atlantic provinces — agreed today that an end to federal equalization payments would be a disaster for Confederation.

And most said they doubted if a proposed attack on the payments by the Social Credit government of B.C. had any basis in constitutional law.

B.C. Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday that the province would test the legality of the equalization payments — federal grants designed by Ottawa to reduce regional economic differences — in a court challenge. The move followed a remark Sunday by Prime Minister Trudeau characterizing B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett as a "bigot" toward French-speaking Canadians.

In Ottawa Finance Minister John Turner intends to introduce a five-year extension to current federal-provincial equalization payments legislation in the new session of Parliament opening Thursday, regardless of British Columbia's objections to it.

The legislation will raise to $1.6 billion by 1976-77 the amount of federal tax money now used each year to subsidize the treasuries of the so-called seven "have-not" provinces — all but Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia. Equalization payments amount to $1.1 billion this year.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex Campbell said Prince Edward Island will meet any challenge to its right for equalization payments with all the abilities, arguments and finance it can put forth.

Campbell said he would have hoped "that the government of any Canadian province disenchated with equalization would have sought political solutions to a constitutional problem at the provincial or federal-provincial conferences."

Heath Threatens To Quit Post

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has threatened to quit if Parliament refuses to ratify a treaty bringing Britain into the European Common Market, political sources said today.

The sources said Heath made the threat in an attempt to prevent a rebellion by members of his ruling Conservative Party opposed to the plan. The issue comes to a vote Thursday.

U.S. Dollar Under Pressure

Times News Services

LONDON — An early flurry of dollar selling drove the price of U.S. currency down to a new all-time low in West Germany today and forced it lower in Britain, France, Switzerland and Holland in early trading.

The record 1971 U.S. balance of payments deficit got the blame for the renewed selling pressure on the dollar, dealers said, although the huge deficit had long been predicted.

It was also widely known there had been no massive reflux of dollars to the United States after the flight from the dollar both before and after the August crisis.

Trading in London turned hectic. One dealer said "I've seen as much business in the first hour of trading as I sometimes see in a whole day."

In Washington, the commerce department said the "official settlements" deficit — measured in terms of official foreign holdings of dollars — was $29.6 million for the year, nearly $20 billion worse than the 1970 record deficit of $9.8 billion.

Stage Set for Opening Of New Ottawa Session

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Parliament, adjourned since Dec. 30, met briefly today to formally end the 28th Parliament and set the stage for the opening of the fourth session Thursday morning.

The opening in a pre-election atmosphere is expected to produce a throne speech that will give Canadians an encouraging view of the future of the country.

The speech will also outline some of the legislation scheduled to come before Parliament —some of it new, some of it in the form of left-overs —which the government feels will bring Canada closer toward a just society.

With the opposition scenting an election, it could be a stormy parliamentary period ahead. But the government is not expected to aggravate the situation by introducing unnecessarily contentious bills.

Some of the more controversial bills left over from last session, including Labor Code amendments and a measure to regulate business competition, are unlikely to return in their former state, and probably not before the expected election.

The throne speech, which traditionally outlines legislation to come before Parliament, is expected to concentrate more on the state of Canada and hopes for its future. Some cabinet ministers are known to be annoyed that some of their pet projects are not being included in the speech, to be read by Governor-General Roland Michener.

The speech has been prepared within Prime Minister Trudeau's office, and sources say there has been less cabinet participation than in previous years. Ministers were asked to submit legislative programs they had in mind.

Mr. Trudeau, following a tendency begun in 1970, favors using the speech as a vehicle for an over-all government view of Canada, its problems and its hopes. Bills which, in the government's view, will make Canada a better place will be outlined.

God Put Us in Charge—Phil

God made man to run the world, not worship it, Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi told the legislature Tuesday.

"Trees were never created by God to be worshipped as gods. They were made to be utilized. Minerals aren't to be worshipped, they're to be utilized. We were created to be in control," Gaglardi said.

Opposition members kidded Gaglardi, saying he must have been referring to the Socreds. The minister replied he was merely talking about man in general.

He said the government believes in anti-pollution efforts but suggested people should not over-emphasize protection of the environment.

He said Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan is "setting the pace" in Canada in the fight against pollution.

Gaglardi also praised his department's record in finding jobs. He claimed the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen found 30,000 new jobs in 1971 at an average rate of 114 jobs a day.

He said Ottawa has copied his on-the-job training program and praised vocational training programs sponsored by the rehabilitation department.
